Mobster Clams Up, Arrested For Contempt

O'Dwyer's Tax Affairs To Be Investigated

Justice Dept. Will Check Testimony

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Congressmen leveled tax evasion and perjury at Ambassador William O'Dwyer today because of a reported $10,000 cash handout from an AFL union leader.

Both his Kefauver crime committee and his personal tax affairs were placed under scrutiny.

The tax inquiry also took in O'Dwyer's long-time aide, James J. Moran, who, during the day, quit under fire his cushy $15,000 a year lifetime job as city water commissioner.

But O'Dwyer stood firm under attack, denying any plans to step out as U. S. Ambassador to Mexico.

Perjury Charges Loom

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) said in Washington there are grounds for possible perjury charges in testimony about lavish cash gifts by John P. Crane, president of the AFL Uniformed Firemen's Association of New York.

Kefauver asked the Justice Department and the U. S. attorney in New York to go over the entire record of the New York hearing—a record in which Crane swore he gave O'Dwyer $10,000 in cash and Moran $55,000.

Another congressional subcommittee set the internal revenue agents to combing the former Democratic Mayor's tax affairs. The agents were directed to see if he evaded payment on the $10,000 Crane claims to have handed him in 1949, in the midst of a mayoralty campaign.

Rep. Kean (R-N. J.) told reporters:

"Somewhere in there, there may be a gift tax which should be paid, or if the money was given for services rendered or to be rendered, it should be reported as income."

Conflicting Testimony

O'Dwyer denied under oath ever taking any political contributions from Crane, a supporter of his last mayoralty campaign.

However, Crane swore yesterday to the Kefauver crime committee that he handed O'Dwyer $10,000 in cash in a red manila envelope in October, 1949. He said the money was evidence of the firemen's support for O'Dwyer's reelection as mayor.

Crane also testified he gave Moran $55,000 in installments for his good will. Moran had sworn to the committee that he never took any money from Crane.

Moran quit his job as water commissioner today after Mayor Vincent Impellitteri ordered him to get out or face ouster proceedings.

Queries Evaded By Rosenberg

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — Julius Rosenberg, atomic spy trial defendant, refused today on grounds of self-incrimination to answer seven questions relating to Communist Party membership.

The 34-year-old electrical engineer, charged with wartime atomic espionage for Russia, has been labeled a Communist by other witnesses during the trial.

He, his wife, Ethel, 35, and his onetime City College classmate, Morton Sobell, 33, a radar expert, are co-defendants. If convicted, all three could be given the death penalty.

U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol read to Rosenberg, the first defense witness, a letter Rosenberg admitted sending to Signal Corps officials in 1945 stating that he was not a member of the Communist Party and had never been.

Saypol asked him if the statement was true and Rosenberg — for the seventh time in an hour — claimed the constitutional privilege of not answering on the ground it might incriminate him.

Earlier he had refused to answer such questions as whether he ever belonged to the Communist Party or to a group that discussed the Soviet Russian system and whether he had ever talked about aiding Russia against the Germans "at any Communist meeting you might have attended."

Actor Larry Parks "Sick," Attorney Says

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Film Star Larry Parks, who testified yesterday in Washington that he once was a Communist, is "sick of heart and sick in bed," his attorney reported tonight.

Louis Mandel, the lawyer, said he planned to take Parks "away for a few days until he comes to himself."

Parks testified before the House committee on Un-American Activities that he joined the Communist Party in an idealistic search that "didn't work out" and quit when his interest faded.

AFL Packinghouse Union Calls Off Monday Walkout After Green Urges Delay

WEEPING ACTRESS—Actress Kay Buckley breaks into tears in Superior Court, Los Angeles, while listening to her husband, J. Arthur Warner, New York broker, testify yesterday about their marriage. She is seeking $700 monthly alimony until trial of her suit for divorce or annulment. She also wants $1,500,000 damages because she says Warner deceived her by marrying her before his divorce from a former wife became final. (AP Wirephoto).

Possibility Of CIO Stoppage Remains

CHICAGO, March 22 (AP) — AFL meat handlers today promised "No AFL strike Monday" but CIO packinghouse workers said they are "ready to strike" when a date is set.

A CIO spokesman said the union's strike strategy committee will meet tomorrow morning to complete strike details and set a date.

A strike of 120,000 CIO United Packinghouse Workers could curtail sharply but not stop the flow of meat to the American dinner table.

The AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen promised not to strike Monday after AFL President William Green telegraphed a request that it be delayed. The union has some 10,000 packinghouse workers.

Pact Expires Sunday Midnight

Workers in both unions are free to strike after midnight Sunday, at the expiration of present wage agreements.

The unions had threatened to walk out in plants across the nation Monday in protest against governmental refusal to approve an 11-cent hourly wage increase they negotiated with the major packers.

The CIO spokesman said packinghouse union officials had received no communication from CIO President Philip Murray along the lines of Green's plea.

Green sent his appeal to both unions. He contended a strike Monday might upset negotiations in Washington between the United Labor Policy Committee and Defense Mobilization officials.

Green's telegrams reached leaders of the two unions as they met to consider whether to call a strike.

Johnston Said No

Both unions received a raise of 11 cents an hour in August, 1950.

The unions and major packers also agreed on an increase of 11 cents an hour in February. It would be effective as of Feb. 9 — provided the Wage Stabilization Board approved it by March 25.

However, Eric Johnston, economic stabilizer, declined to approve the raise. He held that only three cents of the hike could be allowed under the Government's wage formula. This formula limits pay increases to ten per cent above Jan. 15, 1950, levels.

Carriers Reject Rail Union Plan To Settle Dispute

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A union proposal to settle a two-year-old railroad wage dispute failed today when the carriers rejected it.

The answer was given to the Senate Labor Committee which is investigating the long-drawn disagreement between the nation's rail carriers and the four big operating unions.

Chairman Murray (D-Mont) had urged the lines to accept the new proposal, put forward through him by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Although it directly affected only the trainmen, Murray believed it would lead to a settlement with all four unions.

But D. P. Loomis, representing the railroads, announced at the committee's public hearing that management would not go along with the union plan.

The settlement proposal differed in two respects from a compromise reached Dec. 21 at the White House between the four unions and the railroads. The compromise collapsed when local union officials turned it down.

The trainment suggested (1) that somebody besides John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, be named arbitrator under the agreement, and (2) negotiation between individual roads and the unions on a working condition dealing with the coupling of air hose.

Loomis said the carriers would be willing to accept another arbitrator if Steelman named him. He noted that Steelman was familiar with the issues and settlement discussions.

Loomis said the union's air hose coupling suggestion was "just a subterfuge to preserve and extend this lucrative field of penalty payments."

Sometimes, he said, when a member of a yard crew is required to couple an air hose all men in the crew have to be paid for an hour to a full day's pay.

1,500 Marines Back From War

OAKLAND, Calif., March 22 (AP)—More than 1,500 joyful U. S. Marines and 57 of the nation's heroic Korean war dead came home today.

The 1,529 Marines, many of whom had fought through the 25 below zero cold of the retreat from the Changjin reservoir, basked in warm sunshine at the rail of their transport, the USS General G. M. Randall, as it docked at an Oakland pier. They craned their necks eagerly for loved ones among the hundreds of welcomers at the dock.

Maj. S. R. Schlessinger, Oceanside, Calif., commanding officer of this second group of Marines to return on the rotation system, was proud of them.

"They did one hell of a fine job," he said.

The Marines streamed down the gangplank to one joyful reunion after another. In convertibles they wound through the streets of Oakland in a long parade to Treasure Island. Ahead of the Marines were 30 day furloughs.

Back in the ship were the dead—57 fighting men from the Navy, the Army, the Marine Corps and the Air Force.

FCC Tentatively Opens Up Space For 70 TV Channels

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission today tentatively opened up much more space for television broadcasting and announced plans for a partial lifting of the long freeze on new station grants.

Also, for the first time, FCC made specific provision for educational television.

The additional TV space would be created by setting up 65 to 70 new channels in the so-called ultra high frequencies. This is in a section of the radio spectrum now used for experimental purposes only.

Added to the present 12 channels in the very high frequencies, this would give the country between 77 and 82 channels numbered from 2 to 83 (the original channel No 1 has been turned over to public safety services.)

With this total, some 2,000 stations could be eventually operated in more than 1,200 communities across the country. This compares with present space for only about 400 stations in 140 locations. There are only 107 stations on the air in 64 cities.

This FCC plan tentatively allocates the new UHF channels and also makes some changes in present channel assignments. A total of 31 stations now on the air would have to shift to new channels, under the proposal.

The limited number of stations now operating results from the freeze which FCC declared on new station construction permits on Oct. 1, 1948 in order to iron out kinks in the operating setup.

'Chutists Drop Behind Enemy North Of Seoul

Allies Open Drive North Of Capital

TOKYO, Friday, March 23 (AP)—Thousands of U. S. parachute troops today dropped behind enemy lines north of Seoul and cut the main escape highway for an estimated 60,000 Communists.

The day before three Allied divisions close to Seoul struck along a broad front, grinding out gains up to four miles. They were keeping up the frontal pressure on the big enemy force.

The airborne troops, including hard-hitting Rangers, spread out along the flatlands near the Imjin River, which flows about 20 miles north and northwest of Seoul.

Field reports said the airborne troops cut the main road that leads 35 miles northwest from Seoul to Kaesong.

Ridgeway Directs Maneuver

It was a brilliant maneuver, personally led and directed by America's own master paratrooper, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander.

The troops bailing out of the big Flying Boxcars caught the enemy completely by surprise. They quickly consolidated their positions.

Ground forces only a few miles to the south were hitting the enemy from positions last reported from five to eight miles north of Seoul.

A field dispatch said the United Nations troops swung north deliberately on a broad front along the road down which the Korean Reds invaded South Korea last June 25.

AP Correspondent Jim Beeker said the three unidentified divisions met slight opposition although earlier reports estimated the Chinese Communist high command had thrown 60,000 reinforcements into this sector.

16 Miles Below Parallel

This drive through Communist minefields put the Allies within seven miles of Uijongbu, a strategic road junction 12 miles north of Seoul and 16 miles south of the politically ticklish 38th parallel.

The new Allied push perhaps was aimed at throwing the Reds off balance before they could mount an expected counterattack in the west.

On the central front, U. S. First Calvary Division tank patrols prodded within easy range of the artificial boundry between North and South Korea.

The dismounted cavalrymen who took abandoned Chunchon Wednesday, already may have sent patrols across the old boundry between Red North and Republic South Korea, field dispatches indicated.

Although the bulk of the massive Chinese Communist forces on this sector apparently have pulled back behind the border, a veteran rearguard remained entrenched one to two miles south of the parallel.

Johnston Hits "Complacency"

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston tonight issued a warning that "too much complacency" over inflation is undermining the mobilization effort.

"Inflation is already sabotaging our defense just as surely as if it carried the red flag of international Communism," Johnston declared in an address prepared for broadcast over the CBS network.

Johnston said last September's $4,500,000,000 tax increase already has been eaten up in the higher price the government must pay for weapons and military equipment.

The public must expect higher taxes, because a balanced federal budget is vital to conquer inflation, he said. Credit controls must be tightened to end the "spree of easy credit since last June."

He said the country "simply can't afford to let the rate of profit go on shooting upward"; it must halt the upward march of farm prices; and it must stop the "never-ending chase between higher prices and higher wages."

Sen. Vandenberg Able To Read Greetings

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 22 (AP)—Sen. Vanderberg (R-Mich) was able to read greetings from scores of well-wishers throughout the world on his 67th birthday today but he remained seriously ill.

Dr. A. B. Smith said there had been "no change" today in the Senator's condition. The physician reported "slight improvement" yesterday and said the senator spent "a fairly good night" last night.

Share Spotlight In Crime Probe

He refused to answer any questions and was arrested for contempt. James J. Moran (top, left) arrives at his office in New York to pick up personal belongings after announcing he had resigned as New York's water commissioner on the demand of Mayor Vincent Impellitteri after being named in testimony before the crime committee as having allegedly received $55,000 from the head of the Uniformed Firemen's Association. St. Louis Betting Commissioner James Carroll (bottom, left) uses his hands to amplify his testimony before the committee.

Congress Probe Of Mobilization Setup Ordered

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of a Senate-House "watchdog" committee today ordered a broad investigation of the nation's mobilization program, centering on wage-price controls and charges of favoritism.

Maybank said public hearings will start about April 4.

The Senator told a news conference that officials of "at least 50" federal agencies involved in the multi-billion-dollar defense program will be called as witnesses.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), a member of Maybank's Senate-House Committee on Defense Production, told newsmen:

"Amortization" To Be Probed

"The inquiry will try to find out why they are not controlling prices, not controlling wages, not controlling anything."

Aside from controls, Maybank said the committee wants to look into charges of favoritism in granting tax benefits to some industries to encourage defense production.

He said federal officials will be called on to explain why tax concessions were made to certain companies while others in the same industry failed to get benefits.

Under the 1950 Defense Production Act — the master chart of the whole mobilization program — a company may be permitted to write off as much as 20 per cent a year, for tax purposes, on the cost of building a plant. The write-off is known as "amortization."

Privilege Given Railroads

"I don't say it's illegal," Maybank said, "but a lot of amortization certificates were given where it was not the intent of Congress that they should be given."

Asked if he had heard of any non-defense projects getting the certificates, Maybank replied:

"I didn't hear it, I saw it."

He said the privilege had been given to "most of the railroads" to build new cars, and to other projects including some cement factories.

"You don't fight the Russians with cement," Maybank said. "For the life of me, I can't see how they are entitled to those certificates."

Sun-Tanned Truman Back In Washington

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — President Truman arrived in Washington at 5:55 p. m. (EST) today, ending a three-week vacation at Key West, Fla.

"I had a good trip and I worked hard," the sun-tanned President told Cabinet officers who greeted him at the military air transport terminal.

The President was smiling broadly. He looked fit as he stepped down the gangplank and inquired "where's the boss?" meaning Mrs. Truman.

She was on hand. He kissed her, then turned to shake hands with Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Attorney General McGrath and other dignitaries.

Some People Have 'Biological Urge' To Bet, Solons Told

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Some people have a "biological urge" to bet, James J. Carroll told senators today.

"It is a quality that gives substance to their day dreams," he said, and "a biological necessity for certain types."

Carroll also said horse players don't always lose.

"Contrary to general opinion," he said, "there are many, many players who make a livelihood out of playing the horses. Some of them win consistently, year after year."

Big 4 Deputies Meet In Secret

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—The Big Four deputy foreign ministers will meet in their first closed (secret) session tomorrow to decide, according to informed sources, whether to continue their deadlocked efforts to arrange a meeting of their chiefs.

For nearly three weeks now, the deputies have failed in their assignment to draw up a list of world problems for the foreign ministers to discuss.

The Russians say the Western Powers are to blame.

The Western Powers say the Russians are to blame.

That was the position when the four principal delegates and their aides had luncheon today at the British Embassy. British Delegate Ernest Davies was the host.

At this session there was "plain speaking and no propaganda," informed sources said. The delegates agreed to call off today's formal session and hold the closed meeting tomorrow.

Truck Tax Measure Aimed At Virginia Arouses Storm

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—A tax bill on trucks, which actually would apply only to Virginia, ran into a floor fight in the Maryland Senate tonight and got stalled temporarily.

The bill, which received support of the Finance Committee, says that a Maryland gasoline tax would be collected on out-of-state trucks from any state which impose similar taxes.

Virginia is the only nearby state that does so.

Minority Leader Robert Kimble (R-Allegany) spent 20 minutes lambasting the bill as a scheme of the "truck lobby" to escape even the Virginia tax on out-of-state vehicles.

Kimble argued that this "wicked bill" was so worded that its real purpose was to allow Maryland trucks to ride tax-free through Virginia. He said it would work this way:

Maryland would impose the tax. Then, under a provision of the bill, it could advise Virginia the Maryland tax would not be collected if Virginia did likewise. Which meant trucks in neither state would pay anything for use of the roads.

Kimble lost by a 24-2 vote his attempt to have the bill rejected.

Then he offered a series of amendments which would require trucks from all states to pay gasoline tax in Maryland—no matter where they bought the gas.

One of them was defeated but Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) then asked that the other amendments be held up for a day to allow study.

The bill was then laid over until tomorrow.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—Prodded by Democratic leaders, the House tonight accepted Gov. McKeldin's plan to pay state police one way and get $1,768,000 to help state employes another.

Every Republican delegate and most Democrats outside Baltimore City endorsed the Governor's proposal.

Mediterranean Situation Causes Italian Concern

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The Italian government has warned the West that rearmament of Russia's Balkan satellites has built up a dangerous situation in the Mediterranean, officals said today.

At the same time, it was learned Italy indirectly appealed for revision of peace treaty restrictions to allow increases in her own armed forces.

The Italian government's warning, the officials told a reporter, was passed on to the governments of the United States, Britain, France and Yugoslavia.

U. S. Shares Concern

The State Department has replied that it shares Italy's serious concern over the illegal military buildup in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. But the United States is said to have insisted it does not consider the present appropriate for any discussion on possible changes in the Italian peace treaty.

The American answer, officials said, pointed out that the rearmament of Russia's satellites in Eastern Europe is among the topics the Big Four foreign ministers' deputies are trying to discuss now in Paris.

May Ease Restrictions Later

The reply, however, left the way open for scrapping Italian peace treaty restrictions on rearmament later, if the Paris talks fail.

Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) called for such action in a letter to Secretary Acheson recently. He said it was necessary in order to permit Italy to play its full role in the North Atlantic defense pact.

At present, Italy is limited to an army of 185,000 men and a police force of 65,000. Its navy is restricted to 67,500 tons.

Senate Group Votes Citation Against Guzik

Carroll Escapes Similar Charges

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Racketeer Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik came out of hiding today and quickly was slapped under arrest when he refused to answer questions of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The committee voted contempt citations against Guzik — reputed money man for the late Scarface Al Capone — and three other gambling figures.

It decided, however, to lift the contempt citation it had voted against James J. Carroll, long-time St. Louis betting commissioner who had refused to testify before TV cameras in St. Louis. Carroll talked at some length today before Guzik took the witness stand to bring the day's hearing to a dramatic close by being led out of the room by a police captain.

A professional bondsman quickly put up $10,000 bail for him and he was released.

Refuses To Tell Age

Guzik, a squat, pudgy mobster, had told the committee practically nothing, not even his age. He did acknowledge that his first name was Jacob, but then clammed up and, in a hoarse monotone, replied to question after question:

"I refuse to answer."

He parroted over and over that the questions "might incriminate me, tend to incriminate me or lead to incriminating me in some devious way." He explained he learned the phrase by watching television.

The committee voted unanimously to hold Guzik under arrest for contempt. He was ordered held under $10,000 bond for an appearance before the committee next Friday, March 30, at 10 a. m. (EST).

The balding, graying underworld character got his nickname "Greasy Thumb" when, according to reports, he was the treasurer and money-handler for the Chicago Capone mob. He was one of 17 missing witnesses for whom the Senate crime hunters had issued warrants.

His brief appearance on the stand pushed into the background the testimony by "Betting Commissioner" Carroll, who acknowledged making $110,000 in 1949 by gambling.

A. T. And T. Denies Charge

Carroll had given a quiet and almost scholarly discussion of gambling. And the big television show which has captured the interest of millions had aroused only one major outburst among the senators.

This was an angry accusation that the telephone and Western Union companies were aiding big-time gamblers by permitting them to use telephones and wire facilities for betting.

But A. T. & T. and Western Union immediately came back with statements that they discontinue service whenever a law enforcement authority tells them it is being used illegally. Western Union officials in New York told reporters that, as a common carrier, the company itself has no power to censor morals or messages.

The A. T. & T. statement said "we don't want bookie business."

Saturday the committee expects to hear testimony from Louis Farrell of Des Moines, Iowa, and Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee. Kefauver said Farrell is a liquor wholesaler and Brodson is known as a betting commissioner.

Prowlers Raid Secret RFC Files

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — A story of midnight prowlers who apparently tried to get access to secret files of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during the current senate RFC inquiry was related today.

Officials said an investigation is being made.

RFC Chairman W. Elmer Harber told newsmen he did not know whether any of the confidential documents — some of them linked with the Senate probe — were stolen.

Other informants said the only item definitely known to be missing is a bank or building and loan association passbook owned by Mrs. Donald Dawson, who has charge of the files.

Mrs. Dawson is the wife of a White House aide who has been named by a Senate Banking subcommittee as having exerted pressure on RFC in connection with loans.

Informants said a severed chain on a door leading to the file rooms gave the first tipoff on the prowlers' visit. Officials said the disclosure led the agency to install an electric lock and burgler-alarm system.

1,500 Marines Back From War

OAKLAND, Calif., March 22 (AP)—More than 1,500 joyful U. S. Marines and 57 of the nation's heroic Korean war dead came home today.

The 1,529 Marines, many of whom had fought through the 25 below zero cold of the retreat from the Changjin reservoir, basked in warm sunshine at the rail of their transport, the USS General G. M. Randall, as it docked at an Oakland pier. They craned their necks eagerly for loved ones among the hundreds of welcomers at the dock.

Maj. S. R. Schlessinger, Oceanside, Calif., commanding officer of this second group of Marines to return on the rotation system, was proud of them.

"They did one hell of a fine job," he said.

The Marines streamed down the gangplank to one joyful reunion after another. In convertibles they wound through the streets of Oakland in a long parade to Treasure Island. Ahead of the Marines were 30 day furloughs.

Back in the ship were the dead—57 fighting men from the Navy, the Army, the Marine Corps and the Air Force.

FCC Tentatively Opens Up Space For 70 TV Channels

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission today tentatively opened up much more space for television broadcasting and announced plans for a partial lifting of the long freeze on new station grants.

Also, for the first time, FCC made specific provision for educational television.

The additional TV space would be created by setting up 65 to 70 new channels in the so-called ultra high frequencies. This is in a section of the radio spectrum now used for experimental purposes only.

Added to the present 12 channels in the very high frequencies, this would give the country between 77 and 82 channels numbered from 2 to 83 (the original channel No 1 has been turned over to public safety services.)

With this total, some 2,000 stations could be eventually operated in more than 1,200 communities across the country. This compares with present space for only about 400 stations in 140 locations. There are only 107 stations on the air in 64 cities.

This FCC plan tentatively allocates the new UHF channels and also makes some changes in present channel assignments. A total of 31 stations now on the air would have to shift to new channels, under the proposal.

The limited number of stations now operating results from the freeze which FCC declared on new station construction permits on Oct. 1, 1948 in order to iron out kinks in the operating setup.

'Chutists Drop Behind Enemy North Of Seoul

Allies Open Drive North Of Capital

TOKYO, Friday, March 23 (AP)—Thousands of U. S. parachute troops today dropped behind enemy lines north of Seoul and cut the main escape highway for an estimated 60,000 Communists.

The day before three Allied divisions close to Seoul struck along a broad front, grinding out gains up to four miles. They were keeping up the frontal pressure on the big enemy force.

The airborne troops, including hard-hitting Rangers, spread out along the flatlands near the Imjin River, which flows about 20 miles north and northwest of Seoul.

Field reports said the airborne troops cut the main road that leads 35 miles northwest from Seoul to Kaesong.

Ridgeway Directs Maneuver

It was a brilliant maneuver, personally led and directed by America's own master paratrooper, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander.

The troops bailing out of the big Flying Boxcars caught the enemy completely by surprise. They quickly consolidated their positions.

Ground forces only a few miles to the south were hitting the enemy from positions last reported from five to eight miles north of Seoul.

A field dispatch said the United Nations troops swung north deliberately on a broad front along the road down which the Korean Reds invaded South Korea last June 25.

AP Correspondent Jim Beeker said the three unidentified divisions met slight opposition although earlier reports estimated the Chinese Communist high command had thrown 60,000 reinforcements into this sector.

16 Miles Below Parallel

This drive through Communist minefields put the Allies within seven miles of Uijongbu, a strategic road junction 12 miles north of Seoul and 16 miles south of the politically ticklish 38th parallel.

The new Allied push perhaps was aimed at throwing the Reds off balance before they could mount an expected counterattack in the west.

On the central front, U. S. First Calvary Division tank patrols prodded within easy range of the artificial boundry between North and South Korea.

The dismounted cavalrymen who took abandoned Chunchon Wednesday, already may have sent patrols across the old boundry between Red North and Republic South Korea, field dispatches indicated.

Although the bulk of the massive Chinese Communist forces on this sector apparently have pulled back behind the border, a veteran rearguard remained entrenched one to two miles south of the parallel.

Johnston Hits "Complacency"

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston tonight issued a warning that "too much complacency" over inflation is undermining the mobilization effort.

"Inflation is already sabotaging our defense just as surely as if it carried the red flag of international Communism," Johnston declared in an address prepared for broadcast over the CBS network.

Johnston said last September's $4,500,000,000 tax increase already has been eaten up in the higher price the government must pay for weapons and military equipment.

The public must expect higher taxes, because a balanced federal budget is vital to conquer inflation, he said. Credit controls must be tightened to end the "spree of easy credit since last June."

He said the country "simply can't afford to let the rate of profit go on shooting upward"; it must halt the upward march of farm prices; and it must stop the "never-ending chase between higher prices and higher wages."

Sen. Vandenberg Able To Read Greetings

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 22 (AP)—Sen. Vanderberg (R-Mich) was able to read greetings from scores of well-wishers throughout the world on his 67th birthday today but he remained seriously ill.

Dr. A. B. Smith said there had been "no change" today in the Senator's condition. The physician reported "slight improvement" yesterday and said the senator spent "a fairly good night" last night.

Share Spotlight In Crime Probe

He refused to answer any questions and was arrested for contempt. James J. Moran (top, left) arrives at his office in New York to pick up personal belongings after announcing he had resigned as New York's water commissioner on the demand of Mayor Vincent Impellitteri after being named in testimony before the crime committee as having allegedly received $55,000 from the head of the Uniformed Firemen's Association. St. Louis Betting Commissioner James Carroll (bottom, left) uses his hands to amplify his testimony before the committee.

Congress Probe Of Mobilization Setup Ordered

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of a Senate-House "watchdog" committee today ordered a broad investigation of the nation's mobilization program, centering on wage-price controls and charges of favoritism.

Maybank said public hearings will start about April 4.

The Senator told a news conference that officials of "at least 50" federal agencies involved in the multi-billion-dollar defense program will be called as witnesses.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), a member of Maybank's Senate-House Committee on Defense Production, told newsmen:

"Amortization" To Be Probed

"The inquiry will try to find out why they are not controlling prices, not controlling wages, not controlling anything."

Aside from controls, Maybank said the committee wants to look into charges of favoritism in granting tax benefits to some industries to encourage defense production.

He said federal officials will be called on to explain why tax concessions were made to certain companies while others in the same industry failed to get benefits.

Under the 1950 Defense Production Act — the master chart of the whole mobilization program — a company may be permitted to write off as much as 20 per cent a year, for tax purposes, on the cost of building a plant. The write-off is known as "amortization."

Privilege Given Railroads

"I don't say it's illegal," Maybank said, "but a lot of amortization certificates were given where it was not the intent of Congress that they should be given."

Asked if he had heard of any nondefense projects getting the certificates, Maybank replied:

"I didn't hear it, I saw it."

He said the privilege had been given to "most of the railroads" to build new cars, and to other projects including some cement factories.

"You don't fight the Russians with cement," Maybank said. "For the life of me, I can't see how they are entitled to those certificates."

Sun-Tanned Truman Back In Washington

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — President Truman arrived in Washington at 5:55 p. m. (EST) today, ending a three-week vacation at Key West, Fla.

"I had a good trip and I worked hard," the sun-tanned President told Cabinet officers who greeted him at the military air transport terminal.

The President was smiling broadly. He looked fit as he stepped down the gangplank and inquired "where's the boss?" meaning Mrs. Truman.

She was on hand. He kissed her, then turned to shake hands with Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Attorney General McGrath and other dignitaries.

Some People Have 'Biological Urge' To Bet, Solons Told

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Some people have a "biological urge" to bet, James J. Carroll told senators today.

"It is a quality that gives substance to their day dreams," he said, and "a biological necessity for certain types."

Carroll also said horse players don't always lose.

"Contrary to general opinion," he said, "there are many, many players who make a livelihood out of playing the horses. Some of them win consistently, year after year."

Big 4 Deputies Meet In Secret

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—The Big Four deputy foreign ministers will meet in their first closed (secret) session tomorrow to decide, according to informed sources, whether to continue their deadlocked efforts to arrange a meeting of their chiefs.

For nearly three weeks now, the deputies have failed in their assignment to draw up a list of world problems for the foreign ministers to discuss.

The Russians say the Western Powers are to blame.

The Western Powers say the Russians are to blame.

That was the position when the four principal delegates and their aides had luncheon today at the British Embassy. British Delegate Ernest Davies was the host.

At this session there was "plain speaking and no propaganda," informed sources said. The delegates agreed to call off today's formal session and hold the closed meeting tomorrow.

Truck Tax Measure Aimed At Virginia Arouses Storm

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—A tax bill on trucks, which actually would apply only to Virginia, ran into a floor fight in the Maryland Senate tonight and got stalled temporarily.

The bill, which received support of the Finance Committee, says that a Maryland gasoline tax would be collected on out-of-state trucks from any state which impose similar taxes.

Virginia is the only nearby state that does so.

Minority Leader Robert Kimble (R-Allegany) spent 20 minutes lambasting the bill as a scheme of the "truck lobby" to escape even the Virginia tax on out-of-state vehicles.

Kimble argued that this "wicked bill" was so worded that its real purpose was to allow Maryland trucks to ride tax-free through Virginia. He said it would work this way:

Maryland would impose the tax. Then, under a provision of the bill, it could advise Virginia the Maryland tax would not be collected if Virginia did likewise. Which meant trucks in neither state would pay anything for use of the roads.

Kimble lost by a 24-2 vote his attempt to have the bill rejected.

Then he offered a series of amendments which would require trucks from all states to pay gasoline tax in Maryland—no matter where they bought the gas.

One of them was defeated but Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) then asked that the other amendments be held up for a day to allow study.

The bill was then laid over until tomorrow.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—Prodded by Democratic leaders, the House tonight accepted Gov. McKeldin's plan to pay state police one way and get $1,768,000 to help state employes another.

Every Republican delegate and most Democrats outside Baltimore City endorsed the Governor's proposal.

Mediterranean Situation Causes Italian Concern

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The Italian government has warned the West that rearmament of Russia's Balkan satellites has built up a dangerous situation in the Mediterranean, officals said today.

At the same time, it was learned Italy indirectly appealed for revision of peace treaty restrictions to allow increases in her own armed forces.

The Italian government's warning, the officials told a reporter, was passed on to the governments of the United States, Britain, France and Yugoslavia.

U. S. Shares Concern

The State Department has replied that it shares Italy's serious concern over the illegal military buildup in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. But the United States is said to have insisted it does not consider the present appropriate for any discussion on possible changes in the Italian peace treaty.

The American answer, officials said, pointed out that the rearmament of Russia's satellites in Eastern Europe is among the topics the Big Four foreign ministers' deputies are trying to discuss now in Paris.

May Ease Restrictions Later

The reply, however, left the way open for scrapping Italian peace treaty restrictions on rearmament later, if the Paris talks fail.

Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) called for such action in a letter to Secretary Acheson recently. He said it was necessary in order to permit Italy to play its full role in the North Atlantic defense pact.

At present, Italy is limited to an army of 185,000 men and a police force of 65,000. Its navy is restricted to 67,500 tons.

Senate Group Votes Citation Against Guzik

Carroll Escapes Similar Charges

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Racketeer Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik came out of hiding today and quickly was slapped under arrest when he refused to answer questions of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The committee voted contempt citations against Guzik — reputed money man for the late Scarface Al Capone — and three other gambling figures.

It decided, however, to lift the contempt citation it had voted against James J. Carroll, long-time St. Louis betting commissioner who had refused to testify before TV cameras in St. Louis. Carroll talked at some length today before Guzik took the witness stand to bring the day's hearing to a dramatic close by being led out of the room by a police captain.

A professional bondsman quickly put up $10,000 bail for him and he was released.

Refuses To Tell Age

Guzik, a squat, pudgy mobster, had told the committee practically nothing, not even his age. He did acknowledge that his first name was Jacob, but then clammed up and, in a hoarse monotone, replied to question after question:

"I refuse to answer."

He parroted over and over that the questions "might incriminate me, tend to incriminate me or lead to incriminating me in some devious way." He explained he learned the phrase by watching television.

The committee voted unanimously to hold Guzik under arrest for contempt. He was ordered held under $10,000 bond for an appearance before the committee next Friday, March 30, at 10 a. m. (EST).

The balding, graying underworld character got his nickname "Greasy Thumb" when, according to reports, he was the treasurer and money-handler for the Chicago Capone mob. He was one of 17 missing witnesses for whom the Senate crime hunters had issued warrants.

His brief appearance on the stand pushed into the background the testimony by "Betting Commissioner" Carroll, who acknowledged making $110,000 in 1949 by gambling.

A. T. And T. Denies Charge

Carroll had given a quiet and almost scholarly discussion of gambling. And the big television show which has captured the interest of millions had aroused only one major outburst among the senators.

This was an angry accusation that the telephone and Western Union companies were aiding big-time gamblers by permitting them to use telephones and wire facilities for betting.

But A. T. & T. and Western Union immediately came back with statements that they discontinue service whenever a law enforcement authority tells them it is being used illegally. Western Union officials in New York told reporters that, as a common carrier, the company itself has no power to censor morals or messages.

The A. T. & T. statement said "we don't want bookie business."

Saturday the committee expects to hear testimony from Louis Farrell of Des Moines, Iowa, and Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee. Kefauver said Farrell is a liquor wholesaler and Brodson is known as a betting commissioner.

Prowlers Raid Secret RFC Files

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — A story of midnight prowlers who apparently tried to get access to secret files of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during the current senate RFC inquiry was related today.

Officials said an investigation is being made.

RFC Chairman W. Elmer Harber told newsmen he did not know whether any of the confidential documents — some of them linked with the Senate probe — were stolen.

Other informants said the only item definitely known to be missing is a bank or building and loan association passbook owned by Mrs. Donald Dawson, who has charge of the files.

Mrs. Dawson is the wife of a White House aide who has been named by a Senate Banking subcommittee as having exerted pressure on RFC in connection with loans.

Informants said a severed chain on a door leading to the file rooms gave the first tipoff on the prowlers' visit. Officials said the disclosure led the agency to install an electric lock and burgler-alarm system.

Hiss Begins His 5-Year Sentence

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — Alger Hiss, one-time trusted adviser to President Roosevelt, was whisked off to jail today to begin serving a five-year perjury sentence.

His only words were that he had "nothing to add" to previous professions of innocence. He displayed no particular emotion, though he did smile a time or two.

The 46-year-old former high State Department official surrendered at the U. S. courthouse. Handcuffed to a negro prisoner, he was taken by van to the house of detention to await transfer to a federal prison.

The prison to which he will be committed, was not disclosed immediately. He can apply for parole after serving one-third of the sentence.

The one-time Phi Betta Kappa student at Johns Hopkins and Harvard universities was convicted Jan. 21, 1950 on two counts of perjury.

In effect, the guilty verdict branded him a liar and a traitor who betrayed his country by slipping government secrets to a prewar Russian spy ring.

Hiss' chief accuser during the two long trials was Whittaker Chambers, avowed former courier for the Red spy apparatus.

Hiss' surrender followed rejection of his appeal of the conviction and the U. S. Supreme Court's action last week in refusing to review the case.

Collazo To Hear Death Sentence April 6

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Oscar Collazo, once fiery Puerto Rican Nationalist, will be sentenced April 6 to be electrocuted for his role in the attempt to assassinate President Truman last Nov. 1.

Collazo lost his plea today for a new trial. Rejecting the request, Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough said sternly:

"If ever a human being on the face of the earth had a fair trial, this defendant did."

Goldsborough announced he will impose the mandatory death sentence on Friday, April 6.

Celanese Proposes New Stock Issuance

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Celanese Corporation of America filed with the Securities Commision today a statement proposing the public offering of $100,000,000 of new debentures and 1,000,000 shares of $100-par preferred stock.

This would be one of the largest industrial offerings in recent months.

The company said it intends to use $120,008,750 of the cash proceds to redeem outstanding issues, and put the rest into plant expansion or general corporate funds.

The company's prospectus named Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., as the underwriter.

Neither Alfreda nor her playmates let a little thing like a few pounds interfere with fun. And the doctors said she is all right.

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP) — Sylvia Sidney, sloe-eyed actress, filed suit for divorce today from her husband of four years, Actor's Agent Carleton Alsop.

Probe To Recall Tydings, Fedder

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee investigating the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign decided today to recall as a witness former Sen. Tydings, Maryland Democrat.

Chairman Monroney (D-Okla) also announced that the elections subcommittee will recall William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer, whose testimony other witnesses have disputed.

The two are listed as witnesses for hearings next week.

Sen. Smith (R-Me) said yesterday it was "evident some one has committed perjury" in testimony dealing with what Tydings has described as a "midnight ride" experienced by Fedder.

She asked that Tydings and Fedder be recalled as witnesses, and that Louis Fried, a committee investigator, also be called to testify.

Fried has been mentioned in testimony as the author of a report to the committee on Fedder's story.

Donald A. Surine, investigator for Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Ewell G. Moore, Jr., former part-time worker for McCarthy, testified this week that Fedder lied in saying that he was threatened and "taken for a ride."

Speedup In Freight Car Handling Urged

PITTSBURGH, March 22 (AP) — Citing the gravity of the growing freight car shortage, Clifford F. Hood, vice president in charge of operations for U. S. Steel, said today all industries should load and unload cars on a seven-day week basis.

Speaking at the silver anniversary meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board, Hood declared that railroads and other carriers face an unprecedented strain. The steel industry loads and unloads cars seven days a week, Hood said as he suggested other industries should do the same, even if it costly or difficult.

La Prensa's Editor Declared Fugitive

BUENOS Aires, Argentina, March 22 (AP)—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, editor of the government-seized independent newspaper La Prensa, was declared a fugitive from justice today.

A congressional committee, appointed to take over the newspaper and investigate its activities, issued the declaration and ordered federal police to "exhaust all efforts to bring about the capture of the editor of La Prensa because it is essential that he be questioned."

The investigators last night ordered that Gainza Paz be arrested and imprisoned for 15 days for contempt of Congress. The newspaper executive had sent a statement to Congress charging that seizure of his strikebound paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Judy Garland Wins Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (INS)—Judy Garland, the film star who last summer slashed her throat with broken glass, divorced Director Vincente Minnelli today and said she is through with marriage.

Judy ended her five-year-old marriage to her mate in a brief hearing in which she said Minnelli's one-time ardent love turned inexplicably cold and she found herself shut out of his life.

The divorce granted, Judy promptly announced that after two unsuccessful marriages she has decided never to marry again. Her first husband was David Rose, the composer. She declared:

"I don't intend to marry again. If I wanted to have a new husband I would have gone to Nevada for a quick divorce."

AA Pioneer Dies

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) —Dr. William Duncan Silkworth, 77, who helped start the Alcoholics Anonymous movement 15 years ago, died today.

2-Year-Old Child Weighs 73 Pounds

WARWICK, R. I., March 22 (AP)—Alfreda LaPierre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred LaPierre, weighed nine pounds and nine ounces when she was born.

On her second birthday, 10 days ago, she weighed 73 pounds.

Mrs. LaPierre is five feet five inches tall and weighs 165 pounds. But Alfreda seems to be following her father, now five-eleven and 219 pounds, who was about Alfreda's size when he was two.

Neither Alfreda nor her playmates let a little thing like a few pounds interfere with fun. And the doctors said she is all right.

Actress Sylvia Sidney Files Suit For Divorce

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP) — Sylvia Sidney, sloe-eyed actress, filed suit for divorce today from her husband of four years, Actor's Agent Carleton Alsop.

"He berated me in the presence of others without cause and caused me such mental anguish and embarrassment that my health was impaired and I had to go under a doctor's care," the actress' complaint read. That, she added, constituted extreme cruelty.

Actress Wins Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif., March 22 (AP)—Marilyn Maxwll, 28, blond screen actress, obtained an uncontested divorce today from Restaurateur Andy McIntyre, 32, after little more than a year of marriage. She charged cruelty.

Columbium, a little-known metal, withstands heat up to 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Probe To Recall Tydings, Fedder

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee investigating the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign decided today to recall as a witness former Sen. Tydings, Maryland Democrat.

Chairman Monroney (D-Okla) also announced that the elections subcommittee will recall William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer, whose testimony other witnesses have disputed.

The two are listed as witnesses for hearings next week.

Sen. Smith (R-Me) said yesterday it was "evident some one has committed perjury" in testimony dealing with what Tydings has described as a "midnight ride" experienced by Fedder.

She asked that Tydings and Fedder be recalled as witnesses, and that Louis Fried, a committee investigator, also be called to testify.

Fried has been mentioned in testimony as the author of a report to the committee on Fedder's story.

Donald A. Surine, investigator for Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Ewell G. Moore, Jr., former part-time worker for McCarthy, testified this week that Fedder lied in saying that he was threatened and "taken for a ride."

Speedup In Freight Car Handling Urged

PITTSBURGH, March 22 (AP) — Citing the gravity of the growing freight car shortage, Clifford F. Hood, vice president in charge of operations for U. S. Steel, said today all industries should load and unload cars on a seven-day week basis.

Speaking at the silver anniversary meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board, Hood declared that railroads and other carriers face an unprecedented strain. The steel industry loads and unloads cars seven days a week, Hood said as he suggested other industries should do the same, even if it costly or difficult.

La Prensa's Editor Declared Fugitive

BUENOS Aires, Argentina, March 22 (AP)—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, editor of the government-seized independent newspaper La Prensa, was declared a fugitive from justice today.

A congressional committee, appointed to take over the newspaper and investigate its activities, issued the declaration and ordered federal police to "exhaust all efforts to bring about the capture of the editor of La Prensa because it is essential that he be questioned."

The investigators last night ordered that Gainza Paz be arrested and imprisoned for 15 days for contempt of Congress. The newspaper executive had sent a statement to Congress charging that seizure of his strikebound paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Judy Garland Wins Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (INS)—Judy Garland, the film star who last summer slashed her throat with broken glass, divorced Director Vincente Minnelli today and said she is through with marriage.

Judy ended her five-year-old marriage to her mate in a brief hearing in which she said Minnelli's one-time ardent love turned inexplicably cold and she found herself shut out of his life.

The divorce granted, Judy promptly announced that after two unsuccessful marriages she has decided never to marry again. Her first husband was David Rose, the composer. She declared:

"I don't intend to marry again. If I wanted to have a new husband I would have gone to Nevada for a quick divorce."

Health Nurses To See Atomic Bomb Films

Two films entitled "Medical Effects of the Atomic Bomb" will be shown to Garrett and Allegany County Health Nurses who attended the recent lectures on "Nursing Aspects of Atomic Warfare," Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The movies will be shown in the Health Department Training Center, Union Street building, March 29, at 9:30 a.m. The films show actual damage at Hiroshima and Nagasaka, Japan, after an atomic bomb explosion.

Speed With Which American Printer Earns New Shirt Amazes Britons

LONDON—(AP)— Fourteen British printers and their bosses, who made a survey of a number of American shops, returned to England amazed by the speed with which an American printer earns a new shirt.

The American does it, the British investigators reported, by working at his job one hour and 10 minutes. The British printer works 10 hours and eight minutes to earn the same kind of a shirt.

The British printers were members of a productivity team which, under auspices of the ECA, studied methods in printing shops in New York, Indianapolis, Dayton, Cincinnati, Baltimore and Washington in February and March, 1950. Their report just published, emphasizes the higher pay schedules and the higher standard of living enjoyed by American printers.

The American printers, somewhat less secure in their jobs than their opposite number in Britain, generally receive much greater rewards for their labor because of the high productivity of American plants, the report said.

The team report reduced to hours of labor the cost of articles printers buy on both sides of the Atlantic. The cost of a shirt here, in terms of a printer's effort, is 869 per cent of what it is in New York.

Only bread was found to be about the same. The American printer works four minutes for a loaf. The British printer does it in 4.3 minutes.

A blue serge suit is earned by an American printer in 12 hours. The Briton works 74 hours 48 minutes for it. A pair of nylon stockings costs the American printer 38.3 minutes of work, while to bring home the same pair the British printer would have to stick at his job four hours, one minute. To go to a movie costs the American printer 18.5 minutes of effort, but the price of the ticket to the British printer is 42.1 minutes.

"These figures are, of course, astounding," the report said. "The great advantages which the American worker is shown to enjoy over his British counterpart have been made possible largely by the high level of productivity in the U. S. The team is convinced that a substantial increase in the standard of living of the British worker is possible only if the nation's output can be raised x x x."

"The one factor which more than any other has made for the high productivity in the U. S. is the attitude of its people toward work. Management and workers take an intense interest in output and efficiency. There is a widespread appreciation of the basic economic fact that a high output means a high standard of living. x x x

"Another factor may be that, as American stock was drawn from pioneering elements who left Europe and were willing to work hard in a new country, there is greater concentration of vigor and ambition in their descendants who now form the community than there is in Britain."

Members of the team said they found excellently designed plants in America, but generally not superior to the best in Britain. While they had seen some superlative examples of printing in America, they observed that there was less effort than in Britain to maintain a uniformly high quality. American shops, they said, were disposed to gain speed and keep costs down by producing printing good enough for the purposes intended, but no better than it needs to be.

In America "printing has ceased to be regarded as a craft and is considered as an engineering problem by production engineers," the report said.

Witnesses And Contempt

Professed fear of self-incrimination could become a handy "out" for many reluctant witnesses before congressional investigating committees if the trend of recent court decisions holds up. Frank Panzino, official of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, who was acquitted of a contempt-of-Congress charge in federal court in Washington on March 16, had cited the Fifth Amendment guaranty against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts had ruled on February 5 that Harry Russell, Chicago and Miami Beach gambler, was within his rights in giving no answer to questions of the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee. Some of those asked Russell, Judge Letts said, were not pertinent. "Their relevance becomes apparent only when they are considered as links in a chain of questions which, taken together, would warrant a deduction of ultimate facts. The defendant had a right to so regard the questions. He was . . . privileged to remain mute."

Panzino's was the fifth acquittal in nine contempt-of-Congress trials in Washington this year. Two other UEW leaders convicted of contempt of Congress on February 26 had raised the issue of self-incrimination. But in those cases Judge Letts ruled the pleas defective.

The ruling of Judge Letts on February 26 was paralleled by a 5-to-3 Supreme Court ruling handed down on the same day. In upholding a jail sentence imposed on Mrs. Jane Rogers, former treasurer of the Communist party in Denver, Chief Justice Vinson said the defendant could not claim the self-incrimination privilige as "pure afterthought."

"Since the privilege against self-incrimination presupposes a real danger of legal detriment arising from the disclosure," Vinson said, the defendant could not "invoke the privilege where response to the specific question would not incriminate her."

However, the convictions of Patricia and Irving Blau, who were linked in the same lower court case with Mrs. Rogers, had been reversed by the Supreme Court in separate rulings in December, 1950, and January, 1951. The Blaus, the court ruled, had properly availed themselves of the constitutional privilege; i. e., in direct response to questions which might have elicited incriminating responses.

The law on rights of witnesses before congressional committees is still in the process of formation. After Frank Costello, racketeer, walked out of Kefauver Committee hearings in New York March 15, he was threatened with a citation for contempt. But Costello's attorney claimed that his client was suffering from laryngeal bronchitis. Former Mayor of New York William O'Dwyer, another bronchitis victim, had been allowed to postpone his appearance before the committee until he recovered sufficiently to make the journey from Mexico City.

Costello's attorney also complained of conditions at the hearing—"powerful, blinding Klieg lights . . . motion picture cameras . . . hordes of photographers." The Kefauver Committee had previously decided to ask the Senate to cite James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, for contempt in refusing to testify at a hearing on February 24 because he had a right to privacy that was violated by a television broadcast of the proceedings.

Happiness In Retirement

How to achieve happiness after retirement will be the object of a three-year study conducted by the New York Adult Education Council. By September it is expected to have funds enough to make a start with 100 men and women in their 40s and 50s, who will be volunteers as objects of experiment. Most of the money is expected to be contributed by industry and labor unions.

This project will go much further than trying to find avocations to prevent those in retirement from becoming introverts for lack of something to do. It begins with recognition by its head, Dr. Alonzo Meyers, chairman of the department of higher education at New York University, that "the income on which most employes retire is not enough to live on." Certainly happines is impossible without assured comfort.

The plan is to have 100 "scholarships" of $1,000 each for the three-year period, 60 of which will go to employes of companies and members of trade unions that have contributed, and the remaining 40 to white-collar workers, for whom the money will be sought from some foundation.

These 100 will get personal counsel from educators and discuss their problems in groups of 15 to 20. They will do their own planning, not accept ready-made formulae. But in addition to hobbies, personal interests, adult education and group affiliations, there will be one outstanding "must." That is to find means of supplemental income. Here is a need of which industry and other employers should have a new awareness.

Part-time use of aptitudes and skills of pensioners should be considered in the busy years ahead.

Vitality At Peak

A real task confronts the economists over the years in dealing with the effect upon the social order of a record low death rate at a time the population is increasing not by immigration, but by births within the country's confines. Last year showed the lowest death rate in the country's entire history of 9.6 per 1,000 population, compared to a previous all-time low in 1949 of 9.7 per 1,000. These are the figures formally announced by the National Office of Vital Statistics.

Thus of every 100 persons who saw either year dawn, 99 saw its close, an amazing fact that bespeaks ultimate increased longevity to an extent today unknown. These figures are the most accurate that can be had and are, generally speaking, dependable because in almost every community of every state deaths and their cause, when ascertainable, must be reported.

The NOVA is not on quite as sure ground when dealing with births because compulsory registration of births is not quite universal. Allowing for incomplete registration of births, this office estimates the babies born in 1950 at 3,699,000.

Infant mortality is sharply on the decline. Of live registered births in 1949 only 29.2 per 1,000 died in their first year in 1950, contrasted to 31.1 in 1949. There is no reason for surprise that more children were born in this country between 1945 and 1950 than in any other half-decade, the total being estimated, including the unregistered, at roughly 18,000,000.

What is surprising, however, is to learn that the general death rate decreased as much as 10 per cent between 1940 and 1950, and the infant death rate by 38 per cent. These decreases parallel a gain in medical knowledge, employment of new drugs and better sanitation, all of which played an important part.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Make Leisure Worthwhile

A VACATION is good medicine because it provides leisure and recreation. An ocean voyage has cured many peptic ulcers and a fishing trip in the north woods is an excellent preventive of a nervous breakdown. Spending the winter in Florida or California has added years to the lives of millions of our oldsters, especially those with heart disease or high blood pressure.

We do not wish to imply that going away will overcome all of our troubles. The nervous or emotionally disturbed who leave their cares and worries at the station or dock are improved only temporarily; on returning home they are bothered by the little gremlins all lined up ready to resume where they left off. In the circumstances, a vacation may make matters worse because when we run away from our problems they are twice as hard to lick on contacting them again. The only individuals who benefit are those who are nervous thru overwork. Rest obviously is the cure. Similar results cannot be expected when the person is perturbed because he has difficulty in adjusting to the situations of life.

But it is not necessary to go away to obtain leisure time. Most of us are able to set aside a few hours each day, free from labor or external compulsion. Some prefer to take it easy; others busy themselves in the garden or workshop or on the car. This may or may not be recreation and, in this respect, leisure time and recreation are not necessarily synonymous. There is no end to the ways in which we can occupy ourselves when not pursuing our daily job. Some profit more than others but from the health standpoint relaxation is essential. Not long ago a newspaper man was telling a carpenter that he enjoyed spending his spare hours at home in the basement making cabinets and bookcases and repairing this and that. The carpenter then said that when he got home in the evening he had fun writing stories on a secondhand typewriter he had purchased. Apparently we derive pleasure from doing things that differ from the regular routine.

There is a tendency nowadays to shorten working hours and increase leisure time. It has been said that a 40 hour week is the minimum; anything less reduces production and the physical state tends to staleness. More than 60 hours is too much, especially when sustained over a long period. Working under these conditions lessens efficiency and promotes chronic fatigue. Much depends upon the nature of the work, the pace, environment, capabilities of the worker, and his recuperative power.

We realize that articles galore have been written on the pros and cons of the concept that we should work less and play more. A sensible approach must be taken because persistent idleness usually leads to physical and mental deterioration to a greater degree than does overwork. We can have our cake and eat it too and in the future we hope that our schools will devote more time to teaching us how to live—that is, a schedule balanced between work and play.

Heredity And Epilepsy

S. H. writes: Is epilepsy inherited?

REPLY

Certain types are believed to be inherited, especially the most common—idiopathic epilepsy.

Resident

B. T. writes: What does a resident physician in a hospital do?

REPLY

"Residency" is a training period after completing the internship. It is taken by those who desire to obtain a year or more of training in fields such as surgery, internal medicine, X-ray, or gynecology. The work of the resident depends upon the specific program arranged by the hospital. He also supervises and helps the interns and assumes responsibility for the patient when the attending physician is away from the hospital. The resident has a medical degree and frequently, a license to practice.

Eisenhower Has Made European Preparedness A Partial Reality In Three Months; Allied Troops Should Be Indoctrinated On Why We Oppose Communism

PARIS—It is now more than two years since the foreign ministers of 12 nations met in solemn conclave in Washington and, accompanied by klieg lights and overseas broadcasts, signed the North Atlantic Pact.

The purpose of that pact was to protect the liberty-loving democracies from Soviet aggression. In the two years that have passed, however, not one single division has been raised to block that aggression, and there has been no agreement on pooling of raw materials, no schedule for production, no program for propaganda and political warfare, and no coordination of intelligent reports—in brief, all that the North Atlantic Pact countries have after two years of talking is a piece of paper plus an array of cumbersome committees which get in each other's way.

It was this emaciated skeleton of a defense organization that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower took over less than three months ago. Actually, he didn't exactly take it over, for Eisenhower, as supreme commander, reports back to "the standing group" in Washington, where Gen. Omar Bradley is his boss, and the standing group, in turn, takes orders from NATO, or the North Atlantic Pact Organization, in London.

Out of this tangled skein of red tape, however, Eisenhower has emerged as a contagious and forceful catalyst. Already his influence is being felt; already he has made European preparedness a partial reality. He doesn't talk in terms of so many troops here or so many troops there but in terms of goals, teamwork and cooperation.

The biggest thing Eisenhower has done, however, is to inspire confidence. There is a sort of contagious, almost spiritual, driving force about Eisenhower when he talks with his Allied colleagues. His job is partly one of public relations between governments, to get them to stop bickering over who will manufacture a three-inch fuse and how much they will be paid for it or who will make a 90-millimeter gun and what price they will charge for it. This is what NATO has been haggling over for two long years, and what Ike is trying to make them see is that having a certain command is not a question of prestige but an obligation and a responsibility.

Another thing Ike has done is to insist that every member of his international organization function as a team. If a Dane starts talking like a Dane, not as part of the team, he is through as far as Eisenhower is concerned.

Morale Boost Soon

The first big boost to North Atlantic Pact morale will come early in April when America's first division of troops under NATO will dock at Havre, march up the Champs Elysees and then entrain for Germany.

This is going to be the biggest lift to European defense psychology since June, 1944, when Eisenhower landed other U. S. troops on the Normandy beachhead. However what has been diplomatically suggested to France and England is that they make this psychological impact even greater by adding one division each to the North Atlantic Pact organization on the same day the American division lands.

Thus, as U. S. troops land at Havre, a British division would land at Cherbourg, with a French division joining them in Paris, and all three then entraining for the area where the Red army, if it strikes, would strike first—Germany.

NOTE—At present Eisenhower has only eight divisions to defend a 500-mile line from the Baltic to Switzerland if the Red army moves. On the other immediate side of this line the Russians have about 30 German divisions plus around 70 divisions in the Russian standing army. To meet this, France has promised 10 divisions this year and England five for Europe and five for other parts of the British empire.

Ike's On Diet

One of the first things Ike did to speed work at his Allied headquarters in the Astoria Hotel in Paris was to abolish the typical two-to-three-hour Parisienne lunch. He did this by setting up a dining room at his headquarters and then putting an Englishman in charge of English foods so bad that the Allied officers spend only 30 minutes lunching.

Ike himself is dieting and gets a large plate of carrot salad put in front of him at lunch. Several months ago his doctor made Ike cut out smoking which meant that he began putting on weight, so now the doctor has not only put him on a diet but curtailed Ike to one evening cocktail per day.

Ike's chief personal problem, however, is not dieting but Mrs. Eisenhower's reluctance to return to Europe. During the long war years and during the period before them, when Ike was in the Philippines, the Eisenhower family never had a home of their own.

Finally, at Columbia, Mrs. Eisenhower revamped the president's mansion and had just got comfortably settled when her husband was yanked off to Europe. Naturally, Mrs. Ike wasn't enthusiastic although now she realizes the tremendous challenge facing him and she is almost beginning to like their poorly heated Paris apartment.

Step Toward Unifying Europe

Some significant trans-Atlantic haggling is taking place regarding what could be one of the most important by-products to emerge from European rearmament—namely, an educational program for Allied troops on why we oppose communism. If properly put across, this could be the first real step toward unifying Europe.

Some of Eisenhower's staff, realizing that several thousand troops would be on their hands in Germany with relatively nothing to do, proposed a troop indoctrination program similar to the historic "Why We Fight" films produced by Hollywood's Frank Capra during the war. They also proposed radio talks by Eisenhower to his troops on the reasons why they are in Europe, together with the goals and ideals of democracy as against communism.

However, because this verges on things political, the State Department and the British got scared. State Department officials didn't like the Army barging into their field, while the British held up their hands in horror at any American propaganda going to their troops.

Trans-Atlantic wire-pulling is still continuing over what could be the most important phase of the entire rearmament program.

The State Of Formosa

IN the United States, we continue to debate whether we are to support Chiang Kai-shek's government in Formosa, or whether we shall bypass him and deal with the agents of guerrilla generals on the mainland or whether we shall recognize the Communist Mai Tze-tung.

The British have solved this problem to their disadvantage by prematurely recognizing the Chinese Communists, who, however, do not recognize the British. This might be amusing were it not so tragic in view of General Douglas MacArthur's stalemate in Korea, which is largely a result of this faulty British policy.

It is interesting, therefore, to have a look at the state of Formosa, an island which, by the Treaty of Shimonoseki in 1895, was ceded to Japan along with the Pescadores. The Japanese called the island Taiwan, a name which the Russians continue to use.

The defeat of Japan in 1945 left Formosa without government, and Nationalist China took over, housing large bodies of troops there. In their hunt for pro-Japanese natives, the Chinese behaved badly. When Chiang Kai-shek took over in 1949, he had the problem to face of establishing a government not only for the natives but for the enormous influx of refugee Chinese.

Meanwhile, the status of his government internationally became increasingly confused. According to the Cairo Declaration (November 26, 1943), Formosa was to be returned to China by the peace treaty with Japan. But there is no peace treaty with Japan. Also, while the United States and other countries and the United Nations recognize the Nationalist regime as the government of China, Great Britain and some other countries recognize the Soviet regime of Mao Tze-tung.

This question of legitimacy is very important in Asia. In the matter of Korea, for innstance, the Americans are embarrassed, perhaps disastrously, by the fact that Great Britain recognized that Chinese regime which is fighting us, while Great Britain is embarrassed by the obvious political necessity of voting in the United Nations with the United States and against Soviet China. General MacArthur emphasized this confusion in his "stalemate" statement.

Two cases have arisen in the British courts over this curious situation. In the matter of "Civil Air Transport, Inc. V. Chennault and others," decided in the Supreme Court of Hongkong, the legitimacy of government was involved. The British court decided that as there is no peace treaty with Japan, Formosa is still part of the Japanese empire. This is, of course, a retreat into pure legalism, unrelated to the facts of the situation. Furthermore, it makes the British position illogical, for if there is no legitimacy to the Nationalist government in Formosa, what possible legitimacy can there be to the Communist regime in Peking?

In the case of "USA V. Yang Soon EE" in the Singapore court, the chief justice said:

"It is clear that the central peoples government and the Peoples Republic in China is recognized both de facto and de jure as the only government in China. The ship is registered in Formosa which is legally part of the Japanese empire and not apparently de facto under the control of the Communist government in China."

If this is true, why is not Korea

Dangerous Corner Ahead

BERLIN.

THIS tragic but brave city is the best place to think about the projected conference of the Big Big Four Foreign Ministers. In Washington, they worry about tactics. In Paris, the deputies wrangle about the agenda. But here in Berlin, you see all around you the human and material stakes in the desperate game the Soviets are playing.

In sum, these stakes add up to Germany. Germany nowadays is the key, both strategically and politically, of Western Europe. Hence this projected conference which in America seems so remote is likely to be as significant a turning point as the London meeting in 1946, that led the United States to adopt the policy of "patience and firmness."

To be sure, no one who surveys the scene from Berlin can possibly credit the rumor, so sedulously spread by the Kremlin, that the Soviets will take this occasion to offer the basis of a serious world settlement In pressing for the four power conference they have had much harder and more self-serving aims.

The first aim has been to delay decision on the vital matter of the German contribution to the defenses of the West. In this the Soviets have already triumphantly succeeded, gaining about six months' time thereby. The second aim is vastly more ambitious. The Soviets hope to use the conference itself to divide and disrupt the Western alliance for good and all.

Could Be Dangerous

The question is how Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky will seek to attain the planned objective. What is feared in Washington is of course well known. The American policy makers fear that Vishinsky will offer the unification of Germany on the basis of genuine free elections, in return for guaranties of German demilitarization and withdrawal of all occupation forces.

On the surface such an offer would be very attractive, especially to the Germans. For the Russians, it would mean the temporary loss of their profitable province in East Germany, where their stooge government would be snowed under in free voting. But for the Western allies this deal would mean the loss of the strategically vital central German position. Western rearmament would thus, at best, be appallingly hampered, and more probably would be permanently disrupted.

"Meanwhile the Russian armies would retreat only a few score miles from the German border. They would be as ready as ever to flow out again over a Germany left with no defense whatever, and a Western Europe exposed by the loss of the German glacis. Thus superficially, Washington fears (which are authoritatively reported to be shared by Chancellor Adenauer) would appear to be justified.

The Berlin signs suggest, moreover, that the Soviets have at least been playing with the idea of this whole gamble. At the Prague meeting, when the new Kremlin line of "German unity" was first announced some months ago, Vyascheslav Molotov not only rode rough-shod over the satellite Communists to make them agree to his draft declaration; there is also some evidence that Mototov called in the non-Communist so-called Foreign Minister of East Germany, George Dertinger, and gave him a little speech about the virtues of free elections.

Demilitarization Stressed

Since then, it is known that the Soviet Kommandatura has discreetly checked what the probable result of a free election in East Germany would be. And it is also known that the leaders of the East German government, foreseeing abandonment by their masters, had begun to be exceedingly concerned about their own future.

On the other side of the ledger, however, are three still more important items of evidence. First the Soviets have not only continued exploitation of the East German uranium mines of the Erzgebirge; they have also recently opened a large number of shafts producing very low quality ore. This suggests that the Erzgezirge resource is still vital to them and cannot be gambled with.

Second, Gromyko at Paris, contrary to the Prague line, has laid all his stress on German demilitarization rather than "German unity." Third, the East German leaders, Grotewohl, Ulbricht and Gerhard Eisler, have lately each gone out of the way to define "free elections" as the kind of transparent farce that would deceive nobody and receive no consideration at any four power meeting.

On balance, therefore, it appears more likely (although very far from certain) that the Soviets will avoid the great gamble with East Germany that has worried Washington. Unfortunately, however, there are other tactics, equally menacing, which are also open to the Kremlin. These require discussion in another report.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—America's moral force—the strongest influence that can be brought to bear to convince the Peron government in Argentina how vital freedom of the press is to the international standing of any nation—is being exerted to recover for "La Prensa," leading newspaper of Buenos Aires, the right to resume publication.

What Assistant Secretary Miller said recently has now been reaffirmed by the Secretary of State, Dean Acheson—namely, that the closing of "La Prensa" has had such an adverse impact on American public opinion that the United States Government now is limited in its ability to cooperate with the Argentine Government.

These are the polite and restrained phrases of diplomacy, but they convey a world of meaning. They are notice that the United States is not just fighting communism in Europe and Asia and shutting its eyes to fascism or totalitarianism in Latin America.

Opens Way To Danger

Once freedom of the press is abolished, the way is opened to the elimination of other liberties and soon a situation is developed which creates international danger. A nation that cares little for the preservation of internal liberties becomes unscrupulous next in international relations. That's the tragic course which dictatorship usually follows.

It is interesting to recall in this connection — for Argentina is a Catholic country—a pronouncement made in November, 1944, by the Catholic bishops of the United States. They discussed this very subject—when what seems to be an internal matter becomes a matter of external or international concern. The words of that pronouncement of a little more than six years ago fit the Argentine situation as explicitly as if they had been written today:

"The international organization must never violate the rightful sovereignty of nations. Sovereignty is a right which comes from the juridicial personality of a nation and which the international organization must safeguard and defend. However, national sovereignty may not be interpreted as absolving a nation from its obligations in the international community. Moreover even within the state, national sovereignty is limited by the innate rights of men and families. Since civil authority does not confer these God-given rights, it may not violate them.

"The ideology of a nation in its internal life is a concern of the international community. To reject this principle is tantamount to maintaining that the violation of the innate rights of men in a country by its own government has no relation to world peace. Just at this moment, in the interest of world peace, our nation is exerting itself to root out some ideologies which violate human rights in the countries we are liberating. We hold that if there is to be a genuine and lasting world peace, the international organization should demand as a condition of membership that every nation guarantee in law and respect in fact the innate rights of men, families, and minority groups in their civil and religious life.

Tyranny Menaces Peace

"Surely our generation should know that tyranny in any nation menaces world peace. A nation which refuses to accord to its own people the full enjoyment of innate human rights cannot be relied upon to cooperate in the international community for the maintenance of a peace which is based on the recognition of national freedom. Such a nation will pursue its own selfish international policies, while paying lip service to international cooperation."

The foregoing is a doctrine which, if it had been widely understood prior to 1939, might have prompted an international organization to examine the behavior of the Hitler government—then regarded, unfortunately, by too many countries as just an internal affair. But there was no strong international institution available at that time to take up the fight.

Today the United Nations, backed by world opinion, can examine the Argentine situation. Certainly a concerted step to withdraw am-

Fellowship Of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

WHAT THE CROSS DOES

And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him. Luke 23:33 (K. J. V.). Read Isaiah 53.

Erskine of Linlathen used to express his wonder at what he called "the dumbness of God." God would not speak. The heavens were brass. When he prayed, God never came back with an audible answer.

Was there ever a man of us who did not have a similar experience? We hoped, and dreamed, and wondered about God. We asked if he cared; whether he was a God of mercy, or whether he was a tyrant sitting on his throne, delighting in his children's misery.

But somehow at the Cross God's silence is broken. He speaks. He lets us see through the darkness. The veil of the temple is rent in twain, and we see behind the scene. We hear his voice cutting through the silence like the sweep of a sword-blade. When he speaks he tells, not of his austerity, justice, and majesty, but of his love, forgiveness, and renewal of life. One "shining hour" before the Cross is enough to save us from cynicism, fear, and despair.

Let Us Pray: O God, we would stand long enough before that strange Man hanging on his Cross until our hearts melt and we are cleansed from all anger, revenge and hate. Hasten the day when the nations will lose their warring natures in his redemptive love. Amen.

Witnesses And Contempt

Professed fear of self-incrimination could become a handy "out" for many reluctant witnesses before congressional investigating committees if the trend of recent court decisions holds up. Frank Panzino, official of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, who was acquitted of a contempt-of-Congress charge in federal court in Washington on March 16, had cited the Fifth Amendment guaranty against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts had ruled on February 5 that Harry Russell, Chicago and Miami Beach gambler, was within his rights in giving no answer to questions of the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee. Some of those asked Russell, Judge Letts said, were not pertinent. "Their relevance becomes apparent only when they are considered as links in a chain of questions which, taken together, would warrant a deduction of ultimate facts. The defendant had a right to so regard the questions. He was . . . privileged to remain mute."

Panzino's was the fifth acquittal in nine contempt-of-Congress trials in Washington this year. Two other UEW leaders convicted of contempt of Congress on February 26 had raised the issue of self-incrimination. But in those cases Judge Letts ruled the pleas defective.

The ruling of Judge Letts on February 26 was paralleled by a 5-to-3 Supreme Court ruling handed down on the same day. In upholding a jail sentence imposed on Mrs. Jane Rogers, former treasurer of the Communist party in Denver, Chief Justice Vinson said the defendant could not claim the self-incrimination privilige as "pure afterthought."

"Since the privilege against self-incrimination presupposes a real danger of legal detriment arising from the disclosure," Vinson said, the defendant could not "invoke the privilege where response to the specific question would not incriminate her."

However, the convictions of Patricia and Irving Blau, who were linked in the same lower court case with Mrs. Rogers, had been reversed by the Supreme Court in separate rulings in December, 1950, and January, 1951. The Blaus, the court ruled, had properly availed themselves of the constitutional privilege; i. e., in direct response to questions which might have elicited incriminating responses.

The law on rights of witnesses before congressional committees is still in the process of formation. After Frank Costello, racketeer, walked out of Kefauver Committee hearings in New York March 15, he was threatened with a citation for contempt. But Costello's attorney claimed that his client was suffering from laryngeal bronchitis. Former Mayor of New York William O'Dwyer, another bronchitis victim, had been allowed to postpone his appearance before the committee until he recovered sufficiently to make the journey from Mexico City.

Costello's attorney also complained of conditions at the hearing—"powerful, blinding Klieg lights . . . motion picture cameras . . . hordes of photographers." The Kefauver Committee had previously decided to ask the Senate to cite James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, for contempt in refusing to testify at a hearing on February 24 because he had a right to privacy that was violated by a television broadcast of the proceedings.

Happiness In Retirement

How to achieve happiness after retirement will be the object of a three-year study conducted by the New York Adult Education Council. By September it is expected to have funds enough to make a start with 100 men and women in their 40s and 50s, who will be volunteers as objects of experiment. Most of the money is expected to be contributed by industry and labor unions.

This project will go much further than trying to find avocations to prevent those in retirement from becoming introverts for lack of something to do. It begins with recognition by its head, Dr. Alonzo Meyers, chairman of the department of higher education at New York University, that "the income on which most employes retire is not enough to live on." Certainly happines is impossible without assured comfort.

The plan is to have 100 "scholarships" of $1,000 each for the three-year period, 60 of which will go to employes of companies and members of trade unions that have contributed, and the remaining 40 to white-collar workers, for whom the money will be sought from some foundation.

These 100 will get personal counsel from educators and discuss their problems in groups of 15 to 20. They will do their own planning, not accept ready-made formulae. But in addition to hobbies, personal interests, adult education and group affiliations, there will be one outstanding "must." That is to find means of supplemental income. Here is a need of which industry and other employers should have a new awareness.

Part-time use of aptitudes and skills of pensioners should be considered in the busy years ahead.

Vitality At Peak

A real task confronts the economists over the years in dealing with the effect upon the social order of a record low death rate at a time the population is increasing not by immigration, but by births within the country's confines. Last year showed the lowest death rate in the country's entire history of 9.6 per 1,000 population, compared to a previous all-time low in 1949 of 9.7 per 1,000. These are the figures formally announced by the National Office of Vital Statistics.

Thus of every 100 persons who saw either year dawn, 99 saw its close, an amazing fact that bespeaks ultimate increased longevity to an extent today unknown. These figures are the most accurate that can be had and are, generally speaking, dependable because in almost every community of every state deaths and their cause, when ascertainable, must be reported.

The NOVA is not on quite as sure ground when dealing with births because compulsory registration of births is not quite universal. Allowing for incomplete registration of births, this office estimates the babies born in 1950 at 3,699,000.

Infant mortality is sharply on the decline. Of live registered births in 1949 only 29.2 per 1,000 died in their first year in 1950, contrasted to 31.1 in 1949. There is no reason for surprise that more children were born in this country between 1945 and 1950 than in any other half-decade, the total being estimated, including the unregistered, at roughly 18,000,000.

What is surprising, however, is to learn that the general death rate decreased as much as 10 per cent between 1940 and 1950, and the infant death rate by 38 per cent. These decreases parallel a gain in medical knowledge, employment of new drugs and better sanitation, all of which played an important part.

Make Leisure Worthwhile

A VACATION is good medicine because it provides leisure and recreation. An ocean voyage has cured many peptic ulcers and a fishing trip in the north woods is an excellent preventive of a nervous breakdown. Spending the winter in Florida or California has added years to the lives of millions of our oldsters, especially those with heart disease or high blood pressure.

We do not wish to imply that going away will overcome all of our troubles. The nervous or emotionally disturbed who leave their cares and worries at the station or dock are improved only temporarily; on returning home they are bothered by the little gremlins all lined up ready to resume where they left off. In the circumstances, a vacation may make matters worse because when we run away from our problems they are twice as hard to lick on contacting them again. The only individuals who benefit are those who are nervous thru overwork. Rest obviously is the cure. Similar results cannot be expected when the person is perturbed because he has difficulty in adjusting to the situations of life.

But it is not necessary to go away to obtain leisure time. Most of us are able to set aside a few hours each day, free from labor or external compulsion. Some prefer to take it easy; others busy themselves in the garden or workshop or on the car. This may or may not be recreation and, in this respect, leisure time and recreation are not necessarily synonymous. There is no end to the ways in which we can occupy ourselves when not pursuing our daily job. Some profit more than others but from the health standpoint relaxation is essential. Not long ago a newspaper man was telling a carpenter that he enjoyed spending his spare hours at home in the basement making cabinets and bookcases and repairing this and that. The carpenter then said that when he got home in the evening he had fun writing stories on a secondhand typewriter he had purchased. Apparently we derive pleasure from doing things that differ from the regular routine.

There is a tendency nowadays to shorten working hours and increase leisure time. It has been said that a 40 hour week is the minimum; anything less reduces production and the physical state tends to staleness. More than 60 hours is too much, especially when sustained over a long period. Working under these conditions lessens efficiency and promotes chronic fatigue. Much depends upon the nature of the work, the pace, environment, capabilities of the worker, and his recuperative power.

We realize that articles galore have been written on the pros and cons of the concept that we should work less and play more. A sensible approach must be taken because persistent idleness usually leads to physical and mental deterioration to a greater degree than does overwork. We can have our cake and eat it too and in the future we hope that our schools will devote more time to teaching us how to live—that is, a schedule balanced between work and play.

To meet this, France has promised 10 divisions this year and England five for Europe and five for other parts of the British empire.

Ike's On Diet

One of the first things Ike did to speed work at his Allied headquarters in the Astoria Hotel in Paris was to abolish the typical two-to-three-hour Parisienne lunch. He did this by setting up a dining room at his headquarters and then putting an Englishman in charge of English foods so bad that the Allied officers spend only 30 minutes lunching.

Ike himself is dieting and gets a large plate of carrot salad put in front of him at lunch. Several months ago his doctor made Ike cut out smoking which meant that he began putting on weight, so now the doctor has not only put him on a diet but curtailed Ike to one evening cocktail per day.

Ike's chief personal problem, however, is not dieting but Mrs. Eisenhower's reluctance to return to Europe. During the long war years and during the period before them, when Ike was in the Philippines, the Eisenhower family never had a home of their own.

Finally, at Columbia, Mrs. Eisenhower revamped the president's mansion and had just got comfortably settled when her husband was yanked off to Europe. Naturally, Mrs. Ike wasn't enthusiastic although now she realizes the tremendous challenge facing him and she is almost beginning to like their poorly heated Paris apartment.

Step Toward Unifying Europe

Some significant trans-Atlantic haggling is taking place regarding what could be one of the most important by-products to emerge from European rearmament—namely, an educational program for Allied troops on why we oppose communism. If properly put across, this could be the first real step toward unifying Europe.

Some of Eisenhower's staff, realizing that several thousand troops would be on their hands in Germany with relatively nothing to do, proposed a troop indoctrination program similar to the historic "Why We Fight" films produced by Hollywood's Frank Capra during the war. They also proposed radio talks by Eisenhower to his troops on the reasons [illegible] Europe, together with the goals and ideals of democracy as against communism.

However, because this verges on things political, the State Department and the British got scared. State Department officials didn't like the Army barging into their field, while the British held up their hands in horror at any American propaganda going to their troops.

Trans-Atlantic wire-pulling is still continuing over what could be the most important phase of the entire rearmament program.

The State Of Formosa

IN the United States, we continue to debate whether we are to support Chiang Kai-shek's government in Formosa, or whether we shall bypass him and deal with the agents of guerrilla generals on the mainland or whether we shall recognize the Communist Mai Tze-tung.

The British have solved this problem to their disadvantage by prematurely recognizing the Chinese Communists, who, however, do not recognize the British. This might be amusing were it not so tragic in view of General Douglas MacArthur's stalemate in Korea, which is largely a result of this faulty British policy.

It is interesting, therefore, to have a look at the state of Formosa, an island which, by the Treaty of Shimonoseki in 1895, was ceded to Japan along with the Pescadores. The Japanese called the island Taiwan, a name which the Russians continue to use.

The defeat of Japan in 1945 left Formosa without government, and Nationalist China took over, housing large bodies of troops there. In their hunt for pro-Japanese natives, the Chinese behaved badly. When Chiang Kai-shek took over in 1949, he had the problem to face of establishing a government not only for the natives but for the enormous influx of refugee Chinese.

Meanwhile, the status of his government internationally became increasingly confused. According to the Cairo Declaration (November 26, 1943), Formosa was to be returned to China by the peace treaty with Japan. But there is no peace treaty with Japan. Also, while the United States and other countries and the United Nations recognize the Nationalist regime as the government of China, Great Britain and some other countries recognize the Soviet regime of Mao Tze-tung.

This question of legitimacy is very important in Asia. In the matter of Korea, for innstance, the Americans are embarrassed, perhaps disastrously, by the fact that Great Britain recognized that Chinese regime which is fighting us, while Great Britain is embarrassed by the obvious political necessity of voting in the United Nations with the United States and against Soviet China. General MacArthur emphasized this confusion in his "stalemate" statement.

Two cases have arisen in the British courts over this curious situation. In the matter of "Civil Air Transport, Inc. V. Chennault and others," decided in the Supreme Court of Hongkong, the legitimacy of government was involved. The British court decided that as there is no peace treaty with Japan, Formosa is still part of the Japanese empire. This is, of course, a retreat into pure legalism, unrelated to the facts of the situation. Furthermore, it makes the British position illogical, for if there is no legitimacy to the Nationalist government in Formosa, what possible legitimacy can there be to the Communist regime in Peking?

In the case of "USA V. Yang Soon EE" in the Singapore court, the chief justice said:

"It is clear that the central peoples government and the Peoples Republic in China is recognized both de facto and de jure as the only government in China. The ship is registered in Formosa which is legally part of the Japanese empire and not apparently de facto under the control of the Communist government in China."

If this is true, why is not Korea

Dangerous Corner Ahead

BERLIN.

THIS tragic but brave city is the best place to think about the projected conference of the Big Big Four Foreign Ministers. In Washington, they worry about tactics. In Paris, the deputies wrangle about the agenda. But here in Berlin, you see all around you the human and material stakes in the desperate game the Soviets are playing.

In sum, these stakes add up to Germany. Germany nowadays is the key, both strategically and politically, of Western Europe. Hence this projected conference which in America seems so remote is likely to be as significant a turning point as the London meeting in 1946, that led the United States to adopt the policy of "patience and firmness."

To be sure, no one who surveys the scene from Berlin can possibly credit the rumor, so sedulously spread by the Kremlin, that the Soviets will take this occasion to offer the basis of a serious world settlement In pressing for the four power conference they have had much harder and more self-serving aims.

The first aim has been to delay decision on the vital matter of the German contribution to the defenses of the West. In this the Soviets have already triumphantly succeeded, gaining about six months' time thereby. The second aim is vastly more ambitious. The Soviets hope to use the conference itself to divide and disrupt the Western alliance for good and all.

Could Be Dangerous

The question is how Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky will seek to attain the planned objective. What is feared in Washington is of course well known. The American policy makers fear that Vishinsky will offer the unification of Germany on the basis of genuine free elections, in return for guaranties of German demilitarization and withdrawal of all occupation forces.

On the surface such an offer would be very attractive, especially to the Germans. For the Russians, it would mean the temporary loss of their profitable province in East Germany, where their stooge government would be snowed under in free voting. But for the Western allies this deal would mean the loss of the strategically vital central German position. Western rearmament would thus, at best, be appallingly hampered, and more probably would be permanently disrupted.

"Meanwhile the Russian armies would retreat only a few score miles from the German border. They would be as ready as ever to flow out again over a Germany left with no defense whatever, and a Western Europe exposed by the loss of the German glacis. Thus superficially, Washington fears (which are authoritatively reported to be shared by Chancellor Adenauer) would appear to be justified.

The Berlin signs suggest, moreover, that the Soviets have at least been playing with the idea of this whole gamble. At the Prague meeting, when the new Kremlin line of "German unity" was first announced some months ago, Vyascheslav Molotov not only rode rough-shod over the satellite Communists to make them agree to his draft declaration; there is also some evidence that Mototov called in the non-Communist so-called Foreign Minister of East Germany, George Dertinger, and gave him a little speech about the virtues of free elections.

Demilitarization Stressed

Since then, it is known that the Soviet Kommandatura has discreetly checked what the probable result of a free election in East Germany would be. And it is also known that the leaders of the East German government, foreseeing abandonment by their masters, had begun to be exceedingly concerned about their own future.

On the other side of the ledger, however, are three still more important items of evidence. First the Soviets have not only continued exploitation of the East German uranium mines of the Erzgebirge; they have also recently opened a large number of shafts producing very low quality ore. This suggests that the Erzgezirge resource is still vital to them and cannot be gambled with.

Second, Gromyko at Paris, contrary to the Prague line, has laid all his stress on German demilitarization rather than "German unity." Third, the East German leaders, Grotewohl, Ulbricht and Gerhard Eisler, have lately each gone out of the way to define "free elections" as the kind of transparent farce that would deceive nobody and receive no consideration at any four power meeting.

On balance, therefore, it appears more likely (although very far from certain) that the Soviets will avoid the great gamble with East Germany that has worried Washington. Unfortunately, however, there are other tactics, equally menacing, which are also open to the Kremlin. These require discussion in another report.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—America's moral force—the strongest influence that can be brought to bear to convince the Peron government in Argentina how vital freedom of the press is to the international standing of any nation—is being exerted to recover for "La Prensa," leading newspaper of Buenos Aires, the right to resume publication.

What Assistant Secretary Miller said recently has now been reaffirmed by the Secretary of State, Dean Acheson—namely, that the closing of "La Prensa" has had such an adverse impact on American public opinion that the United States Government now is limited in its ability to cooperate with the Argentine Government.

These are the polite and restrained phrases of diplomacy, but they convey a world of meaning. They are notice that the United States is not just fighting communism in Europe and Asia and shutting its eyes to fascism or totalitarianism in Latin America.

Opens Way To Danger

Once freedom of the press is abolished, the way is opened to the elimination of other liberties and soon a situation is developed which creates international danger. A nation that cares little for the preservation of internal liberties becomes unscrupulous next in international relations. That's the tragic course which dictatorship usually follows.

It is interesting to recall in this connection — for Argentina is a Catholic country—a pronouncement made in November, 1944, by the Catholic bishops of the United States. They discussed this very subject—when what seems to be an internal matter becomes a matter of external or international concern. The words of that pronouncement of a little more than six years ago fit the Argentine situation as explicitly as if they had been written today:

"The international organization must never violate the rightful sovereignty of nations. Sovereignty is a right which comes from the juridicial personality of a nation and which the international organization must safeguard and defend. However, national sovereignty may not be interpreted as absolving a nation from its obligations in the international community. Moreover even within the state, national sovereignty is limited by the innate rights of men and families. Since civil authority does not confer these God-given rights, it may not violate them.

"The ideology of a nation in its internal life is a concern of the international community. To reject this principle is tantamount to maintaining that the violation of the innate rights of men in a country by its own government has no relation to world peace. Just at this moment, in the interest of world peace, our nation is exerting itself to root out some ideologies which violate human rights in the countries we are liberating. We hold that if there is to be a genuine and lasting world peace, the international organization should demand as a condition of membership that every nation guarantee in law and respect in fact the innate rights of men, families, and minority groups in their civil and religious life.

Tyranny Menaces Peace

"Surely our generation should know that tyranny in any nation menaces world peace. A nation which refuses to accord to its own people the full enjoyment of innate human rights cannot be relied upon to cooperate in the international community for the maintenance of a peace which is based on the recognition of national freedom. Such a nation will pursue its own selfish international policies, while paying lip service to international cooperation."

The foregoing is a doctrine which, if it had been widely understood prior to 1939, might have prompted an international organization to examine the behavior of the Hitler government—then regarded, unfortunately, by too many countries as just an internal affair. But there was no strong international institution available at that time to take up the fight.

Today the United Nations, backed by world opinion, can examine the Argentine situation. Certainly a concerted step to withraw am-

Fellowship Of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

WHAT THE CROSS DOES

And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him. Luke 23:33 (K. J. V.). Read Isaiah 53.

Erskine of Linlathen used to express his wonder at what he called "the dumbness of God." God would not speak. The heavens were brass. When he prayed, God never came back with an audible answer.

Was there ever a man of us who did not have a similar experience? We hoped, and dreamed, and wondered about God. We asked if he cared; whether he was a God of mercy, or whether he was a tyrant sitting on his throne, delighting in his children's misery.

But somehow at the Cross God's silence is broken. He speaks. He lets us see through the darkness. The veil of the temple is rent in twain, and we see behind the scene. We hear his voice cutting through the silence like the sweep of a sword-blade. When he speaks he tells, not of his austerity, justice, and majesty, but of his love, forgiveness, and renewal of life. One "shining hour" before the Cross is enough to save us from cynicism, fear, and despair.

Let Us Pray: O God, we would stand long enough before that strange Man hanging on his Cross until our hearts melt and we are cleansed from all anger, revenge and hate. Hasten the day when the nations will lose their warring natures in his redemptive love.

Taft, Nixon Blast Report On Dixie Textile Industry

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An "amazing and unjustified slur" on the South—that's the way two Republican senators described a Senate Labor Subcommittee's majority report on the southern textile industry.

Sens. Taft (R-Ohio) and Nixon (R-Calif) called the document one-sided and "neither objective nor in any sense factual."

The majority report came out early this month. It charged that southern employers, businessmen and churches had conspired to destroy or block unionization of southern textile mills.

It also said manufacturers were quitting New England for the South mainly because of lower wake scales and the absence of organized labor in the mill areas.

In their minority report Taft and Nixon said publication of the majority document constitutes "an amazing and unjustified slur upon a great section of our country," and added:

"The fact is that employers in the southern textile industry do not differ greatly from employers in other parts of the country and southern employers in other industries."

The two senators said the subcommittee's inquiry appeared to have been inspired by the CIO textile workers union "because of its failure in its attempt to organize the majority of the employes in the southern textile industry."

As for the North-South wage differential, the minority document said:

"During World War II, the National War Labor Board held that wage differentials as between different parts of the country were sound and proper on the basis of social, economic and geographic factors."

Taft and Nixon asked:

"Is there, after all, any reason for forcing a cost on southern employers higher than is necessary to give the same standard of living in the South as prevails in the North?"

The majority's findings were based on case studies covering an American Enka Corporation plant at Morristown, Tenn.; the American Thread Company, Tallapoosa, Ga.; Anchor Rome Mills, Inc., Rome, Ga.; the Celanese Corporation plant at Rome, Ga.; and activities of a citizens committee at Anderson, S.C.

The Taft-Nixon report said the majority had presented "a distorted picture" of labor-management relations in the South, particularly in the textile industry.

"In the American Enka case," Taft and Nixon said, "photographs and testimony that was not denied showed that, not twice or three times but time after time, mobs of striking union members, living in three counties of East Tennessee, gathered at the plant gates at the same times and engaged in organized assaults on non-striking employes.

"Yet the majority report, insofar as it mentions these incidents at all, avoids any intimation that the union had any hand in organizing and directing the jobs or responsibility for what they did."

Taft and Nixon said that in the American Thread case, the majority report "describes in emotional terms" a "brutal" assault by one nonunion employe upon two union organizers after he had received many threats from union people. They added parenthetically that the majority failed to mention that the non-union worker had a broken arm.

"But in the American Enka case, the majority shows no sympathy whatsoever for a non-striking employe who was shot twice, and whose condition was critical, nor for a third non-striking employe who was shot once, all on the morning of June 22, 1950, as they came to work at the plant."

Taking note of majority criticism of the issuance of injunctions in the Anchor Rome Mills, American Enka and the Celanese Corporation cases, Taft and Nixon said:

"The picketing that was enjoined against in the cases the majority report cites went, in each instance, far beyond what any of these states and judges would tolerate, and those cases do not support legislation interfering with the power of the states to enjoin against disaster."

As for majority criticism of use of the National Guard in the American Enka case, Taft and Nixon cited incidents of violence and added:

"When workers wish to work and police — whether deputies, highway patrolmen, guardsmen or others — restrain pickets who seek through force and violence to keep them from working, there are those who always will say this is 'strikebreaking.' The question is simply one of whether or not the 'right to strike' includes also the right by these methods to destroy the equal right of others not to strike."

How To Beat Inflation

LA GRANGE, GA.

THE financial expert said the way to beat inflation was to buy a farm and have cows, bulls, and the products of the soil, so the missus and I started out last January to look for a ranch in the South. The ones she liked I didn't, since she was interested in houses, and I was seeking rolling, fertile fields. The upshot of the tour was I made a man an offer by telephone when I got back, and he took it, although he had told me positively he wouldn't consider a cent less than his price, and besides property was going up every week.

Well, a few days ago I came here to inspect my purchase and close up the deal, having already paid a deposit. I took the train to get a good night's sleep. A group of about five or six gents met me at the station, and I thought it was a reception committee, reflecting the civic enterprise of the town, but they turned out to be dealers in trucks, hay balers, feed, and other items for farms. The word had certainly gotten around fast, and I had heard there was a shortage. It was arranged with the boys to make a thorough inspection the next day. There was one young man who appealed to me, so I suggested we might have a drink before dinner.

"But this county is dry," he remarked.

"Oh, forget it then," I said. But he wouldn't take no for an answer, and we got into his truck and drove about two miles to a cottage which he entered after suggesting I stay aboard. It turned out he bought a pint of something marked "blended whiskey," and the whole procedure took me back to the good old days of prohibition. We stopped at his feed store which was closed for the day, and the second shot didn't taste so bad when mixed with a southern vintage called Coca Cola. Both being old soldiers, we got to talking about war, and he modestly admitted he had been General Patton's aide for a time.

"And there was one hell of a soldier," he said admiringly. "I imagine I can still feel the place in my back where he prodded me with his foot one day we were in the front lines. The Germans had opened up on us with machine guns from a house off a little to our right, and I suddenly felt tired and lay down in a ditch. I looked around, and the old man was standing up stright as an arrow, firing at the Heinies with his 45 automatic.

"'Hey Phil,' he hollered, 'where the hell are you?' Then he spotted me. 'Get up. What do you think you're doin'?' He emphasized his remark with his boot toe.

"'I'm dodgin' those bullets?' I answered.

"'What will the boys here think of you?'

"'They'll think I'm smart like they are. They're all down.' He just laughed and didn't say anything more, but he never took cover himself."

I asked him about the slapping incident in Sicily when he was supposed to have whacked a soldier in a hospital.

"He never hit him," insisted my companion. "I was standing as close to Patton as I am to you, and we were going through the place when there was an air raid. This boy was scared and struggling with some nurses to get out of bed, and the General just gave him a shove. Yeh, the old man sure was one hell of a soldier."

I discovered my friend had later joined the paratroopers and had made several combat jumps.

"I'd be too scared to go overboard," I said as I contemplated tumbling out into enemy territory.

"So was I the first time," he admitted, "but I got kicked out by a better man than I was, otherwise I would have loused up the whole show."

My room at the hotel was in the front on the second floor, and I got very little sleep, as there were trucks and automobiles going through it all night, and along toward five in the morning a couple of airplanes. By breakfast time, my enthusiasm had waned, and I was more interested in aspirin than tilling the soil, because by now the whole business began to seem like a headache.

With a cabinet of experts—salesmen, county agents, conservation guys, etc.—we went over the land, and I got plenty of suggestions. When we had finished, I was groggy from advice. I had heard about fertilizers, and various grasses like lespedeza, fescue, sericea, and kudzu until my head was spinning.

That night I made up my mind. Fortunately I knew a local friend who would take the place off my hands on the same terms. The first thing in the morning I called him up, before he could change his mind, and we made a deal. Then I went quietly to the airport without notifying the boys and flew back to Connecticut. To hell with inflation.

The word had certainly gotten around fast, and I had heard there was a shortage. It was arranged with the boys to make a thorough inspection the next day. There was one young man who appealed to me, so I suggested we might have a drink before dinner.

"But this county is dry," he remarked.

"Oh, forget it then," I said. But he wouldn't take no for an answer, and we got into his truck and drove about two miles to a cottage which he entered after suggesting I stay aboard. It turned out he bought a pint of something marked "blended whiskey," and the whole procedure took me back to the good old days of prohibition. We stopped at his feed store which was closed for the day, and the second shot didn't taste so bad when mixed with a southern vintage called Coca Cola. Both being old soldiers, we got to talking about war, and he modestly admitted he had been General Patton's aide for a time.

"And there was one hell of a soldier," he said admiringly. "I imagine I can still feel the place in my back where he prodded me with his foot one day we were in the front lines. The Germans had opened up on us with machine guns from a house off a little to our right, and I suddenly felt tired and lay down in a ditch. I looked around, and the old man was standing up stright as an arrow, firing at the Heinies with his 45 automatic.

"'Hey Phil,' he hollered, 'where the hell are you?' Then he spotted me. 'Get up. What do you think you're doin'?' He emphasized his remark with his boot toe.

"'I'm dodgin' those bullets?' I answered.

"'What will the boys here think of you?'

"'They'll think I'm smart like they are. They're all down.' He just laughed and didn't say anything more, but he never took cover himself."

I asked him about the slapping incident in Sicily when he was supposed to have whacked a soldier in a hospital.

"He never hit him," insisted my companion. "I was standing as close to Patton as I am to you, and we were going through the place when there was an air raid. This boy was scared and struggling with some nurses to get out of bed, and the General just gave him a shove. Yeh, the old man sure was one hell of a soldier."

I discovered my friend had later joined the paratroopers and had made several combat jumps.

"I'd be too scared to go overboard," I said as I contemplated tumbling out into enemy territory.

"So was I the first time," he admitted, "but I got kicked out by a better man than I was, otherwise I would have loused up the whole show."

My room at the hotel was in the front on the second floor, and I got very little sleep, as there were trucks and automobiles going through it all night, and along toward five in the morning a couple of airplanes. By breakfast time, my enthusiasm had waned, and I was more interested in aspirin than tilling the soil, because by now the whole business began to seem like a headache.

With a cabinet of experts—salesmen, county agents, conservation guys, etc.—we went over the land, and I got plenty of suggestions. When we had finished, I was groggy from advice. I had heard about fertilizers, and various grasses like lespedeza, fescue, sericea, and kudzu until my head was spinning.

That night I made up my mind. Fortunately I knew a local friend who would take the place off my hands on the same terms. The first thing in the morning I called him up, before he could change his mind, and we made a deal. Then I went quietly to the airport without notifying the boys and flew back to Connecticut. To hell with inflation.

IF YOU'RE IN THE MOOD TO CAUSE A FURORE YOU MIGHT GIVE SOME OF THE FRENCH FASHIONS A WHIRL

By FLORENCE MILLS
AP Newsfeatures

PARIS — Some highly sensational fashions have been shown in Paris this spring, especially in the accessory field, but you have to have a lot of pluck to venture out in public with them.

There's a suit by Alwynn, for example, that has the strictly tailored jacket worn back to front. High placed lapels and buttons set in double-breasted formation are there, but you only see them from back view.

Then Schiaparelli is showing a black tulle evening dress with a sort of Moses basket attachment, edged with stiff pleated frilling, jutting out from the back of the shoulders.

It's a natural for a spectacular entrance but once that's over it might tempt an onlooker to use it as a deposit for cigarette ashes.

Or how does purple or green straw hair strike you? It's lacquered to match the color of your topcoat coat, braided at the back, then coiled into two enormous "earphones," remimiscent of the hair styles worn so much in the Twenties.

If you don't mind being as blind as a bat and looking like a hangman at work, then mask your face and head completely with two or three layers of black chiffon to match your cocktail ensemble. Balenciaga, the Spanish designer, does this and crowns the whole effect with a "cabbage" hat made of stiffened chiffon leaves.

According to Schiaparelli, all you have to do is to add a little dash to that ordinary looking dress is to fix yourself up with a pair of pink satin garters, worn around your calves so that they show beguilingly (you hope) every time your skirt sways out from your legs.

If you feel a little chilly in your summer dress, you can just lift up the skirt and wrap it around your shoulders, according to this designer. She introduces a number in caramel colored taffeta which has arm-slits cut near the bottom of the hem of its fan-pleated skirt. The whole business is quite respectable, for a plain sheath in the same material is worn beneath it.

You can put your feet in the limelight by trimming your plain black pumps with big orange flowers or attract attention to your corns by going barefooted and wearing a colossal amethyst ring on your middle toe.

Dye your pet dog purple, or any other non-canine color, and carry him under your arm in order to complete the color scheme of your ensemble. Make a handbag out of a cigar box with a gaudy label—or wear evening gloves that merge into ground length panels.

Become a hula-hula girl and wear a huge wreath of flowers round your neck the way they wear them in Hawaii. A Paris version of this type of wreath is made entirely of yellow chiffon daffodils to match its accompanying dress.

If you get tired of covering your chignon with flowers or ribbon, just string half a dozen lemons together and use those instead.

If your're the type that likes a walking stick to support you, choose one of the new, extra tall types that reach the waist. You can have a purse built into the top—or a monocle, released by a secret catch.

There's no knowing what people will say if you adopt any of these ideas but at least you can rest assured that the Priests of High Fashion are all on your side.

Use It Anywhere!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

SPROBABLY too soon to say. . . . But Majority Leader McFarland aims at August first for the adjournment of the Senate this year. . . Many of his colleagues, though, expect to stay right through summer with international and investigation sitches being what they are.

AUSTINE

Mink breeders think they'll bring suit against the United States Government—namely, the Agriculture Dept. . . . Innocently, hundreds of mink breeders fed their beasties with chicken heads from fowls that had been fed a new "Miracle' drug (which the Agriculture Dept. had informed chicken growers would prevent a disease called "black-head" in their birds). . . . But horrors! The mink breeders found that the feeding of such chicken heads made the male minks unfit for papahood.

Now the irate mink breeders are fuming that something must be done by the Agriculture Dept. or the U. S. government to allow them to recoup their losses!

Republican congressmen swear the voters also will "Think of mink" come next election —That $10,000 mink coat!

The coat appears in sworn testimony as having been received by a White House secretary, wife of the former RFC official Mr. Merl Young. . . The mink supposedly was paid for by a D. C. lawyer who handled RFC applications. . . In the voter's mind that mink coat has already become a symbol—a symbol of the influence, the seeking and bestowing of favors, which has obviously been going on in the Royal White House Court.

Congressman Shafer, a balding battler from Battle Creek, Michigan, not long ago reminded me of the history of this federal-lending agency:

"The RFC was established by Congress in 1932 during the last year of President Hoover's administration. It was intended as a temporary expediency, made necessary during the world-wide depression when normal sources of risk money to stimulate and sustain industry and commerce were dried up. "At the time, President Hoover pointed out that it was not the proper business of the government to make loans to the public."

As it now operates, RFC uses your taxpayer dollar to make low-interest rate loans, that's sort of unfair competition with private banks—and right now the banks are looking for business. When RFC selects certain private firms to become the "beneficiaries" it gives these firms unfair advantage over competitors who can't get those low rate RFC loans.

Chunky, plain, hard-working Hoosier Representative Wilson tongue-in-cheeks about Merl Young, accused of RFChicanery:

"Mr. Young has been trying to convince a Senate committee that he rose from one thousand a year salary to sixty-thousand a year salary by sheer application of his talent and time—a true modern day Horatio Alger hero!

You probably have heard that RFC stands for "Real Fat Cat."

RITTER-TITTERS

Thelma Ritter who completely stole the movie, "The Mating Season," tittering with Georgia Neese Clark, the United States Treasurer. . . Close friends of long standing, the two of them went to dramatic school together—longer ago than either cares to admit!

SMARTEST ARTISTS

There may be painters of fish —and even fish that paint—but so far; Washington has never had the joint exhibition of a husband and wife painting team. . You might call theirs a "One Man-One-Woman Show". . . Perhaps, not as many folk as have flocked to the National Gallery to see the sizeable Kress collection of paintings, but still a good turnout of art critics, prospective buyers and admiring friends should fill the little New Georgetown Gallery next Sunday when the exhibition opens.

Tall, alert, pert, pretty Rosalind Rust Tolman and her equally tall, talented and attractive husband, Eads, practically began painting together on their honeymoon.

Now they'll show—and they hope, sell—some 30 or 40 of their paintings. . . Pastel's his medium. . . "Gouache" hers.

On the second floor of their Georgetown home, Roz and Eads work side by side, utterly silent and absorbed, for hours on end, most week ends. . ."While working, no conversation," she says. "The advantage of having a husband who paints, is that he can criticize constructively. We know each other so thoroughly that we can encourage each other to do more and better creative work."

Their adorable baby has been put to work, too. . . "He makes a wonderful model!" said his young mother, enthusiastically.

FOY JOY

After waiting seven months, a bundle of joy rides—a factory fresh, gleaming Rolls Royce, for $15,000 —was delivered to exquisitely dressed, fascinating Chrysler heiress, Thelma Foy. . . The British-made car was docked in New York and driven to her door by Washington foreign car dealer, Jack Pry. . . Lacking a portable bar, leopard upholstery, and a private telephone, which some of the flashier American custom-builts display, the sleek, streamlined, new town car of sleek, streamlined Mrs. Foy is still handsome enough to draw a drooling crowd any time!

Use these two Powers Girl tricks to repair small grooming accidents that mar perfect appearances!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

EVERY exquisitely-groomed woman who wishes to maintain her reputation for always looking lovely learns all the tricks she can for repairing grooming accidents. A last-minute chip in your nail polish or a wisp of unruly hair can be as detracting from an otherwise perfect appearance as a dent in the fender of a new car—and you know how that catches the eye of any man.

Those all-too-common grooming tragedies can be repaired quickly and slickly if you just take these Powers Girl tips:

Controlling Unruly Wisps

For tress distress, keep a supply of the new spray-on hair dressings on hand. Be sure to select a type that will keep your hair in place without making it look stiff or unnatural. Then learn how to use it. If you practice this way, you will perfect your skill.

After arranging your hair to perfection in your favorite style, release the spray cap. Do not hold the spray too close or you will saturate one spot instead of misting your entire coiffure. Move the spray around your head systematically to dampen the whole surface evenly. While it's still moist, press the waves firmly in place with your fingers and smooth your curls.

When you are satisfied with the general effect, attack the particulars — those pesky back ends. Wet a piece of cotton with the spray. Press the cotton against your hairline at the side-back, and using the same pressure, move across to the other side. When you have finished, double check to make sure you have not disarranged any part of your coiffure that hangs below your back hairline.

Manicure Mishap

Now for the Powers Girl one-minute chip repair: Use your lipstick! Select one from your stock that matches your polish. Using a lipstick brush, apply the lipstick in a heavy opaque coat over the chip. Being careful not to disturb this layer, immediately brush over it and the entire nail a generous coat of clear, quick-dying polish.

In seconds the job will be done and dry. Don't worry about its not lasting! It will; and until your next manicure!

Too Little For Too Many Snags Communist China's Land Reform

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG, (AP)—The Chinese Communists, plans for dividing up the nation's land are well adcanved—but even the Reds themselves admit the going is rough.

The land division promise was one of the biggest planks in the Chinese Reds' platform when they were struggling for power. The Communists contended that too much farmland was owned by big landlords and that too few peasants tilled their own land.

Land reform promises were nothing new to the Chinese. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government made frequent announcements along this line but never acted. Critics of the Nationalists often charged that landlords controlled Chiang's government.

Most neutral observers felt that land reform was needed in China, but that it would be no cure-all for the country's trouble—which was too many people and too little land.

Information about the Communist land program is sketchy. Impartial observers aren't allowed to make first-hand inspection.

From here, however, it appears that in some areas the land has been divided up with fair success. In several areas the division was achieved by sheer force and terror, and is still resisted. In others, the opposition was so great the Reds called it off and delayed the whole program for a year or two. There are some localities where the Communists haven't gotten around to starting it yet.

Opposition by landlords took many forms. Sometimes it was broken up by firing squads. Thousands of landlords fled China. Hong Kong is full of them. Many who stayed at home are opposing the Communist program as guerrillas.

Many small landlords, fearful of the approaching land division, sold their livestock and farm equipment, cut down wood lots and disposed of their household goods. When the Red officials arrived they found a barren countryside.

Most of China's landlords were little ones, despite Communist propaganda. The industrious little farmer took a dim view of dividing with his less energetic neighbor.

The most puzzling reaction is the fierce tenant-farmer resistance to the program in some sections, notably in South China.

Why should the tenant-farmer, who owns no land and pays rent to a landlord, resist redistribution?

Here is the answer from one of China's elder statesmen; a man who had served in almost every phase of the Nationalist government for half a century:

"You must remember that the Chinese land system is a product of evolution over the centuries, and for all its evils it represents an effort to meet the situation of too little land for too many people.

"It is based on paternalism. The landless peasant has a stake in it as well as the rich landlord. In a bad season the landlord scaled down the rent, and when taxes got heavy the landlord paid the larger share and sometimes all of them.

"At births and deaths and weddings, the landlords was expected to produce substantial gifts, and he did. In times of famine the peasant turned to the landlord, who usually had some food stored away.

"The Reds aren't the first to try land reform. Several dynasties tried it, and some of their attempts were very similar to that being tried by the Reds today, but none of them worked.

"Now, the Reds promise the peasant land of his own. It usually is not quite enough. The peasant knows that he then must pay taxes, in good years and bad.

"Chances are the peasant has at least one son in the Red army, so he is told he must pay special levy of rice to support his army son.

"He sees innumerable Communist officials all over the country ,and he knows that the people who own land must feed them. The peasant, in some areas at least, simply decides he has more to lose than to gain.

"I think that China needs land reform. But the Reds are going too far. They won't compromise to meet circumstances.

"They aim to make the peasant prosperous if they have to stick a bayonet in him."

Art And Not Legs Stressed By Current Miss America

MOBILE, Ala.—(AP)—The current Miss America is stressing art, not legs, and refusing to "parade around in a bathing suit for any amount of money."

Yolande Betbeze, 22-year-old brunette whose 119 pounds are distributed in near perfect proportions, said that "the leg shows were all right back in the early 1920s when the Atlantic City pageant started.

"But the public now has a greater sense of values. There's a growth in culture and a greater appreciation for the girl who has talent along with physical beauty."

She gave her views in an interview following refusal to go on a bathing suit tour for Catalina, Inc., longtime supporter of the Miss America contest.

Coloratura soprano, Miss Betbeze will sing the role of Olympia, beautiful mechanical doll, in a Mobile Guild production of "Tales of Hoffman" next week.

As for live dolls, commented Miss Betbeze, you can find them "on any bathing beach or in any of the hundreds of beauty contests held throughout the country."

Russia Never Will Have Political System Like U. S., Expert Declares

NEW YORK—(AP)—Americans are justified in hoping the Russian people some day may throw off the Bolshevik yoke, even without world war. But Americans must not expect that the Russians ever will have a political system similar to that of the United States.

This appraisal comes today from George F. Kennan, former State Department counselor. A leading U. S. expert on Soviet affairs, Kennan says any anti-Bolshevik revolution should not be hampered by preconceived Western notions. He urges the U.S. to strive to keep its own house in order, to light the way to freedom by its own example.

Kennan writes in Foreign Affairs, a quarterly review:

"No iron curtain could suppress, even in the innermost depths of Siberia, the news that America had shed the shackles of disunity, confusion and doubt and had taken a new lease of hope and determination, and was setting about her tasks with enthusiasm and clarity of purpose."

Kennan is the "Mr. X" who won fame in 1947 as the architect of the U.S. policy of containment of Soviet aggression. He left the State Department last August on leave to join Princeton University's Institute of Advanced Study.

Americans, he says, must not expect "a capitalistic and liberal-democratic" Russia with institutions closely resembling American ones. Conceding that the form of the future Russian state after Bolshevism is a matter of concern to the West, he adds that Americans need not be concerned about the form of government if it keeps "within certain well-defined limits beyond which lies totalitarianism."

The Americans must remember, he says, that the Russians even before Bolshevik power never knew private enterprise as it is known in the U.S. In a new Russia, for instance, collective farms might remain and become a valuable form of enterprise, on a voluntary rather than compulsory basis.

"The forced collectivization of the farming population is probably today the greatest single cause of discontent in the Soviet Union, except possibly the excessive cruelty of the police, with which it is intimately connected."

In anticipation of the day of Bolshevism's end, Kennan says Americans should prepare themselves with a clear idea of the Russia they hope to see. If the future Russia is to live in peace with the West this is what should be hoped for:

"That she lift forever the iron curtain, that she recognize certain limitations to the internal authority of government; that she abandon as ruinous and unworthy the ancient game of imperialist expansion and oppression.

"If she is not prepared to do these things she will hardly be distinguishable from what we have before us today, and to hasten the arrival of such a Russia would not be worth the care or thought of a single American.

"If she is prepared to do these things x x x the basic demands of a more stable world order will then have been met." x x x.

If war with the Bolshevik power should come, Kennan says, Americans should avoid unrealistic slogans and bend their efforts to giving the Russian people the impression that "we are on their side and that our victory, if it comes, will be used to provide them with a chance to shape their own destiny in the future to a pattern happier than

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG, (AP)—The Chinese Communists, plans for dividing up the nation's land are well adcanved—but even the Reds themselves admit the going is rough.

The land division promise was one of the biggest planks in the Chinese Reds' platform when they were struggling for power. The Communists contended that too much farmland was owned by big landlords and that too few peasants tilled their own land.

Land reform promises were nothing new to the Chinese. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government made frequent announcements along this line but never acted. Critics of the Nationalists often charged that landlords controlled Chiang's government.

Burma Eyes New Link To Britain As Ills Pile Up

By DOUGLAS LACKERSTEEN

RANGOON.—(AP)—If they had a free choice, 90 per cent of the Burmese would vote for a return to the British commonwealth, but first, said an authoritative source, there must be a change in government.

A new government, shorn of its socialist influence, would seriously consider reforging links with the commonwealth, veteran Burmese Politician U Ba Pe said in an interview, provided Burmese independence is guarantee.

Associated with this country's administration for more than 40 years, Ba Pe helped mould the anti-fascist People's Freedom League which accepted transfer of power from Britain in 1948. He was adviser to assassinated Prime Minister Aung San during independence negotiations with the British cabinet.

Now 68, he and a group of older politicians hope to make a comeback to power if and when independent Burma holds its first general elections.

Other responsible Burmans share Ba Pe's opinion the Burmere made a mistake in severing political ties with Britain.

One of these, U Chit Hlaing, former speaker in the Burmese parliament, told reporters Burmese independence came too soon. He said the sudden change in status upset the country's economy and gave rise to "all kinds of troubles."

Chit Hlaing disclosed he had been in communication with members of the British Labor Party who suggested Burma should rejoin the Commonwealth and guaranteed the country's independence will stand intact.

Another old timer, 67-year-old Ba Dun, said Burma lost more than it gained by trading security for independence. In an interview, he said it "would be advantageous for Burma to get back to the Commonwealth in these troublesome times."

Ba Dun, secretary of the prewar legislative assembly, said he would vote for a return to the Commonwealth if he had the chance.

Neutral observers betray no surprise at this swing in Burmese feelings. They assert it is a natural reaction to first elation over independence.

When Burma's five-star tri-color replaced Britain's Union Jack on Jan. 4, 1948, the Burmese anticipated a future as rosy as the breaking dawn.

They were a free people after 122 years' serviture and saw in independence an opportunity for nation-building enterprises.

Fractricidal war breaking out three months after independence cut short their hopes.

Dad Uses Binoculars To Watch His Tiny Son In Hospital Nursery

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—A baby so small his daddy uses a pair of binoculars to look at him is in the Indianapolis Methodist Hospital.

The tiny child is William John Cherry. The nurses call him "Pee Wee," "Peanut," and "Mr. Bill."

"Mr. Bill" checked in at the hospital Feb. 24 weighing one pound, 15 ounces. He is now up to a weighty two pounds, eight ounces.

He is usually kept in a corner of the nursery, some distance from the observation window, and that's why his father, William R. Cherry, looks at him through the binoculars.

When he was born, the odds on "Mr. Bill" making the grade were one in ten. Now they are lengthening.

The bravery of the little fellow's mother gave him his chance.

Two and half months before his scheduled arrival his mother developed a toxemia condition.

Doctors advised that the baby would have to be delivered immediately by Caesarean section but, because of the effect on "Mr. Bill," a general anesthetic could not be given.

She underwent the operation with only local shots of novacaine.

Dad Uses Binoculars To Watch His Tiny Son In Hospital Nursery

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—A baby so small his daddy uses a pair of binoculars to look at him is in the Indianapolis Methodist Hospital.

The tiny child is William John Cherry. The nurses call him "Pee Wee," "Peanut," and "Mr. Bill."

"Mr. Bill" checked in at the hospital Feb. 24 weighing one pound, 15 ounces. He is now up to a weighty two pounds, eight ounces.

He is usually kept in a corner of the nursery, some distance from the observation window, and that's why his father, William R. Cherry, looks at him through the binoculars.

When he was born, the odds on "Mr. Bill" making the grade were one in ten. Now they are lengthening.

The bravery of the little fellow's mother gave him his chance.

Two and half months before his scheduled arrival his mother developed a toxemia condition.

Doctors advised that the baby would have to be delivered immediately by Caesarean section but, because of the effect on "Mr. Bill," a general anesthetic could not be given.

She underwent the operation with only local shots of novacaine.

Work On Dial Phone Project In Oakland Will Start Soon

The C. and P. Telephone Company announced yesterday the start of preliminary work for the conversion to a dial system at Oakland.

Richard E. Harman, local manager, said two Oakland crews and three additional crews totaling 16 men are spinning the Deep Creek cable between Oakland and Sand Flat. Open wire is being set up between Accident and Friendsville, he added.

Installation and rewiring work at Oakland will begin next week, Harman said, but the main part of the program will not be undertaken until summer.

A new building is to be constructed at Oakland.

Harman estimated that actual dial operations would not begin until 1952.

The present work is concerned with engineering, planning and conversion records, Harman said adding that when the project is completed it will affect 1,500 stations or phones.

Harman explained that the Oakland office is operating at capacity and something had to be done. The shift to dial will be the result.

Father Held On Morals Charges

James Leroy Crissey, 27, RFD 3, Bedford, Pa., waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles J. Harrison Jr., or Somerset yesterday on four morals charges.

Crissey posted a bond for $2,000 and will enter a plea before Judge Thomas Landsberry in the Somerset County Court on April 9. He had been accused of indecent exposure and displaying lewd pictures to at least seven children.

The 27-year-old father of two children was arrested here Tuesday by Pennsylvania State Police.

Police said Crissey accosted several young girls on the streets in Somerset Sunday. He was tentatively identified through a license number taken by one of the girls, traced to Bedford county and later to Cumberland where he was reported to have been living with his mother.

After he admitted accosting the girls, authorities said, Crissey was taken to Allegany County Circuit Court to waive extradition.

In a written statement, Crissey said he was visiting in Somerset over the weekend and had been drinking before approaching the girls.

State Police said seven children reported being approached by a man operating an automobile.

Caswell To Head Elks Lodge Here

George A. Caswell was elected exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks Wednesday night at an election and initiatory meeting.

He succeeds Walter A. Fraley, Jr., who becomes a member of the Board of Trustees for five years. Other elected officers are Earl M. Nonnenmann, esteemed leading knight; Joseph F. Stakem, esteemed loyal knight; John M. Robb, esteemed lecturing knight; Edgar A. Dashiell, treasurer; and James E. Yarnall, secretary. A chaplain is to be appointed.

A class initiated Wednesday night was in honor of Yarnall who on April 1 begins his 18th year in that office. The lodge, by resolution, paid tribute to his years of service and voted him an honorary life membership.

Past Exalted Ruler J. Douglas Heron conducted the initiation, filling all the chairs in a novel ceremony. Heron's feat will be remembered in a scroll which the lodge ordered prepared for presentation to him.

A number of guests from Frostburg, Frederick and Washington, D. C., attended. A shrimp feast followed.

County To Receive Surplus Seats From Nation's Capitol

Through the efforts of Rep. J. Glenn Beall the county will acquire between 75 and 100 mahogany chairs with leather seats which had been used in the House of Represenetatives' chamber in the nation's capital.

The chairs are surplus due to the remodeling and refurnishing of the chambers by the federal government. A truck was sent to Washington yesterday to pick up the chairs.

While on a trip to Baltimore two weeks ago to confer with the State Roads Commission, members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners went over to Washington to meet with Rep. Beall. It was at this time that arrangements were made to obtain the chairs.

The county commissioners said the chairs will be used in the grand jury room and auxiliary court room at the Court House.

While no exact price was set for the chairs, it is known that the cost will be nominal. Both judges of Circuit Court requested previously that chairs in the two rooms at the Court House be replaced due to their dilapidated condition.

CHARLIE'S HIS (OR HER?) NAME

"Hm-m-m, must one stand on his head to look through these?"

"Yes, thank you . . . I'll have one."

"Gosh, Monday seems to come every week."

FALLING OUT OF A NEST during a storm has led Charlie from a normal world of fellow crows to one of association with human beings. More specifically, his mishap led to his becoming the household pet of Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Conlon of San Antonio, Tex. Charlie has picked up a vocabulary consisting of "hello" and "mama," but the Conlons never have been sure whether their pet is "he" or "she" and on that subject Charlie remains silent. (International)

Phone Company Will Conserve Vital Materials

Steps being taken by telephone companies to conserve vital defense materials through the use of new equipment were discussed by Sidney C. Miller, of the Baltimore office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company Wednesday night.

Miller addressed members of the Engineers Club of Cumberland and described the use of finer gauge wire and the derivation of more long distance circuits through the application of recently developed carrier systems.

Such systems, which are similar to radio systems operated over conventional long distance cables, may be used to increase the number of inter-city circuits with the minimum use of copper, now in short supply.

Growth of television broadcasting in the Baltimore-Washington, D. C., area was also discussed. The telephone company's techniques of furnishing inter-city circuits for network broadcasting as well as circuits between radio studios and remote television transmitters were described and illustrated with slides. Structures and apparatus used to relay systems by means of microwave radio transmitters and receivers were described in detail.

Miller indicated that Bell System facilities for television broadcasting are scheduled to be extended to the west coast during this year and that the same service would be available to Atlanta, Ga., in the near future.

Moose Member Honored

Robert (Bob) Snyder, member of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, was given a farewell party Wednesday night at the Moose Home by the lodge's "Toonerville Band." Snyder will leave Cumberland about April 1 to accept a position in the District Membership Department of the Loyal Order of Moose. Although his headquarters will be in Pittsburgh, Pa., his first assignment to promote membership will be at Lorain, Ohio. In the picture, Snyder, at the right, is shown receiving two leather bags from Lonnie Jackson, center, governor of Lodge No. 271, and another gift from Charles Pettie, on behalf of the "Toonerville Band."

Texas Native

Fletcher is a native of Grand Saline, Tex., where he was born in 1901. After graduation from high school there he entered Wesley College in Greenville, Tex., to study for the ministry. At the end of his second year in college he decided to forsake theology for sociology. He was principal of Knights of Pythias School at Wetherford, Tex., for three years. Later he was principal of the State Home for Dependent Children at Corsicana, Tex., from which he resigned in 1936 to accept a position as assistant superintendent of the State School for Boys, Warwick, N. Y., remaining there until coming to Lock Raven as superintendent in 1945.

The superintendent reports that Allegany county now has 12 boys in the institution which he directs. There are 13 others out on placement.

"We have always enjoyed a splendid relationship with your county," Fletcher has written here. "It has been easy to work with your people as they have been most cooperative. I am really looking forward to my few days in and around Cumberland."

City Workers

believes the police and firemen deserve additional pay since they work on a six-day week and must work holidays. He said that on an hourly basis, their pay is less than 75 cents an hour.

The Allegany county delegation did an about-face on its previous refusal to grant city police and firemen wage boosts and yesterday voted a $12 per-month across the board salary increase for members of the two departments.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357, for the firemen, and 359, for the police, calling for pay increases were given approval at a discussion by the delegates.

The delegation, See said, presented an unfavorable report on the bill increasing the sick leave and vacation time of the police and firemen.

Last Thursday, the majority of the delegation voted against giving any wage increases to the police and firemen, saying that the boost would make the city tax burden prohibitive.

Delegate See at that time also said that the bills were turned down because the delegation did not see why the police and firemen were singled out for raises. It felt that if any raise were to be given, all municipal employes should benefit.

No reason was advanced for the change of heart.

Tax Bill Introduced

Delegate See said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not request the legislation.

The delegation introduced today with a favorable report a bill enabling the city to increase Cumberland's taxing power for operating expenses by five cents. This measure was approved last week.

Delegate See also reported that a favorable report was given to the Bowling Green special taxing area bill. It will be introduced with five amendments, mostly clarification of wording.

The bill provides for a referendum on the plan to finance street lights and fire hydrants in the McMullen Highway community.

Delegate See said the bill has been amended to allow residents of that area who are qualified to vote in a state or county election to participate in the referendum. The original measure only made property owners eligible.

License Deadline Extension Seen

About 8,500 sets of automobile license plates have been sold at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat in the Court House, but he still has about 1,500 sets available for purchasers.

Treat's office, like all others in the Court House, will be closed all day today but will be open from 9 a. m. until noon tomorrow. He is expecting another shipment of plates soon.

Meanwhile. State Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd said yesterday in Baltimore that he will seek an extension of the March 31 deadline for Maryland auto license plates. A shortage of steel, he said, has thrown production of the new plates behind schedule.

Normally, vehicles could not be operated legally beyond the deadline without the new white-on-black tags.

Mudd said he will ask Governor McKeldin next week for permission to extend the March 31 limit. He did not indicate how long an extension would be requested.

Both Wednesday and yesterday, Treat's office disposed of exactly 414 sets of plates, keeping the average for the week well above the 400-daily level.

Treat said yesterday that he also will have license plates for farmers' trucks and privately-owned and operated trucks with a weight of 5,000 pounds or less, probably early in April. The deadline for truck plates is April 30.

Two Occupancy Permits Granted

Two occupancy and one building permit were issued this week by Albert S. Paye, city building engineer.

George R. McGee, this city, was granted permission to use 122 West Second Street as a wholesale and retail produce market.

The property, formerly used as a service station, is located in a Residential B district.

Charles Heavner, Wiley Ford, was granted permission to use a lot adjacent to 140 Harrison Street, as a parking lot and car washing stand. The property, formerly used for the same purpose, is in an industrial zoning district.

Leroy Miller, 430 Laing Avenue was issued a permit to enclose a porch on a property at 725 North Mechanic Street at a cost of $300.

Mt. Royal PTA Names Nominating Committee

C. A. List presided and appointed William Cramer, Jr., chairman of the Nominating committee at the meeting of the Mt. Royal PTA recently. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Kathleen Sullivan and Mrs. Eric Gibbs. Officers gave their reports and routine business was transacted. Mrs. Margaret Weakland's room won the attendance award.

Llweyn Davis spoke on "How Parents Can Help in Their Children's Education." A program was presented by the pupils of Mary Kathryn Steckman Dance Studio, the Elks Quartet and Mrs. William Buchholtz, soprano, with Mrs. Kenneth E. Beck at the piano.

to mention only a few of the improvements.

Texas Native

Fletcher is a native of Grand Saline, Tex., where he was born in 1901. After graduation from high school there he entered Wesley College in Greenville, Tex., to study for the ministry. At the end of his second year in college he decided to forsake theology for sociology. He was principal of Knights of Pythias School at Wetherford, Tex., for three years. Later he was principal of the State Home for Dependent Children at Corsicana, Tex., from which he resigned in 1936 to accept a position as assistant superintendent of the State School for Boys, Warwick, N. Y., remaining there until coming to Lock Raven as superintendent in 1945.

The superintendent reports that Allegany county now has 12 boys in the institution which he directs. There are 13 others out on placement.

"We have always enjoyed a splendid relationship with your county," Fletcher has written here. "It has been easy to work with your people as they have been most cooperative. I am really looking forward to my few days in and around Cumberland."

City Workers

believes the police and firemen deserve additional pay since they work on a six-day week and must work holidays. He said that on an hourly basis, their pay is less than 75 cents an hour.

The Allegany county delegation did an about-face on its previous refusal to grant city police and firemen wage boosts and yesterday voted a $12 per-month across the board salary increase for members of the two departments.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357, for the firemen, and 359, for the police, calling for pay increases were given approval at a discussion by the delegates.

The delegation, See said, presented an unfavorable report on the bill increasing the sick leave and vacation time of the police and firemen.

Last Thursday, the majority of the delegation voted against giving any wage increases to the police and firemen, saying that the boost would make the city tax burden prohibitive.

Delegate See at that time also said that the bills were turned down because the delegation did not see why the police and firemen were singled out for raises. It felt that if any raise were to be given, all municipal employes should benefit.

No reason was advanced for the change of heart.

Tax Bill Introduced

Delegate See said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not request the legislation.

The delegation introduced today with a favorable report a bill enabling the city to increase Cumberland's taxing power for operating expenses by five cents. This measure was approved last week.

Delegate See also reported that a favorable report was given to the Bowling Green special taxing area bill. It will be introduced with five amendments, mostly clarification of wording.

The bill provides for a referendum on the plan to finance street lights and fire hydrants in the McMullen Highway community.

Delegate See said the bill has been amended to allow residents of that area who are qualified to vote in a state or county election to participate in the referendum. The original measure only made property owners eligible.

License Deadline Extension Seen

About 8,500 sets of automobile license plates have been sold at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat in the Court House, but he still has about 1,500 sets available for purchasers.

Treat's office, like all others in the Court House, will be closed all day today but will be open from 9 a. m. until noon tomorrow. He is expecting another shipment of plates soon.

Meanwhile. State Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd said yesterday in Baltimore that he will seek an extension of the March 31 deadline for Maryland auto license plates. A shortage of steel, he said, has thrown production of the new plates behind schedule.

Normally, vehicles could not be operated legally beyond the deadline without the new white-on-black tags.

Mudd said he will ask Governor McKeldin next week for permission to extend the March 31 limit. He did not indicate how long an extension would be requested.

Both Wednesday and yesterday, Treat's office disposed of exactly 414 sets of plates, keeping the average for the week well above the 400-daily level.

Treat said yesterday that he also will have license plates for farmers' trucks and privately-owned and operated trucks with a weight of 5,000 pounds or less, probably early in April. The deadline for truck plates is April 30.

Two Occupancy Permits Granted

Two occupancy and one building permit were issued this week by Albert S. Paye, city building engineer.

George R. McGee, this city, was granted permission to use 122 West Second Street as a wholesale and retail produce market.

The property, formerly used as a service station, is located in a Residential B district.

Charles Heavner, Wiley Ford, was granted permission to use a lot adjacent to 140 Harrison Street, as a parking lot and car washing stand. The property, formerly used for the same purpose, is in an industrial zoning district.

Leroy Miller, 430 Laing Avenue was issued a permit to enclose a porch on a property at 725 North Mechanic Street at a cost of $300.

Mt. Royal PTA Names Nominating Committee

C. A. List presided and appointed William Cramer, Jr., chairman of the Nominating committee at the meeting of the Mt. Royal PTA recently. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Kathleen Sullivan and Mrs. Eric Gibbs. Officers gave their reports and routine business was transacted. Mrs. Margaret Weakland's room won the attendance award.

Menu Ideas From Half Pork Loin

Solve two menu problems at once! Do it by purchasing half of a complete pork loin, says meat expert Reba Staggs.

For the first serving, use the loin chops from one end of the half pork loin. Of course, the chops are cooked by braising. Brown them in their own or a small amount of added lard or fat, then add a small amount of liquid. Cover the utensil closely and cook the pork chops from 45 minutes to 1 hour.

If desired, the chops may be cooked in mushroom sauce, tomato sauce or juice or a fruit juice. Or pork chops are ideal cooked over a scalloped dish. Brown them first, then arrange them over scalloped corn, tomatoes, potatoes or apples. The casserole is covered and presents just another way of braising the pork.

For the second serving use the remainder of the half pork loin to make chop suey or chow mein. For either of these, cut the meat into thin strips. Brown the meat and cook in the usual manner for chop suey. For still a different dish, cut the pork in cubes, brown them, then cook with green pepper squares and pineapple chunks. Near the end of cooking time add a sweet-sour sauce. Serve this over rice or French fried noodles to make mealtime news.

Cream Puffs

½ cup lard
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 cup enriched flour
4 eggs

Add lard to salted water and bring to a boil. Add flour all at once, and stir vigorously until ball forms in center of pan. Cool. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until mixture is smooth. Mixture should be very stiff. Shape on greased cooky sheet by dropping from spoon or using pastry bag and tube. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven (450° F.). Reduce temperature to moderate (350° F.) and continue baking for 30 minutes or until done. Cool. Fill with creamed meat, cream pie filling, ice cream or whipped cream. Yield: 12 to 14 cream puffs.

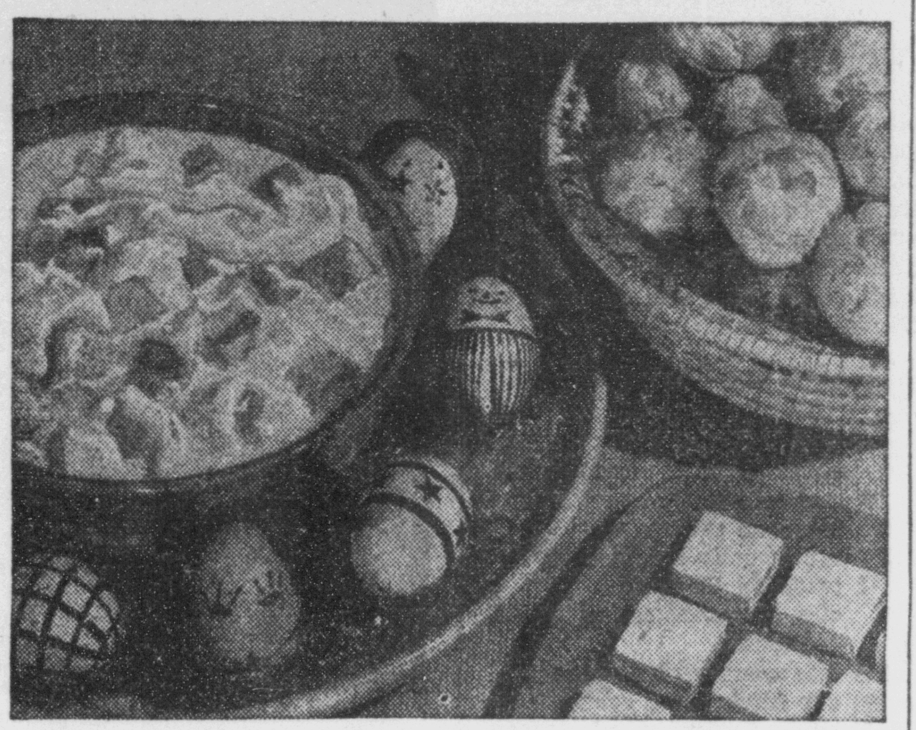
EASTER MORNING ENTERTAINING



Store windows full of flower-decked straw hats, pink-eared bunnies and pastel eggs tell us that Easter is close at hand.

If you're planning to do some Easter entertaining, why not invite friends in for a buffet breakfast or brunch. Or, make it a special occasion for the family anyway, if you don't entertain.

A special menu is in order for the occasion: Fresh strawberries with cream, cereal, creamed ham and eggs on toast points, tiny corn meal muffins with butter and hot chocolate. Use these recipes:

LITTLE CORN MEAL MUFFINS

¾ cup yellow corn meal
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
¼ cup melted butter

Sift corn meal, flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg; add milk and blend. Stir in melted butter. Add to dry ingredients, stirring just enough to blend. Fill 2 ¼-inch buttered muffin tins about ⅔ full. Bake in a hot oven, 425°F., for 20 minutes. Makes 16 muffins.

CREAMED HAM AND EGGS

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon condiment sauce
2½ cups milk
1½ cups diced cooked ham
4 sliced, hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons minced parsley (optional)
Hot toast points

Melt butter; add flour, seasonings and condiment sauce, and blend. Add milk gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add ham, sliced eggs and parsley. Heat through and serve with toast points. Serves 6.

Lenten Meal Suggestion

Fish Loaf

It is fish-fare during Lent with many delicious dishes in the offing. One popular-type dish, the fish loaf, is especially easy to make with canned fish, such as tuna, salmon and fish flakes.

A basic recipe may be used for all and changed from time to time with tasty "additional" ingredients. For instance, canned carrots and peas, added to the basic recipe, make a loaf that is different, nutritious and satisfying. Color, flavor and variety may be had by adding pimiento, ripe or green olives, or unusual seasonings to the basic recipe.

Tuna Loaf Deluxe will whet the appetites of the family on one of the meatless Lenten days. Hot cornbread sticks and crunchy tossed salad should tag along with the loaf.

Tuna Loaf Deluxe

2 eggs
¼ cup milk
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 7-oz. can flaked tuna
¼ cup chopped pimiento
¼ cup chopped ripe olives
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Beat eggs; add milk and crumbs; let stand about 5 minutes. Add ½ of the mushroom soup (saving remainder for sauce). Add rest of ingredients; mix. Place in greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until firm. Add ½ cup water to soup, heat and serve as sauce. Six servings.

So Ends The Meal

Finish off a heavy meal with this colorful, fruity delight. It's a "sweet tooth" satisfier, yet not too heavy.

Fruit Fluff On Caramel Cream

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
1 8-oz. can fruit cocktail
3 eggs
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons confectioners sugar
1 banana

Soak gelatin in syrup drained from fruit cocktail for 5 minutes. Separate one egg, reserving white for use in fruit fluff. Beat remaining eggs, sugar and salt together. Add milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add vanilla; pour into individual molds; chill until firm. Beat white until stiff; add confectioners sugar. Fold in diced banana and fruit cocktail. Unmold caramel cream and top with fruit mixture. Six servings.

Away With Lumps

Here's an aid to smooth gravy making. Instead of adding the flour straight to the drippings in thep an, add it to water in a small jar. Shake the jar vigorously, then pour the flour-water mixture into the drippings.

To Panbroil

Thep anboil((r400offa-ed-lk

To panbroil bacon, Canadian-style bacon and other meats, pour off the fat as it accumulates in the pan. Otherwise you'll be frying rather than panbroiling the meat.

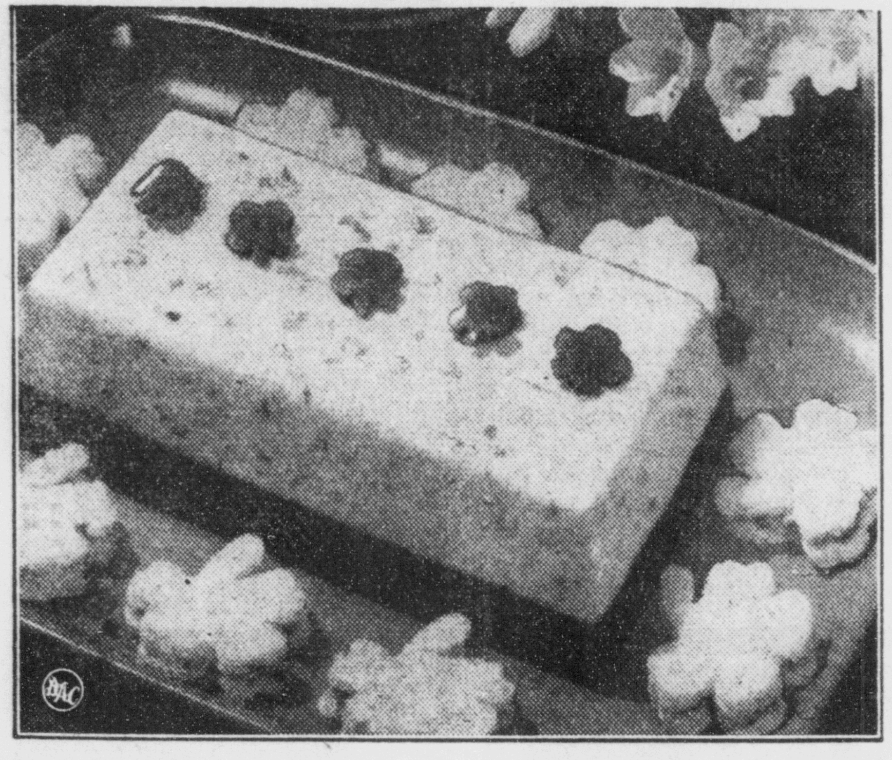
Molded Egg-Aspic Loaf



WHETHER you're a bona fide Irishman or just a sympathetic wearer of the green, St. Patrick's is a good day for celebrating foodwise with a shamrock studded egg and aspic loaf. Sure, an' it's a foin main dish any day in spring, what with its two layers made from unflavored gelatine. The recipe is elsewhere on this page.

Molded Egg-Aspic Loaf Meets Budget Needs

Soften gelatine in cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add salt, lemon juice an dTabasco; cool. Gradually add gelatine mixture to mayonnaise stirring until blended; mix in remaining ingredients. Turn into loaf pan and chill until almost firm.

Tomato Aspic Layer:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold tomato juice
1¼ cups hot tomato juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Soften gelatin in cold tomato juice. Dissolve thoroughly in very hot tomato juice, stirring well. Season and flavor with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Turn on top of egg layer; chill until firm. YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

Molded Egg and Aspic Loaf meets all the requirements of cooks harried by today's shrinking food dollars. First of all, it's good. Secondly, because unflavored gelatine's protein adds to that of the eggs, it supplies—inexpensively—the nuaritional needs of a main dish. And, thirdly, because each envelope of gelatine is so carefully made and so accurately measured, this molded loaf is easy to fix and failure-proof. Tere's how to do it:

Molded Egg And Aspic Loaf

Egg Layer:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1½ teaspoons grated onion
½ cup finely diced celery
¼ cup finely diced green pepper
¼ cup chopped pimiento
4 hard cooked eggs, chopped

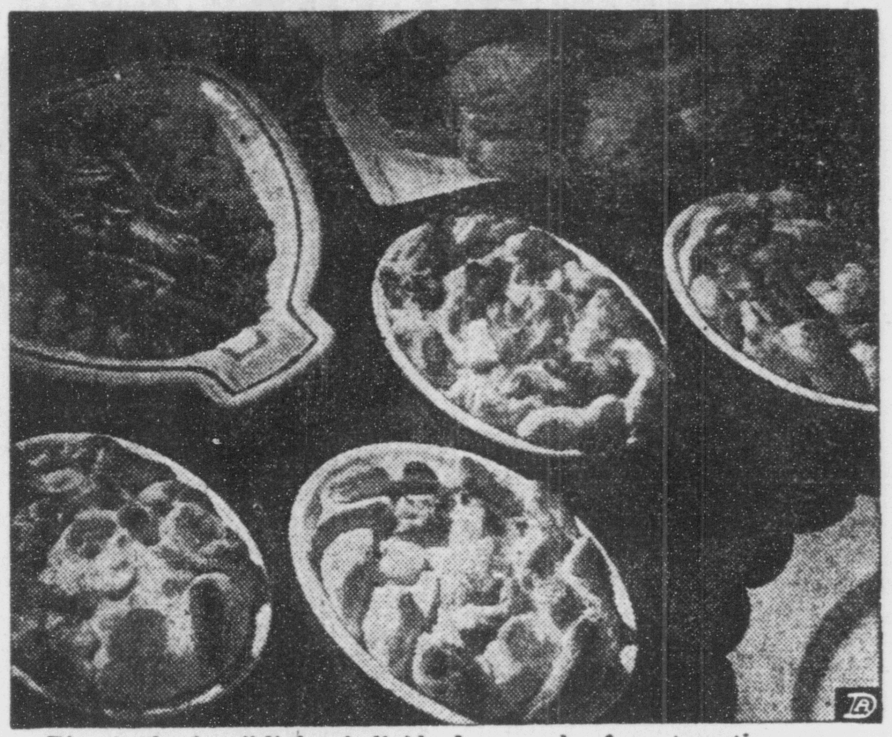
Flouring Tip

Make quick work of flouring meat slices, cubes or meat strips by using a paper bag. Place the flour with seasonings in the bag, add the meat, then shake for a thorough coating.

Ready To Stuff

Stuffed pork chops present a clever serving. To make the pocket in the chops for holding the stuffing, simply cut into the meat along the rib bone. Cook them by braising, the same as unstuffed pork chops.

Ham and Egg Baskets



Biscuit "baskets" lining individual casseroles form tempting cases for creamed ham and eggs, extending more expensive protein foods and adding good nutrition at the same time.

One of the breakfasts men like best features pan fried ham with sunny-side eggs and plenty of hot biscuits. Turn this tempting menu into dinner entree with Ham and Egg Baskets, a thrifty "meal-in-one." Cut biscuit rounds made from recipe below or from a mix to line individual casseroles and extend a filling made with bite-size ham, chopped hard-cooked eggs, and cooked snap beans folded into a cream sauce.

With food prices higher than ever before, American homemakers are looking for new ways to make meals thrifty, nutritious and appealing to their families. Each Ham and Egg Basket costs about 25 cents, yet scores high in protein and other food values from meat and egg. The biscuit cases provide extra protein, coupled with essential B-vitamins and food iron.

When a large casserole is used to make the dish, roll biscuit dough out into a circle big enough to extend about an inch over side of casserole. This "inch" can be turned over the filling.

Complete a dinner featuring Ham and Egg Baskets with carrot and pineapple slaw, and extra biscuits for bread. Serve peanut butter cookies and hot coffee for dessert.

HAM AND EGG BASKETS

Biscuit Dough

3 cups sifted enriched flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
3 to 6 tablespoons shortening
1 to 1⅓ cups milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently ½ minute. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut ⅔ dough with floured 2-inch biscuit cutter. Line bottom of each casserole with remaining ⅓ of dough. Line sides of casseroles by overlapping 10 biscuits around each casserole, setting the biscuits on edge. Press edges of biscuits on sides firmly to edges of biscuit on bottom. Fill casseroles with Ham Egg Filling. Fold biscuit tops over filling. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 20 minutes.

Makes 4 individual baskets.

Ham Egg Filling

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ pound cubed cooked ham
1 cup cooked cut green beans
3 sliced hard cooked eggs
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Add flour, stirring well. Add salt. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. When sauce is medium thick, add ham, green beans, eggs, and parsley. Fill biscuit-lined casseroles with Ham Egg Filling.

Bacon-Egg Cups

Serve novel bacon-egg cups for breakfast brightness. Place bacon slices in frying-pan and cook slowly until transparent. Then line muffin pans with the slices. Place an egg in each pan, season with salt and peper and bake in a 300 degree F. oven for 15 minutes.

Keep Fell Intact

When buying a leg of lamb for your Easter dinner, ask your meat dealer to leave the fell on the roast. This thin, paperlike covering not only helps retain the shape of the leg during cooking but helps to hold in the meat juices as well.

Holiday Fruit Cake In New Adornment

Before the last of the holiday fruit cake disappears, here is a new idea to try. Place one inch cubes of fruit cake on a fork and dip into melted semi-sweet chocolate, covering all sides except the bottom. Place the dipped cubes on a cookie sheet and sprinkle with chopped pecans. Keep them in the refrigerator until chocolate hardens. These tempting tidbits make good nibbling for family and guests during an evening of conversation, cards, or TV viewing.

Tips On Making Melba Toast

Melba toast adds taste and texture contrast to soups and salads, and sads, and makes good use of leftover bread. To make flat, golden brown melba toast, arrange slices of bread on a cookie sheet and place a second cookie sheet as a cover on top of theb read to keep the slices from curling. Brown in a slow oven (300 degree F.) for one hour. At the end of thirty minutes turn the slices over, replace the top cookie sheet, and return them to the oven.

Cream Puffs Inspire Meat Dish, Appetizer

Dessert cream puffs have inspired many a new dish. In miniature form they are the basis for clever appetizers or in extra-large size filled with creamed meat they become a main course serving.

Cream puffs, contrary to popular belief, are simply made. According to Reba Staggs, home economist, the important point to remember is that they require thorough mixing. Add the unbeaten eggs, one at a time, to the flour, lard and water mixture and stir vigorously.

For hors d'oeuvre tray puffs, drop half teaspoonfuls of the batter onto a greased cooky sheet. When baked and cooled, cut with a sharp knife and fill with a tiny portion of creamed veal or a creamed ready-to-serve meat.

As for the main course, let this be the occasion to use cubes of meat left from a roast. For more color, add peas or cubed vegetables to the creamed mixture. If serving creamed veal, add slivered almonds for a wonderful flavor combination.

Cream puffs filled with whipped cream or with a custard sauce are not the only dessert you can produce with these puffs. Fill the big dessert puffs with vanilla ice cream, top with fudge or strawberry sauce. And for still more of a change, form the batter in a rectangular shape to produce eclairs. Fill with custard sauce, then lightly frost with chocolate icing.

Spring Tea Party For Chasing Winter Gloom

A spring tea party is always pleasing to winter-weary women friends who welcome an opportunity to wear their spring finery. Beforehand planning for the party eliminates last-minute rushing and lets the hostess share the enjoyment of the occasion. Dainty finger sandiches, using a variety of breads, may be prepared with several combination spreads, such as sliced green stuffed olives and softened cream cheese; mincd avacado and chopped hrimp combined with mayonnaise; or chicken, ham, or egg salad mixtures. Delicate looking, appetite appealing tea cakes may be made inthe follíwing ways. Cut baker's angel food cake into one inch squares and enrobe in confectioner's sugar icing that has been tinted with food coloring. Or spread fruit marmalade or preserves between one-half inch slices of baker's pound, sponge, chiffon or angel food cake. Cut into onei nch wide strips and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar.

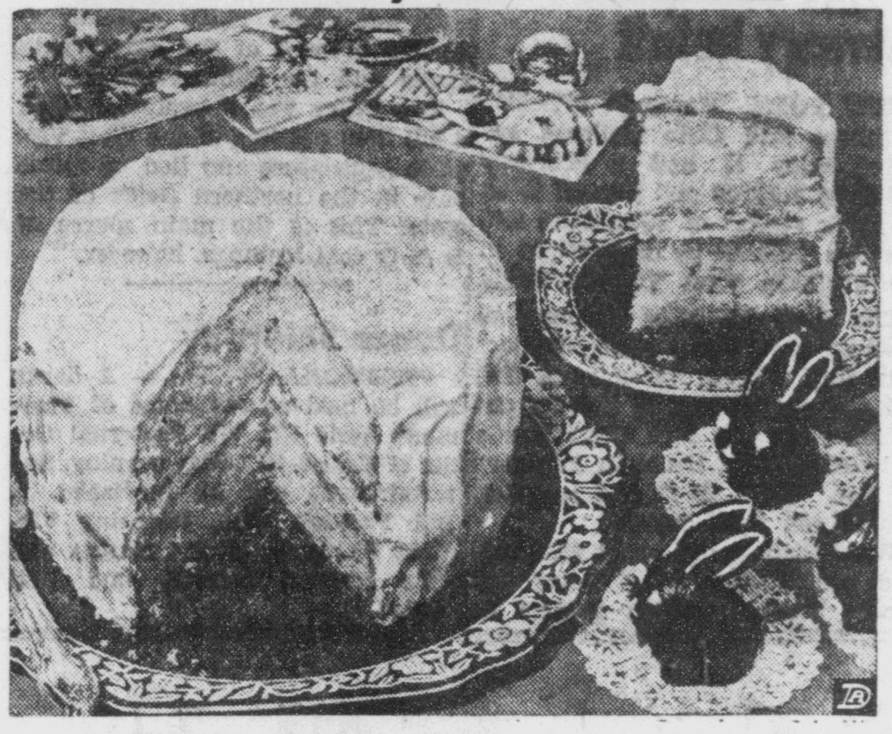
Here's a Lovely Pink Easter Cake Made in a Jiffy with Instant Mix



If the children cry "Cake for Easter!" don't deny them. Make them happy with a Fluffy Pink Cake—two dazzling white layers put together with a luscious pink frosting, with chocolate bunnies for decoration.

It's the work of but an instant to make a downy light cake with a new high-ratio version of a famous white cake mix that makes a higher, tenderer, finer, richer cake than ever before. It takes four minutes, to be exact, if you work quickly, from the time you open the package until you put the filled cake pans in the oven. Just add milk, beat—and bake.

The basic recipe for this versatile and adaptable mix gives a luscious white cake simply with the addition of milk. One package makes two generous eight-inch layers. Other basic recipes on the box tell how to make cocoa cake, yellow cake and white cake, all from the white cake mix; and new recipes appear on the box from time to time.

The white cake mix, put out by the makers of a famous cake flour, assures a light and downy texture wherever you use it, as there is a special package for high altitude baking.

FLUFFY PINK EASTER CAKE

Fluffy Pink Frosting—Combine 1 unbeaten egg white, ¾ cup sugar, dash of salt, 3 tablespoons water, and 1 teaspoon light corn syrup in top of small double boiler. Beat 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Cook over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of electric beater) 4 minutes, or until frosting will stand in stiff peaks.

Remove from water. Add ⅛ teaspoon vanilla; beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread. Tint a delicate pink with red coloring.

Slick Idea For Slicing Jelly Roll

One of the simplest ways of cutting a jelly roll is with a piece of white thread. Place the center of a fifteen-inch piece of white thread under the spot where the jelly roll is to be sliced. Bring the ends of the thread togther over the top, cross them, and pull down quickly, making a clean quick cut through the roll. This eliminates the possibility of the jelly roll being pressed out of shape as sometimes happens when a dull knife is used. The thread-cutting method makes clean-cut slices that retain their original shape.

Pork, Noodle Casserole

Pork chops top noodles for a zestful casserole. First, brown the chops, then place them over noodles, moistened with tomato soup and seasoned with grated onion. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 45 minutes to one hour.

Combine ground beef, potatoes, onions and seasoning. Shape into 6 patties. Brown on both sides in hot lard or drippings, turning frequently, allowing 10 to 15 minutes for cooking. 6 servings.

Veal Cubes On Skewers

2 pounds veal shoulder steaks
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups cornflakes, crushed
3 tablespoons lard
¼ cup hot water

Cut veal steaks into boneless 1-inch squares. Thread squares onto wooden or metal skewers. Mix mustard, salt and pepper, and butter or margarine together and rub on skewered veal. Dip in eggs, then in cornflakes. Brown on all sides in hit lard. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for about 45 minutes, or until tender. 6 servings.

Lamb Shanks—Celery-Rice Stuffing

6 lamb shanks
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ pound rice
½ cup chopped celery

Brown shanks in lard or drippings. Add water and seasoning. Cover and allow to simmer about 1½ hours or until tender. Remove meat from broth. When shanks are cool enough to handle, remove bones. Cook rice in lamb broth, adding water as necessary. Drain rice, saving broth, and add celery. Stuff boned shanks with celery-rice mixture. Place in baking dish. Add gravy made by thickening remaining lamb broth. Heat thoroughly in slow oven (300° F.). 6 servings.

Two Ways To Tempting Lamb Pies

Here are two formulas for making a lamb pie. Take your pick! For the first, start with uncooked lamb cubes. For the second, cut cubes from last night's lamb roast. Either one becomes a meat pie when the stew is given a topping, according to home economist Reba Staggs.

Long slow cooking is the secret of the first stew. Lamb cubes (lamb shoulder is a wise choice for cubing) are seasoned, then completely covered with water. The utensil is covered and the meat allowed to cook slowly on top the range or in a 300° F. oven. Vegetables are added to the meat in time to be cooked tender. Total meat cooking time is from 1½ to 2 hours.

The second type stew naturally is a quick version. Cut the leftover roast lamb into cubes, then simply reheat in a canned vegetable soup or mushroom soup. Thicken the liquid for gravy. Cooked vegetables may be added if desired.

Both types of stews become lamb pies with the addition of fluffy whipped potatoes on top. Biscuit dough or pastry may be used too. Or perhaps, you'll want to serve the stew in a biscuit ring for a clever appearance.

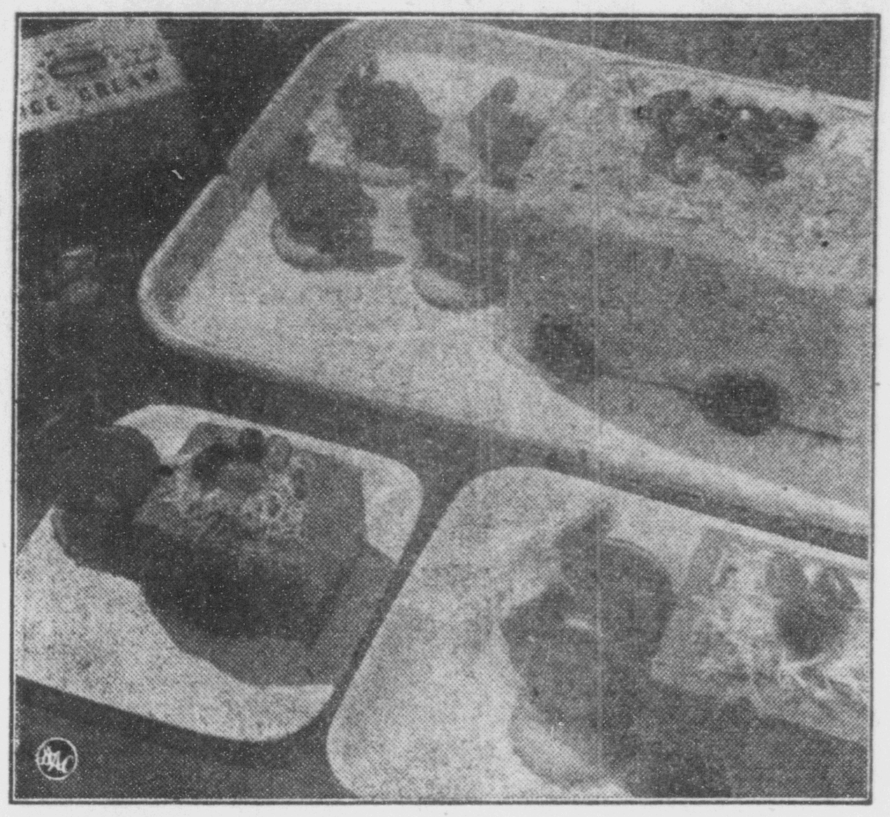
Easter Bunny Comes in Style Pulling an Ice Cream Cart



CINDERELLA and her pumpkin coach had nothing on today's young moderns who make an Easter egg cart out of ice cream, drawn by a team of bright-eyed bunny cookies. Perfect for making the cart is the block-shaped carton of pre-packaged ice cream so readily available in your grocery or drug store. Buy either the pint or half-gallon, depending on your family's size and appetite.

To make the Easter bunny cookies, follow directions for your favorite sugar cookie recipe. Cut half the dough with a bunny cookie cutter, and remaining half with round cookie cutter. After baking, place bunnies upright on base in small mound of confectioners' sugar frosting. Place block-shaped ice cream on serving platter. Mound coconut on top of ice cream to resemble Easter nest; fill nest with jelly beans. Place chocolate mint patties on sides to resemble wheels, and put bunnies in front. For individual carts, cut each pint of ice cream into 3 or 4 blocks, use two mint patties for wheels.

Variety Sandwiches For The Children's School Lun

A tempting sweet sandwich adds lunch and is a welcome change. Blended peanut butter and honey or orange marmalade on enriched white or whole wheat bread makes a delightful sweet sandwich. Other suggestions include cream cheese ith grape jelly, strawberry jam, or chopped dates.

Treat Family To French Toastwiches

A list of hot and tasty sandwiches is the homemaker's helper on many an occasion. To add to her repertoire, here are French Toastwiches—a serving designed to draw the undivided attention of the family at lunch or supper.

For quick work of French Toastwiches use a can of ready-to-serve meat, suggests home economist Reba Staggs. Combine the ground ready-to-serve meat with minced sweet pickle and moisten with mayonnaise. Place the sandwich spread between two slices of bread, then dip the sandwich in an egg-milk mixture the same as for French toast. Panfry on both sides in lard or fat.

If there's leftover cooked meat in your refrigerator, use it! Cooked beef, veal, pork, lamb or ham may all be appropriately used in these hot sandwiches. To the ground meat add thin slices of stuffed or ripe olive, a bit of shredded carrot or pimiento. Serve the sandwiches straight from the griddle with assorted relishes.

- 2 pounds veal shoulder steaks
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cups cornflakes, crushed
- 3 tablespoons lard
- ¼ cup hot water

Cut veal steaks into boneless 1-inch squares. Thread squares onto wooden or metal skewers. Mix mustard, salt and pepper, and butter or margarine together and rub on skewered veal. Dip in eggs, then in cornflakes. Brown on all sides in hit lard. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for about 45 minutes, or until tender. 6 servings.

Lamb Shanks—Celery-Rice Stuffing

- 6 lamb shanks
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ pound rice
- ½ cup chopped celery

Brown shanks in lard or drippings. Add water and seasoning. Cover and allow to simmer about 1½ hours or until tender. Remove meat from broth. When shanks are cool enough to handle, remove bones. Cook rice in lamb broth, adding water as necessary. Drain rice, saving broth, and add celery. Stuff boned shanks with celery-rice mixture. Place in baking dish. Add gravy made by thickening remaining lamb broth. Heat thoroughly in slow oven (300° F.). 6 servings.

Two Ways To Tempting Lamb Pies

Here are two formulas for making a lamb pie. Take your pick! For the first, start with uncooked lamb cubes. For the second, cut cubes from last night's lamb roast. Either one becomes a meat pie when the stew is given a topping, according to home economist Rebe Staggs.

Long slow cooking is the secret of the first stew. Lamb cubes (lamb shoulder is a wise choice for cubing) are seasoned, then completely covered with water. The utensil is covered and the meat allowed to cook slowly on top the range or in a 300° F. oven. Vegetables are added to the meat in time to be cooked tender. Total meat cooking time is from 1½ to 2 hours.

The second type stew naturally is a quick version. Cut the leftover roast lamb into cubes, then simply reheat in a canned vegetable soup or mushroom soup. Thicken the liquid for gravy. Cooked vegetables may be added if desired.

Both types of stews become lamb pies with the addition of fluffy whipped potatoes on top. Biscuit dough or pastry may be used too. Or perhaps, you'll want to serve the stew in a biscuit ring for a clever appearance.

Variety Sandwiches For The Children's School Lun

A tempting sweet sandwich adds lunch and is a welcome change. Blended peanut butter and honey or orange marmalade on enriched white or whole wheat bread makes a delightful sweet sandwich. Other suggestions include cream cheese ith grape jelly, strawberry jam, or chopped dates.

Easter Bunny Comes in Style Pulling an Ice Cream Cart

CINDERELLA and her pumpkin coach had nothing on today's young moderns who make an Easter egg cart out of ice cream, drawn by a team of bright-eyed bunny cookies. Perfect for making the cart is the block-shaped carton of pre-packaged ice cream so readily available in your grocery or drug store. Buy either the pint or half-gallon, depending on your family's size and appetite.

To make the Easter bunny cookies, follow directions for your favorite sugar cookie recipe. Cut half the dough with a bunny cookie cutter, and remaining half with round cookie cutter. After baking, place bunnies upright on base in small mound of confectioners' sugar frosting. Place block-shaped ice cream on serving platter. Mound coconut on top of ice cream to resemble Easter nest; fill nest with jelly beans. Place chocolate mint patties on sides to resemble wheels, and put bunnies in front. For individual carts, cut each pint of ice cream into 3 or 4 blocks, use two mint patties for wheels.

Treat Family To French Toastwiches

A list of hot and tasty sandwiches is the homemaker's helper on many an occasion. To add to her repertoire, here are French Toastwiches—a serving designed to draw the undivided attention of the family at lunch or supper.

For quick work of French Toastwiches use a can of ready-to-serve meat, suggests home economist Reba Staggs. Combine the ground ready-to-serve meat with minced sweet pickle and moisten with mayonnaise. Place the sandwich spread between two slices of bread, then dip the sandwich in an egg-milk mixture the same as for French toast. Panfry on both sides in lard or fat.

If there's leftover cooked meat in your refrigerator, use it! Cooked beef, veal, pork, lamb or ham may all be appropriately used in these hot sandwiches. To the ground meat add thin slices of stuffed or ripe olive, a bit of shredded carrot or pimiento. Serve the sandwiches straight from the griddle with assorted relishes.

Storing Meat

As soon as you're home from market, unwrap fresh meat and store uncovered or, if you like, lightly topped with a sheet of waxed paper in thec oldest spot of your refrigerator. Plan to use all variety meats soon, within 48 hours. Cooked meats are properly stored closely covered and placed anywhere in the refrigerator.

Adolf Hitler's Godson Studies For Priesthood

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Had his godfather's thousand-year Reich held together, he might have been headed for quite a different career in the Nazi party elite. He is the son of Martin Bormann, Hitler's trusted lieutenant and second only to the Fuehrer himself in the last stages of the war.

Martin Bormann's life ended in a question mark in 1945. He was with Hitler in the Fuehrer bunker when Russian troops overran the city.

What happened to Bormann is a mystery. Rumors in the last five years have placed him in South America, Spain, Russia. Nobody knows for sure.

Adolf Martin Bormann, student at the Brothers of the Sacred Heart Seminary, says he doesn't know either—

"I know only what I see in the papers. I don't know if my father is alive or dead."

"After awhile, though, father made us all break away from the church," he recalls. "He wanted no Christian religion in his family. It was contrary to Nazi ideas.

"He put me in a special school near Munich. It was made up of students selected by special tests throughout Germany. It emphasized political education. It was a very bad school and morally it was terrible. There was outright perversion among some of the students. Two prime factors ran their lives: fear of punishment for misconduct and Nazi idealism."

"He did not appear worried," the youth says. "We did not feel that he planned not to see us again."

"We, my seven brothers and sisters, knew him only as our father. He was a good father, but usually silent and very stern. Our only holidays with him were walking to construction projects of which he was in charge."

After the war the youth lived on an Austrian farm. There, in the home of a Catholic family, he became converted to that faith.

His three brothers and three of his sisters have become Catholics. The fourth sister is a Protestant. They live with families in the Italian Tyrol.

"When I finish my schooling, which will take six or seven years, I hope to be sent out as a missionary," Adolf says. "The Sacred Heart order has missionaries in the South Pacific and the Far East. I hope to go to one of those areas."

B. And O. Reports February Deficit

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad reported today it had a February deficit of $150,000 and blamed it on the "sick strike" of switchmen and a week's walkout by coal miners in the Northern West Virginia fields.

The B & O's gross revenues in February were about $8,000,000 more than they were in February of 1950 but the comparison is thrown out of kilter by the fact there was a full-fledged coal strike in February of 1950. The B & O had a deficit of $489,646 that month.

Wage increases of about $1,215,000 and continuation of a heavy car repair program added greatly to its expenses last month, the B & O said.

It lost about 28,000 carloads of freight because of the switchmen's strike and the miners' walkout.

The latter was a protest against a bill then pending in the West Virginia Legislature and tied up mines only in the northern fields of the state. This is the main source of B & O coal loadings, however.

Dance Saturday

PIEDMONA, W. Va. — A dance will be held at the home of Piedmont Aerie No. 707, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Saturday evening. Entertainment will be furnished by Bill Patton's Trio, featuring Virginia Hardegan at the solovox and Pete Harper, vocalist and bass player.

The program was presented before students and coaches from high schools of District IX who will compete here April 17 in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Forensic League contest. Finalists for the state contest on April 20 will be chosen at that time.

Mt. Pleasant Street Seeks Mail Service

FROSTBURG — The residents of Mount Pleasant Street extended—have petitioned the Post Office Department for extension of City Delivery Service to that area. Postmaster Byrnes reported that a survey is being made of the Mount Pleasant street section, and that a section of Midlothion Road is also included.

These sections were recommended for City Delivery Service—by Postmaster Byrnes in 1948, and survey was conducted at that time by a postal inspector.

Since that date—some additional homes have been erected in both areas—and this increase in occupancy may merit extension of the service.

Jail Inmates Live Longer, Sing Sing Warden Believes

By SAUL PETT

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—Warden Wilfred L. Denno of Sing Sing thinks people live longer in prison than they do out of prison.

"It's the regular hours," he explains.

Although he has no statistics, the warden is convinced the ordinary town of 1,800 has a higher death rate than occurs among the 1,800 reluctant tenants of this famed penitentiary.

"Now don't get me wrong," Denno says. "I'm not saying it's nice to be a prisoner. I'm not trying to attract new customers.

"But I would say that the life span of the average man in jail is longer than it is for the average person on the outside. They eat, sleep and work the same time every day. There's no dissipation, of course.

"They get good care and they take good care of themselves. The average person thinks twice about running to a doctor because of a cold or low grade fever. These fellows go quickly to the prison physician."

The public's conception of a prison pallor, the warden reports, "is a lot of bunk."

"These fellows are no paler than anyone else," he says. "They get air and sunshine and exercise. In no case, is their health impaired after they get here and in many cases it's actually improved by the regular hours and the wholesome diet.

"And don't forget. Most people on the outside worry about food, rent and clothing. These fellows don't have to. Here, if a man can forget the outside, he has no worries."

Sing Sing convicts work a five and a half day week in the prison shops. From Saturday noon to Monday morning they're free to play games, read, watch movies or do almost anything except leave.

In the summer they average about four hours recreation a day and about three a day in winter.

The prison death rate from natural causes is very low, the warden reports. Last year it was two. It averages about three a year.

The mortality rate from unnatural causes is something else. So far this year, seven peaple have been executed. Three were electrocuted last year and 11 in 1949.

The food is "wholesome but not fancy and the caloric content of every menu is checked by the prison doctor, Denno says.

Steak is served very seldom. Fried chicken shows up on Christmas, Thanksgiving and other holidays. Ordinarily, Sing Sing rotates about 14 basic menus.

At current inflated prices, it costs .46 a day to feed a prisoner. Before Korea, it only cost .41.

On what might be called a typical Sunday, the boys at Sing Sing ate this:

Breakfast — One orange; corn flakes, milk and sugar, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner (the big meal is at noon) —Roast beef and veal, brown gravy, roast potatoes, mashed turnips, apple and raisin pie, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Supper — Split pea soup, oyster crackers, vanilla pudding, bread, tea.

On what might be called a typical weekday, they had this:

Breakfast — Oatmeal, milk and sugar, French toast, oleomargarine, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner — Baked diced pork and beans, one spoon tomato catsup, apple sauce, cole slaw with French dressing, bread, coffee with milk and sugar.

Supper — Meat sauce, mashed potatoes, apple butter, hard roll, bread, tea.

There are no second helpings. The first helpings, the warden says, are quite ample. When the prisoners line up at the food counters, they can ask for less if they like.

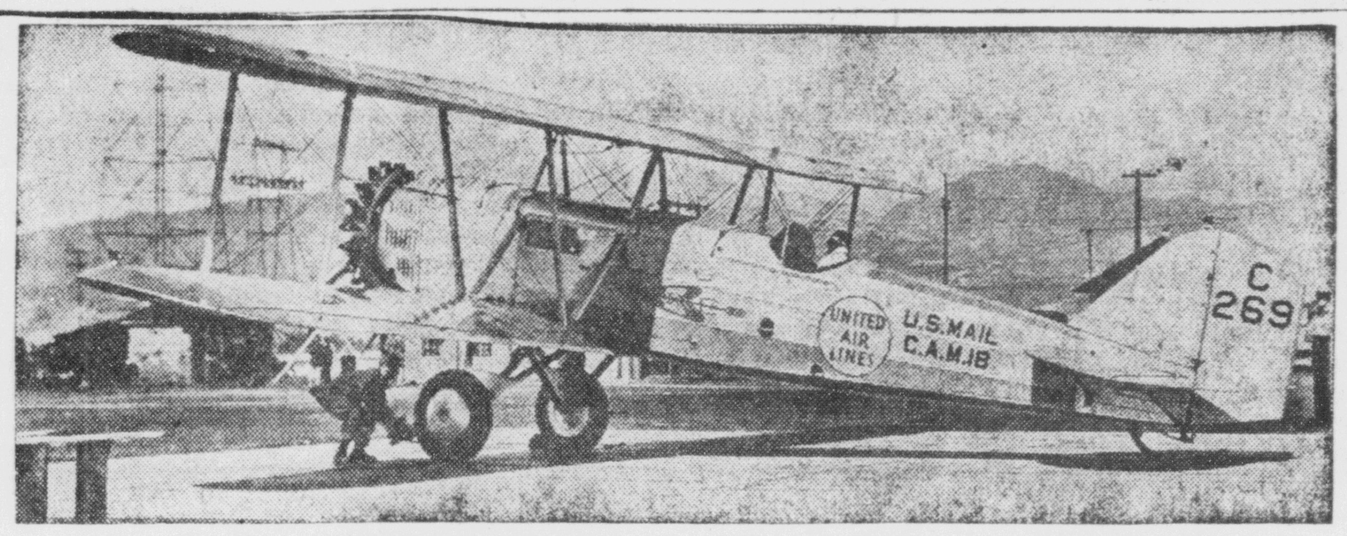
Matter of fact, there are penalties for wasters. If a convict takes 10 slices of bread and eats only two, he is apt to lose some of his "good conduct time."

The warden reports there hasn't been a "bread and water" diet or anything like solitary confinement at Sing Sing for more than 20 years.

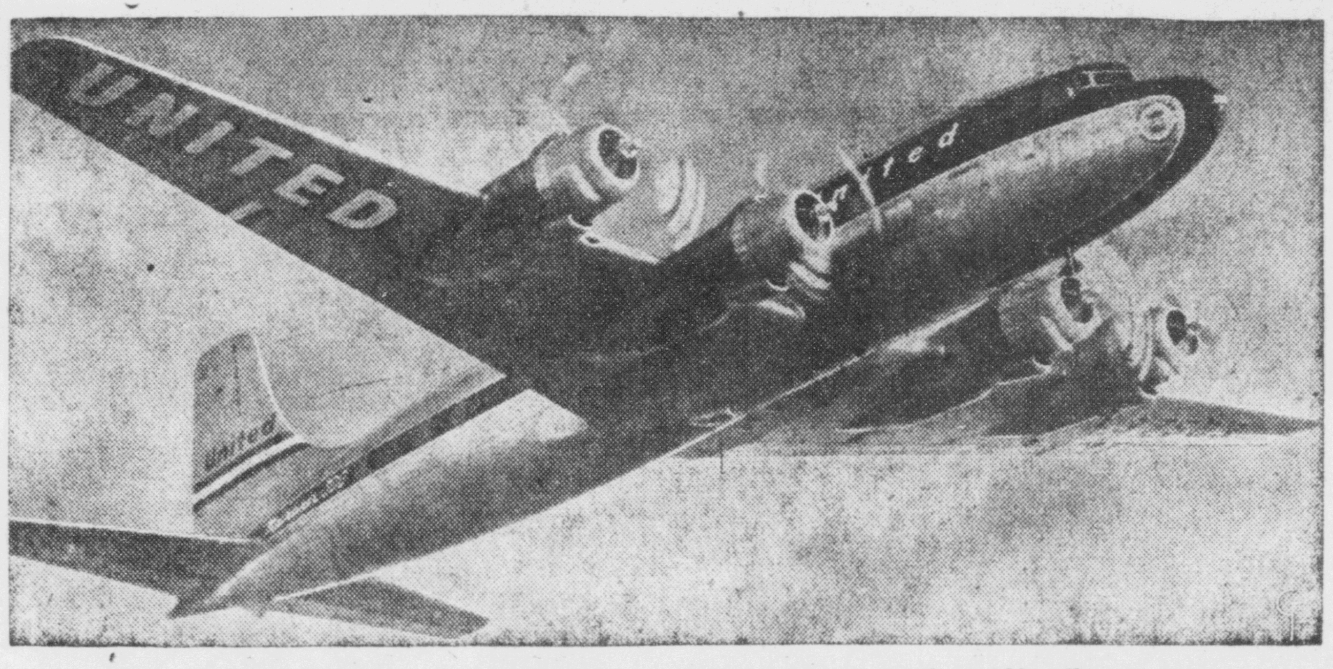
The bad boys now are simply segregated in another building. They eat the same, live in the same kind of cells, but they lose their recreation privileges.

Contemned men eating their last dinner can order what they like but they won't always get it. Nothing fancy. Steaks, chops, chicken—yes. But no pheasant under glass. Or no asparagus out of season.

The ancient cities of Ur. Nippur, Kish, Babylon and Ninevah all were located in the Tigris and Euphrates valleys in what is now Iraq.



Boeing 40-B2s carried mail and passengers between San Francisco and Chicago in 1927.



Today graceful DC-6 Mainliners carry 50 passengers coast-to-coast at 300 miles an hour.

UNDER THE WINGS OF VETERAN United Air Lines pilots have passed a lot of air transportation history. The nation's oldest airline is celebrating its silver anniversary this year. Pilot Leon D. Cuddeback completed the inaugural flight April 6, 1926, carrying mail between Pasco, Wash., and Elko, Nev., via Boise, Idaho. The company has expanded its route from 460 miles to 13,250 miles, its personnel from 10 to 10,000, and its fleet from six single-engined Swallows to 135 multi-engined airliners and all-cargo carriers. Planes' speed has jumped from 90 mph to 300 mph. (International)

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A London magazine printed a new twist on that hoary tale of the society leader who asked the C. O. of a nearby military post to send over a few young men to round out one of her dinner parties. On this particular occasion, the two chaps who turned up were presentable enough physically, but were mere corporals. The hostess angrily requested them to eat with the servants.

Next morning, she phoned the C. O. and demanded to know why he had sent such lowly personages to her party. "Lowly?" laughed the C. O. "One of them was an earl and the other a viscount." "What a ghastly mistake," she stammered. "Will you please make my apologies, and ask them to call again?"

They did. They went to the back door and took her two maids to the movies.

• — • — •

The young man obviously was embarrassed. He explained haltingly, "I'm supposed to bring home either a casserole or a camisole. I can't remember which." "That dilemma is easily resolved," chuckled the erudite storekeeper. "Is the chicken dead or alive?"

Jail Inmates Live Longer, Sing Sing Warden Believes

By SAUL PETT

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—Warden Wilfred L. Denno of Sing Sing thinks people live longer in prison than they do out of prison.

"It's the regular hours," he explains.

Although he has no statistics, the warden is convinced the ordinary town of 1,800 has a higher death rate than occurs among the 1,800 reluctant tenants of this famed penitentiary.

"Now don't get me wrong," Denno says. "I'm not saying it's nice to be a prisoner. I'm not trying to attract new customers.

"But I would say that the life span of the average man in jail is longer than it is for the average person on the outside. They eat, sleep and work the same time every day. There's no dissipation, of course.

"They get good care and they take good care of themselves. The average person thinks twice about running to a doctor because of a cold or low grade fever. These fellows go quickly to the prison physician."

The public's conception of a prison pallor, the warden reports, "is a lot of bunk."

"These fellows are no paler than anyone else," he says. "They get air and sunshine and exercise. In no case, is their health impaired after they get here and in many cases it's actually improved by the regular hours and the wholesome diet.

"And don't forget. Most people on the outside worry about food, rent and clothing. These fellows don't have to. Here, if a man can forget the outside, he has no worries."

Sing Sing convicts work a five and a half day week in the prison shops. From Saturday noon to Monday morning they're free to play games, read, watch movies or do almost anything except leave. In the summer they average about four hours recreation a day and about three a day in winter.

The prison death rate from natural causes is very low, the warden reports. Last year it was two. It averages about three a year.

The mortality rate from unnatural causes is something else. So far this year, seven peaple have been executed. Three were electrocuted last year and 11 in 1949.

The food is "wholesome but not fancy and the caloric content of every menu is checked by the prison doctor, Denno says.

Steak is served very seldom. Fried chicken shows up on Christmas, Thanksgiving and other holidays. Ordinarily, Sing Sing rotates about 14 basic menus.

At current inflated prices, it costs .46 a day to feed a prisoner. Before Korea, it only cost .41.

On what might be called a typical Sunday, the boys at Sing Sing ate this:

Breakfast — One orange; corn flakes, milk and sugar, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner (the big meal is at noon) —Roast beef and veal, brown gravy, roast potatoes, mashed turnips, apple and raisin pie, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Supper — Split pea soup, oyster crackers, vanilla pudding, bread, tea.

On what might be called a typical weekday, they had this:

Breakfast — Oatmeal, milk and sugar, French toast, oleomargarine, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner — Baked diced pork and beans, one spoon tomato catsup, apple sauce, cole slaw with French dressing, bread, coffee with milk and sugar.

Supper — Meat sauce, mashed potatoes, apple butter, hard roll, bread, tea.

There are no second helpings. The first helpings, the warden says, are quite ample. When the prisoners line up at the food counters, they can ask for less if they like.

Matter of fact, there are penalties for wasters. If a convict takes 10 slices of bread and eats only two, he is apt to lose some of his "good conduct time."

The warden reports there hasn't been a "bread and water" diet or anything like solitary confinement at Sing Sing for more than 20 years. The bad boys now are simply segregated in another building. They eat the same, live in the same kind of cells, but they lose their recreation privileges.

Contemned men eating their last dinner can order what they like but they won't always get it. Nothing fancy. Steaks, chops, chicken—yes. But no pheasant under glass. Or no asparagus out of season.

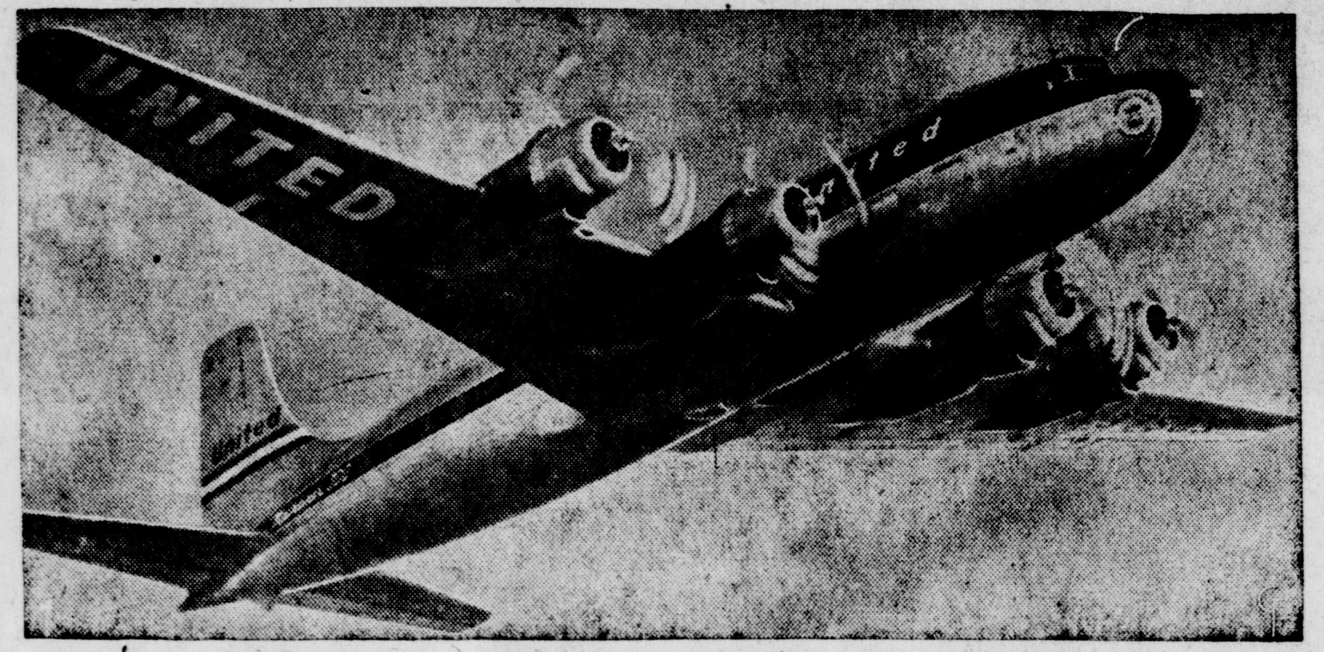
Boeing 40-B2s carried mail and passengers between San Francisco and Chicago in 1927.



Today graceful DC-6 Mainliners carry 50 passengers coast-to-coast at 300 miles an hour.

UNDER THE WINGS OF VETERAN United Air Lines pilots have passed a lot of air transportation history. The nation's oldest airline is celebrating its silver anniversary this year. Pilot Leon D. Cuddeback completed the inaugural flight April 6, 1926, carrying mail between Pasco, Wash., and Elko, Nev., via Boise, Idaho. The company has expanded its route from 460 miles to 13,250 miles, its personnel from 10 to 10,000, and its fleet from six single-engined Swallows to 135 multi-engined airliners and all-cargo carriers. Planes' speed has jumped from 90 mph to 300 mph. (International)

NEW YORK—(INS)

IT SEEMS TO me the most shocking thing said during the recent New York hearings of the Kefauver committee was a passing comment by the chairman to the effect that the cesspool the committee uncovered in the nation's biggest city was no worse, if as bad, as those exposed elsewhere.

The chairman's remarks followed those of Sen. Tobey, on the final day, Tobey having said that Izvestia and Pravda would have a field day with what had been uncovered in New York. Tobey added that one would have to probe the "hinterlands" of America to find decency and cleanliness in public life and government in general.

Rudy Halley, the Senate committee's brilliant young counsel, suggested that the colorful old gentleman from New Hampshire did not exactly mean what he said. And it was then Kefauver remarked that for all its revealed vileness, New York was cleaner per capita than a lot of other cities explored by the committee.

One can agree, therefore, with Tobey when he says, "It is now no longer a question of 'God Bless America', It is a question of 'God Save America'."

If what the committee found elsewhere is worse than it found in New York, it must be said that we are no longer a completely free people. We are the captives of crooks.

Using the sordid New York picture as a yardstick to measure politics elsewhere, and depending on the sworn testimony we heard before the Kefauver committee, it must therefore follow:

1. That U. S. cities visited by the committee during its ten months of life possess or possessed mayors who appointed to responsible positions relatives and friends of contemptible or murderous hoodlums.

2. That vital elements of police departments through the land have been vilely corrupted and no longer serve the interests of the people.

3. That ex-convicts, rich from gambling, narcotic-running, white slavery and extortion, can dictate to officials elected in good faith by the people.

4. That the most murderous elements of the cities enjoy complete immunity from arrest and prosecution if they are wealthy enough.

5. That flagrant flouting of the anti-gambling laws by establishments is condoned in high places, either openly or through refusal to act.

6. That a vast majority of anti-racket investigations are pigeonholed by top officials corrupted by the very underworld figures best calculated to be run out of business if the investigators produced criminal action.

7. That union officials dip deep into their hard-won or extorted treasuries to pay off politicos who have influence to alter city or state labor laws.

8. That potential witnesses against well-placed gangsters can be murdered, and actions against the gangsters concerned forthwith dropped for "lack of evidence."

9. That an important crook in your town can toss Uncle Sam anything he chooses on his income tax returns and not have to fear even as many repercussions as you, an honest person, will have if you make a tiny mistake on your own blanks.

10. That local unions, with the use of goons and thugs operating at the

Firemen Offer Tips On Blaze Reporting Here

Officials of the Cumberland Fire Department estimate that nine out of ten local residents reporting a blaze do not know the telephone number of the station in their section of the city.

However, it was pointed out, a private branch switchboard installed last December at Central Company No. 1 quickly handles all phone calls and saves valuable time.

The normal procedure in reporting a fire is to pick up the phone and give the operator the number of the nearest fire company. Specific directions to the scene should be given firemen to curb delays.

Heretofore, telephone operators called Central when "I want to report a fire" came over the lines. Central, in turn, had to dispatch the company in the area where the fire started. If the line to the stations was busy, as much as three minutes were lost.

Since the switchboard was installed at Central, calls go out immediately after they are received. It isn't necessary for a South End resident to telephone South End station, but the loss of time may mean the difference in saving a life or building.

With the switchboard in operation, companies are dispatched on a multiple hookup so other stations know the location of the fire and are ready to swing into action at once.

The switchboard is connected by individual circuits to each fire company and to the public telephone exchange by two trunk lines with one reserved for emergency calls only.

Installation of the switchboard was recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters' in a survey made here in July, 1948.

Firemen suggest that citizens write the phone number of the nearest station on a calendar or handy place. Those familiar with fire numbers would call 1481 for Central; 1405, South End; 1407, East Side, and 1411, West Side.

Oakland Soldier Dies In Korea

Pfc. Edward L. Martin, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen U. Martin, Route 2, Oakland, was reported yesterday by the Department of Defense as killed in action in Korea.

In a letter dated February 18, Pfc. Martin told his mother he "expected to pull back for a rest with the Eighth Division." He was killed five days later.

Pfc. Martin, who was wounded in action January 13, enlisted in the Army April 1, 1948, and received training in South Carolina and at Camp Belvoir, Va., before going overseas June 31, 1949. He spent 18 months in Japan.

The young soldier was attached to the Fifth Cavalry Regiment which saw action with the First and 24th Infantry Division. He attended Oakland High School before entering the service.

Another area soldier, Pvt. William Robeson Seggie, son of Mrs. Leah R. Devault, Mt. Savage, is missing in action.

Since 1904 the death rate of tuberculosis has been cut 85 per cent.

Eight More Area Draftees Called

Draft Board No. 28 will send eight men to Martinsburg, W. Va., April 9 for induction into the armed forces.

Orders were received yesterday by P. Emmett Fahey, clerk coordinator, who said the contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a. m. The inductees are:

Richard Leonard Sweitzer, Route 3, Bedford Road; Raymond Edward Allamong, 267 Williams Street; James Leon Davis, 12 Euclid Place; John Edward Dougherty, 709 Lincoln Street; Kenneth Getz Monro, 9 South Court Square, Harrisonburg, Va., formerly of Route 1, this city; David Lee Jones, 221 Fulton Street; James Joseph Boyle, 212 Polk Street, and Frederick Willard Porter, Jr., 28 Marion Street.

Fahey said Cumberland draft boards have 4,700 registrants. Frostburg Board No. 30 has 2,600.

Pageant Entrants To Meet Tonight

Entrants in the "Miss Western Maryland" pageant scheduled for May 25 at Fort Hill auditorium will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Junior Chamber of Commerce offices on the fifth floor of the Liberty Trust Company.

Jaycee officials reported yesterday the meeting has been planned to give contestants a general explanation of the pageant.

Judges for the pageant will include a representative from a talent agency in New York and a casting official of the Barter Theater.

Prizes include one-year scholarships to Catherman's Business School and Frostburg State Teachers College, new clothing, a three-day trip to New York with all expenses paid and other prizes.

Four girls have officially signed for the pageant.

Two Stolen Cars Found Wrecked

Two of three automobiles stolen from the Johnson Heights district Wednesday night were later found wrecked, State Police said yesterday.

The damaged 1939 Plymouth sedan of Vernon Portmess, 539 Columbia Avenue, was located behind Fort Hill High School.

Found wrecked on Oldtown Road near Evitt's Creek was the 1940 Chevrolet sedan of Donald Hinkle, 417 Louisiana Avenue.

Authorities said both vehicles were taken from near Fort Hill School where night classes are held. No arrests have been made.

Still missing is the 1946 Chevrolet sedan of Blaine Burgess, Flintstone. Stolen from near Memorial Hospital, the car bears Maryland tags 313-374.

The site of a small French colony established in 1564 near Jacksonville, Fla., may have been submerged when Army engineers altered the course of the St. Johns River 40 years ago.

A Swedish experimental attempt to improve tree seed production by drawing steel bands tightly around trunks to prevent downflow of sap is being tried in the U.S.

Youth Who Wants Boa Constrictor In Collection Stirs Up Neighbors

HARTFORD, Conn. — (AP) — A youngster who wants to add a boa constrictor to the snake collection in his back yard had some neighbors up in arms today.

They appealed to the General Assembly's Public Health and Safety Committee to do something to stop him. Specifically, they asked for a law to make it a crime for anyone, circuses and museums excepted, to keep poisonous, dangerous or deadly snakes.

The boy, Robert Cilley, 16, of Norwich, wasn't present at the hearing, but former Lieutenant Governor Roy C. Wilcox, an old snake hunter himself, was among those who objected to the anti-snake bill.

Said Wilcox:

"I've been hunting snakes for years and keeping them. We've caught thousands of rattlesnakes and copperheads in Connecticut, kept them for awhile and then shipped them to Florida where they made serum out of them to help the boys in the war.

"We've make a contribution to the state in getting those snakes out of here."

H. J. Petrie, one of the neighbors, told the committee it was just too much when the young snake-lover announced he wanted to send for a boa constrictor from a Kansas snake farm.

"It's all right to have water snakes as a hobby," said Petrie. "But a boa constrictor, that's going too far."

First Selectman Thomas Dorsey and James Shugrue, another neighbor, agreed. Said Shugrue:

"It's ridiculous to put a boa constrictor into an area so thickly populated. Why, I've got two kids, ages three and four, and I don't want that big snake around."

George Powell, a professional snake hunter, and a side-kick of the former lieutenant governor, startled the audience by saying:

"Boa constrictors aren't dangerous. Their bite isn't poisonous. Any fairly strong man can handle one. A child four years old is perfectly safe with it."

Shugrue hit the ceiling.

"Well," he shouted, "I don't want my kids having anything to do with a boa constrictor!"

At that, Wilcox said:

"I'll tell you what. Right now, there isn't a boa constrictor in Connecticut. But if this one arrives, and it gets out of the pit, I'll be glad to capture it for you. My telephone is 5-1847 Meriden."

The hearing promptly broke up.

Youth Who Wants Boa Constrictor In Collection Stirs Up Neighbors

HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—A youngster who wants to add a boa constrictor to the snake collection in his back yard had some neighbors up in arms today.

They appealed to the General Assembly's Public Health and Safety Committee to do something to stop him. Specifically, they asked for a law to make it a crime for anyone, circuses and museums excepted, to keep poisonous, dangerous or deadly snakes.

The boy, Robert Cilley, 16, of Norwich, wasn't present at the hearing, but former Lieutenant Governor Roy C. Wilcox, an old snake hunter himself, was among those who objected to the anti-snake bill.

Said Wilcox:

"I've been hunting snakes for years and keeping them. We've caught thousands of rattlesnakes and copperheads in Connecticut, kept them for awhile and then shipped them to Florida where they made serum out of them to help the boys in the war.

"We've make a contribution to the state in getting those snakes out of here."

H. J. Petrie, one of the neighbors, told the committee it was just too much when the young snake-lover announced he wanted to send for a boa constrictor from a Kansas snake farm.

"It's all right to have water snakes as a hobby," said Petrie. "But a boa constrictor, that's going too far."

First Selectman Thomas Dorsey and James Shugrue, another neighbor, agreed. Said Shugrue:

"It's ridiculous to put a boa constrictor into an area so thickly populated. Why, I've got two kids, ages three and four, and I don't want that big snake around."

George Powell, a professional snake hunter, and a side-kick of the former lieutenant governor, startled the audience by saying:

"Boa constrictors aren't dangerous. Their bite isn't poisonous. Any fairly strong man can handle one. A child four years old is perfectly safe with it."

Shugrue hit the ceiling.

"Well," he shouted, "I don't want my kids having anything to do with a boa constrictor!"

At that, Wilcox said:

"I'll tell you what. Right now, there isn't a boa constrictor in Connecticut. But if this one arrives, and it gets out of the pit, I'll be glad to capture it for you. My telephone is 5-1847 Meriden."

The hearing promptly broke up.

Discuss Subway At Council Meet

KEYSER, W. Va. — A subway may be placed near St. Cloud Street under South Mineral Street to be used by school children living in the west end of Keyser.

The proposal was discussed recently by the Mayor and City Council. The subway would be used as a safety measure for foot traffic when the new interstate bridge is opened sometime this year.

The council also discussed the failure of the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Company to repair holes left in the city streets following excavation work. The gas company has been notified that no future permits will be issued to do excavation work within the city until the present dangerous condition is altered.

The city purchased a second hand grader for use on city streets. The order was placed with the Rish Construction Company and the reconditioned grader will cost $2,400. Councilmen Richard Herndon presented copies of petitions that will be used by service veterans in meeting the citizens of Keyser in a campaign to raise $2,000 for the Veterans Memorial to be placed at the Keyser end of the new interstate bridge. The marker will contain names of those who lost their lives in World Wars I and II and in the Korean war. The petitions were authenticated at Tuesday night's meeting.

The easiest way for a lot of folks to reduce would be to live within their means.

It's about time to be thinking about those New Year resolutions that you are going to break!

Keyser Players Will Present Comedy Soon

Club Will Stage Production April 9, 10

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Players Club will present its initial production of the year on Monday and Tuesday, April 9 and 10, in Potomac State School auditorium.

The comedy, "Yes and No," by Kenneth Horne, consists of two acts and an epilogue and is being directed by Mrs. Gweldolyn Gillham, advisor of the club.

Pastor's Family

The story centers around the family of Rev. Richard Jarrow (Carl Davis, Jr.) and his wife, Emma (Peggy Jo Davis). Their youngest daughter, Sally (Patricia Hartsfield) is an aspiring pianist, who maintains an air of unsophistication. Her elder sister, Joanne, (Jo Ann Stangel) is particularly interested in dramatics.

Mrs. Webb (Martha Gainer) works for the Jarrows, but is often exasperated by the absent-mindedness of the minister. The Rev. Mr. Bagshott (Donald Kiddy) is Rev. Jarrow's assistant and is usually a serious young man. "Bags" does, however, have a sense of humor and displays it often during the play.

Complications arise when Adrian Marsh (Louise Everstine), a friend of the family who is leaving for Persia, comes to ask Joanna to marry him. From her answers comes the title for the production, "Yes and No."

Epilogue Gives Answer

Act 1 shows what might have happened if Jo had said "no." Act II relates what might have taken place if Jo had given an affirmative answer. The epilogue shows what Jo actually answered.

Assisting Mrs. Gillham on the production staff are Virginia Kemp, and Arbutus Bosley, stage managers; Betty Judy and Patricia Hulstine, business managers; Eloise Oates, publicity; Edith Awman and Mary Louise Hutter, program; John Herman, Nellie McCoy and Ruth Hodges, technical directors; and Justine Harman, Barbara Colabrese, Margaret Secrist and Mary Lou Jackson, ushers.

Pickets Resume Preston Patrols

KINGWOOD, W. Va. — (AP) — Picketing was resumed without incident in Preston county's non-union coal fields after the funeral Wednesday of slain union sympathizer Joe Arnold, 29, of Kingwood.

Some 75 carloads of miners and their families attended the funeral. State Police Cpl. F. D. Roberts said that later in the day about 30 carloads of pickets toured the area before disbanding peacefully.

Roberts also reported that two mines of the Ruthbell Coal Company, non-union pits near Kingwood, resumed production yesterday. He said they had closed January 23 after the United Mine Workers renewed its organizing drive in the section.

Arnold and two of his companions were shot Saturday in Clay county, nearly 200 miles from here. The two wounded men are expected to recover. Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson identified the trio as union sympathizers.

State Police said the shooting has been admitted by George Burnett Hudson, 57-year-old non-union mine foreman who lived in Clay county and worked near Kingwood. Hudson was quoted that the shooting occurred after the trio asked him to stop working at a non-union mine and threatened his family.

Sheriff Benson's office said about 15 carloads of pickets toured the area yesterday morning and then disbanded.

Keyser Players Will Present Comedy Soon

Club Will Stage Production April 9, 10

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Players Club will present its initial production of the year on Monday and Tuesday, April 9 and 10, in Potomac State School auditorium.

The comedy, "Yes and No," by Kenneth Horne, consists of two acts and an epilogue and is being directed by Mrs. Gweldolyn Gillham, advisor of the club.

Pastor's Family

The story centers around the family of Rev. Richard Jarrow (Carl Davis, Jr.) and his wife, Emma (Peggy Jo Davis). Their youngest daughter, Sally (Patricia Hartsfield) is an aspiring pianist, who maintains an air of unsophistication. Her elder sister, Joanne, (Jo Ann Stangel) is particularly interested in dramatics.

Mrs. Webb (Martha Gainer) works for the Jarrows, but is often exasperated by the absent-mindedness of the minister. The Rev. Mr. Bagshott (Donald Kiddy) is Rev. Jarrow's assistant and is usually a serious young man. "Bags" does, however, have a sense of humor and displays it often during the play.

Complications arise when Adrian Marsh (Louise Everstine), a friend of the family who is leaving for Persia, comes to ask Joanna to marry him. From her answers comes the title for the production, "Yes and No."

Epilogue Gives Answer

Act 1 shows what might have happened if Jo had said "no." Act II relates what might have taken place if Jo had given an affirmative answer. The epilogue shows what Jo actually answered.

Assisting Mrs. Gillham on the production staff are Virginia Kemp, and Arbutus Bosley, stage managers; Betty Judy and Patricia Hulstine, business managers; Eloise Oates, publicity; Edith Awman and Mary Louise Hutter, program; John Herman, Nellie McCoy and Ruth Hodges, technical directors; and Justine Harman, Barbara Colabrese, Margaret Secrist and Mary Lou Jackson, ushers.

Pickets Resume Preston Patrols

KINGWOOD, W. Va. — (AP) — Picketing was resumed without incident in Preston county's non-union coal fields after the funeral Wednesday of slain union sympathizer Joe Arnold, 29, of Kingwood.

Some 75 carloads of miners and their families attended the funeral. State Police Cpl. F. D. Roberts said that later in the day about 30 carloads of pickets toured the area before disbanding peacefully.

Roberts also reported that two mines of the Ruthbell Coal Company, non-union pits near Kingwood, resumed production yesterday. He said they had closed January 23 after the United Mine Workers renewed its organizing drive in the section.

Arnold and two of his companions were shot Saturday in Clay county, nearly 200 miles from here. The two wounded men are expected to recover. Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson identified the trio as union sympathizers.

State Police said the shooting has been admitted by George Burnett Hudson, 57-year-old non-union mine foreman who lived in Clay county and worked near Kingwood. Hudson was quoted that the shooting occurred after the trio asked him to stop working at a non-union mine and threatened his family.

Sheriff Benson's office said about 15 carloads of pickets toured the area yesterday morning and then disbanded.

Bratton Advises Judge His Finances Are Flat

CHICAGO, March 22 (INS) Johnny Bratton, National Boxing Association welterweight champion, told a Chicago Superior Court judge today that his finances are flat, despite the fact that he holds a title.

Bratton was summoned to Judge dolph Desort's court by his ex-wife, Cleadora, and her attorney, Euclid Taylor. Mrs. Bratton said Johnny is $2,355 in alimony arrears and support for his seven-year-old son, Dana.

Bratton said tax liens against recent purses and the expense of two broken jaws had him floored temporarily. Judge Desort gave the champion until Monday to make a $500 payment to his wife.

Bratton won the NBA title last week when he earned a 15-round decision at the Chicago Stadium over Charlie Fusari of Irvington, N. J.

Smith shook up Starkey with a hard right as the fight started. Then "Skeets" flattened his opponent in two minutes. Smith was counted out.

Clarence P. Fletcher, Braddock Road, advised the News last night that the Starkey-Smith fight was televised and the reception was excellent on his set.

Wildcats Top St. John's In Garden, 59-43

Illinois Conquers Wolfpack In Eastern Semi-Final, 84 To 70

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—Kentucky and Illinois staged pell-mell finishes at Madison Square Garden tonight to propel themselves into basketball's NCAA eastern regional tournament finals.

Kentucky walloped St. John's 59 to 43 and Illinois toppled North Carolina State 84 to 70 before 14,214 spectators.

But both the Wildcats and the Illini were in grave peril until they blew their games open in the final five minutes.

The two winners meet Saturday night for the eastern championship with the victor to play the Western regional finalist at Minneapolis next Tuesday night.

Kentucky, beaten only twice during the season and favored in this tournament, left the floor at half time trailing St. Johns 24 to 23 in a game that was almost a carbon copy of their low-scoring regular season contest.

Kentucky won that one 43 to 37, but tonight St. John's was just a little too weary and too battered to make it that close. The Wildcats pulled away to a 34-27 advantage in the opening minutes of the second half.

Frank Ramsey, Lindville, Bill Spivey and little Bobby Watson all played major roles in the Kentucky triumph. Ramsey, with 15 points, and Watson, with 12, led the scorers. For St. John's, Ronnie McGilvray turned in the best game and one of the best of his career.

Big Bob Zawoluk, forced to play outside the keyhole area by the gigantic Spivey, nevertheless led St. John's scoring with 15 points.

North Carolina State, with three regulars ineligible and another starter lost with a dislocated shoulder in the first five minutes of play, made it a lot tougher than the final score indicated.

Illinois left the court at half time with an 11-point lead, 40 to 29, but had to come from behind to pull it out of the fire in the last five minutes. The Wolfpack discovered a yawning avenue in the middle of the Illinois defense and drove ahead of the Illini, 60 to 58, midway through the second half.

Thereafter, the advantage seesawed back and forth until, with North Carolina State leading, 66 to 65, the Illini's marvelous Don Sunderlage slipped in a one-hander from the edge of the foul circle.

Whistling Rod Fletcher quickly made it a three-point lead with a neat lay-up and then the Southerners wilted before a belated Illinois onslaught.

Sunderlage, Fletcher and Ted Beach were the leaders of the Illinois offense with 21, 19 and 17 points, respectively. Thirteen of Fletcher's came in the crucial second half after he had electrified the spectators with a 70-foot field goal just as the intermission buzzer sounded.

AGGIES WIN, 50-46

KANSAS CITY, March 22 (AP) — Joe McKephen, a scrawny 145-pound guard, scared the living daylights out of Oklahoma A. and M. before the nation's No. two basketball team eked out a 50-46 victory over Montana State in the Western NCAA playoffs tonight.

Davis and Giosa Fight at Garden

Giosa has been substituted for lightweight champion Ike Williams, who bowed out of the fight because of an injured shoulder.

Originally, Williams had been scheduled to meet Canada's Fitzie Pruden, but Fitzie asked to be excused because the fight falls on Good Friday. Davis was substituted for Pruden.

Giants To Carry Eight Twirlers On Squad Of 23

Leo Doesn't Want Too Many Extras Around

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Leo Durocher thinks one of the reasons for the low quality of major league baseball is the large quantity of manpower.

The loquacious leader of the New York Giants created a bit of a stir today when he said he planned to carry only 23 men including eight pitchers instead of the usual 10 or 11. The May 25 limit permits a club to carry 25 men.

"What's the use of having fellows on the club just to sit around on the bench?" he asked. "The good team is the one where everybody plays ball and knows what to do. You get more out of a compact group with everybody working than from a bunch with extras hanging around, coming and going. With 25 men on a club, some are bound to sit around doing nothing. That breeds discontentment.

"Take your pitching staff, for instance. Who needs more than eight pitchers, provided they are good pitchers? The only time anyone else gets any chance is in a 9-1 game.

"We went with four starting pitchers and two extras almost all the way after July 20 last summer," Leo pointed out. "Eight pitchers at the most are all a club needs."

Durocher admitted it will be tough to pick out eight pitchers out of his 15 but anticipated little trouble weeding out the other 15 players.

The fiery skipper figured the club would consist of six outfielders, seven infielders, and two catchers besides his mound corps.

Good Humor Man

Even If Marrero Doesn't Win Game Nats Should Keep Him For Laughs

Portly Cuban Has Way Of Relaxing Players

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP) — There's a suspicion that even if Conrado (Connie) Marrero didn't win a game for the Washington Nats, they'd keep him around for laughs.

The portly Cuban righthander has really caught on with his teammates. He has instilled spirit lacking in the club for years.

But Manager Bucky Harris calls him a smart pitcher too.

"And the year of experience he picked up last season should benefit him," the team boss said. "He keeps the team in a good humor and his humor is never misplaced."

Marrero is an accomplished mimic who can imitate expertly the actions of Harris with variations depending on whether the Nats won or lost.

The 158-pound, 5-7 Marrero who says he'll be only 34 next May 1, is learning English adequately. Adequately to him is just enough to get by. At least he's better off than last year when he'd look at somebody's else's plate in the dining room and say:

"Same sing, please."

Connie has a way of relaxing the club. Last season in a tight spot he struck out Ted Williams, returned to the bench wide-eyed and rubbing his thumb and forefinger together. He said to Harris:

"Me get raise, huh?"

When club secretary Eddie Eynon gaveh im a costly cigar after a winning effort, Marrero beamed and said:

"Me win alla time now."

He couldn't fulfill that prediction, winning six and losing 10 last year—his first in the majors after three years with Havana of the Florida-International League.

He never won less than 20 games a season with Havana.

Bratton Advises Judge His Finances Are Flat

CHICAGO, March 22 (INS) Johnny Bratton, National Boxing Association welterweight champion, told a Chicago Superior Court judge today that his finances are flat, despite the fact that he holds a title.

Bratton was summoned to Judge Adolph Desort's court by his ex-wife, Cleadora, and her attorney, Euclid Taylor. Mrs. Bratton said Johnny is $2,355 in alimony arrears and support for his seven-year-old son, Dana.

Bratton said tax liens against recent purses and the expense of two broken jaws had him floored temporarily. Judge Desort gave the champion until Monday to make a $500 payment to his wife.

Bratton won the NBA title last week when he earned a 15-round decision at the Chicago Stadium over Charlie Fusari of Irvington, N. J.

Smith shook up Starkey with a hard right as the fight started. Then "Skeets" flattened his opponent in two minutes. Smith was counted out.

Clarence P. Fletcher, Braddock Road, advised the News last night that the Starkey-Smith fight was televised and the reception was excellent on his set.

Wildcats Top St. John's In Garden, 59-43

Illinois Conquers Wolfpack In Eastern Semi-Final, 84 To 70

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—Kentucky and Illinois staged pell-mell finishes at Madison Square Garden tonight to propel themselves into basketball's NCAA eastern regional tournament finals.

Kentucky walloped St. John's 59 to 43 and Illinois toppled North Carolina State 84 to 70 before 14,214 spectators.

But both the Wildcats and the Illini were in grave peril until they blew their games open in the final five minutes.

The two winners meet Saturday night for the eastern championship with the victor to play the Western regional finalist at Minneapolis next Tuesday night.

Kentucky, beaten only twice during the season and favored in this tournament, left the floor at half time trailing St. Johns 24 to 23 in a game that was almost a carbon copy of their low-scoring regular season contest.

Kentucky won that one 43 to 37, but tonight St. John's was just a little too weary and too battered to make it that close. The Wildcats pulled away to a 34-27 advantage in the opening minutes of the second half.

Frank Ramsey, Lindville, Bill Spivey and little Bobby Watson all played major roles in the Kentucky triumph. Ramsey, with 15 points, and Watson, with 12, led the scorers. For St. John's, Ronnie McGilvray turned in the best game and one of the best of his career.

Big Bob Zawoluk, forced to play outside the keyhole area by the gigantic Spivey, nevertheless led St. John's scoring with 15 points.

North Carolina State, with three regulars ineligible and another starter lost with a dislocated shoulder in the first five minutes of play, made it a lot tougher than the final score indicated.

Illinois left the court at half time with an 11-point lead, 40 to 29, but had to come from behind to pull it out of the fire in the last five minutes. The Wolfpack discovered a yawning avenue in the middle of the Illinois defense and drove ahead of the Illini, 60 to 58, midway through the second half.

Thereafter, the advantage seesawed back and forth until, with North Carolina State leading, 66 to 65, the Illini's marvelous Don Sunderlage slipped in a one-hander from the edge of the foul circle.

Sunderlage, Fletcher and Ted Beach were the leaders of the Illinois offense with 21, 19 and 17 points, respectively. Thirteen of Fletcher's came in the crucial second half after he had electrified the spectators with a 70-foot field goal just as the intermission buzzer sounded.

AGGIES WIN, 50-46

KANSAS CITY, March 22 (AP) — Joe McKephen, a scrawny 145-pound guard, scared the living daylights out of Oklahoma A. and M. before the nation's No. two basketball team eked out a 50-46 victory over Montana State in the Western NCAA playoffs tonight.

Davis and Giosa Fight at Garden

Giosa has been substituted for lightweight champion Ike Williams, who bowed out of the fight because of an injured shoulder.

Originally, Williams had been scheduled to meet Canada's Fitzie Pruden, but Fitzie asked to be excused because the fight falls on Good Friday. Davis was substituted for Pruden.

Giants To Carry Eight Twirlers On Squad Of 23

Leo Doesn't Want Too Many Extras Around

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Leo Durocher thinks one of the reasons for the low quality of major league baseball is the large quantity of manpower.

The loquacious leader of the New York Giants created a bit of a stir today when he said he planned to carry only 23 men including eight pitchers instead of the usual 10 or 11. The May 25 limit permits a club to carry 25 men.

"What's the use of having fellows on the club just to sit around on the bench?" he asked. "The good team is the one where everybody plays ball and knows what to do. You get more out of a compact group with everybody working than from a bunch with extras hanging around, coming and going. With 25 men on a club, some are bound to sit around doing nothing. That breeds discontentment.

"Take your pitching staff, for instance. Who needs more than eight pitchers, provided they are good pitchers? The only time anyone else gets any chance is in a 9-1 game.

"We went with four starting pitchers and two extras almost all the way after July 20 last summer," Leo pointed out. "Eight pitchers at the most are all a club needs."

Durocher admitted it will be tough to pick out eight pitchers out of his 15 but anticipated little trouble weeding out the other 15 players.

The fiery skipper figured the club would consist of six outfielders, seven infielders, and two catchers besides his mound corps.

Good Humor Man

Even If Marrero Doesn't Win Game Nats Should Keep Him For Laughs

Portly Cuban Has Way Of Relaxing Players

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP) — There's a suspicion that even if Conrado (Connie) Marrero didn't win a game for the Washington Nats, they'd keep him around for laughs.

The portly Cuban righthander has really caught on with his teammates. He has instilled spirit lacking in the club for years.

But Manager Bucky Harris calls him a smart pitcher too.

"And the year of experience he picked up last season should benefit him," the team boss said. "He keeps the team in a good humor and his humor is never misplaced."

Marrero is an accomplished mimic who can imitate expertly the actions of Harris with variations depending on whether the Nats won or lost.

The 158-pound, 5-7 Marrero who says he'll be only 34 next May 1, is learning English adequately. Adequately to him is just enough to get by. At least he's better off than last year when he'd look at somebody's else's plate in the dining room and say:

"Same sing, please."

Connie has a way of relaxing the club. Last season in a tight spot he struck out Ted Williams, returned to the bench wide-eyed and rubbing his thumb and forefinger together. He said to Harris:

"Me get raise, huh?"

When club secretary Eddie Eynon gaveh im a costly cigar after a winning effort, Marrero beamed and said:

"Me win alla time now."

He couldn't fulfill that prediction, winning six and losing 10 last year—his first in the majors after three years with Havana of the Florida-International League.

He never won less than 20 games a season with Havana.

Laurel Opens Spring Racing Season Today

Ten Vie In Feature At Maryland Miler

Stiff competition for Magnet is contained in nine other entries for the $7,500 prize.

The Good Friday opening is the earliest in Maryland racing history and starts 55 days of the sport at the state's three major tracks. Laurel will run for 24 days, Bowie for 12 and Pimlico for 19.

The picturesque Laurel track between Baltimore and Washington is under new management. The Maryland Jockey Club, owner of Pimlico, sold it to Morris Schapiro, Baltimore scrap company owner.

The highlight of the Laurel session will be the Chesapeake Stakes which was taken over from Havre de Grace where racing was abandoned this year. The Chesapeake on April 14 is the state's major warm-up for the Kentucky Derby and subsequent 3-year-old classics.

The caliber of the field facing Magnet is indicated in the weights assigned for the six-furlong race by Racing Secretary Charles McLennan. He put only 110 on last year's Capitol winner while Bedford Stable's call over will have to carry 122.

Maine Chance Farm's Admirals Pride is weighted next to call over with 114 pounds. Admirals Pride tied the Hialeah track record of 1:09 3/5 for six furlongs during his Florida campaign.

The other Capitol entries are Carolyn K Stable's Wiffenpoof 114, Dion K. Kerr, Jr.'s Flying Weather 113, W. Y. Goldsborough's Binky B 112, Valenti Stable's Lilly Valenti 112, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Suleiman 110, Cedar Farm's Halter 109 and Sam Aldenson's Manchac 109.

NATS EDGE RED SOX

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Starter Sid Hudson and Gene Bearden held the Boston Red Sox to seven hits today as the Washington Senators gained a 6-5 decision before 2,487 fans.

Boston pitcher Ellis Kinder was brilliant in his first game action of the spring training season but by the time he got into the contest, the Nats had landed on Mel Parnell for a five-run fifth inning. Washington combined five hits, an error and two walks in the splurge, adding a run off Kinder in the eighth. Score:

Washington (A) ...... 000 050 010—6 9 3
Boston (A) .... 100 001 201—5 7 1
Hudson, Bearden (6) and Grasso, Okrie (7); Parnell, Kinder (6) and Batts.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the tenth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

NEW YORK YANKEES
Finish in '50: First
Last pennant: 1950
Leading pitcher: Vic Raschi (21-8)
Leading hitter: Phil Rizzuto (.324)
(Averages are for 1950)

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Casey Stengel denies he used a ouija board as manager of the New York Yankees during their last two championship seasons, but he frankly admits he would like to have one now. "Maybe it'll tell me what I'm supposed to do without Whitey Ford, Bobby Brown and Tommy Henrich," he says.

The Boston Red Sox have strengthened themselves with the addition of Pitchers Ray Scarborough and Bill Wight and the Indians claim that they will be stronger, what with the added experience and one thing and another, but where have the Yankees improved?

"Well, now," ol' Casey says. "I don't think it's as bad as that. We've still got a fella named DiMaggio and one by the name of Rizzuto and a guy called Berra and one called Mize. Is that bad?"

However, Casey wonders how much mileage he'll get out of Joe DiMaggio, who has just passed his 36th birthday, and out of Johnny Mize, who has passed his 37th, and out of Joe Page, the once great fireman who was of little use to the club in 1950 because of injuries.

• — • — •

IN A WORD, the Yankees are uncertain. They are terribly thin in outfield strength and they haven't much in the way of infield reserves. They are strong behind the plate with Yogi Berra, but they have a glaring lack of pitching depth.

"I'd like a couple more pitchers," Stengel says, "because I think we'll be able to use them. But show me the club that wouldn't be able to use a few more pitchers."

After you've named Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne you have some difficulty finding another dependable Yankee starter. Fred Sanford is a distinct possibility and so is Bob Porterfield. But after that you're stumped.

The Yankees have six outfielders on their roster and only four—DiMaggio, Hank Bauer, Gene Woodling and Cliff Mapes—have been found to be tried and true. For that matter, Mapes batted only .247 last year and Woodling's .283 mark lacked luster.

The other two outfielders are Jackie Jensen, the bonus beauty from the campus of the University of California who has had only one year of minor league seasoning, and Hank Workman, a University of Southern California graduate who batted a mere .267 at Kansas City.

And then the $64 question is: How many games can DiMaggio play this year? Stengel says he is certain to play more than 100 and DiMaggio himself says he will play as many as he did last year (139) but close observers are shaking their heads in wonder.

• — • — •

IN THE MIDDLE of the infield the Yankees are strong — perhaps stronger than any club in the league. Phil Rizzuto, the AL's most valuable player of 1950, a .324 hitter, is a frisky 32 and Gerry Coleman, slick second baseman, is rapidly becoming a master.

However, at first base and at third base the Yankees pose grave doubts.

If nothing else, they have more first basemen than any other club—the aging Mize, a sensational surprise last year with his 25 homers in little more than half the season; a National league castoff in Johnny Hopp, who is 35, and a .234 hitter in Joe Collins.

Billy Johnson seems destined to carry the burden alone at third base, which he shared last year with Bobby Brown. Stengel switched them against rival pitchers, but now Dr. Brown is fr-en to his internship in San Francisco. If he leaves that job the Army will grab him.

Berra, who has probably not yet reached his peak at 26, gives Stengel little cause for concern. To the contrary, the Yankee pilot expects Yogi to improve on his .322 mark and his 28 homers. Stengel says Berra is just now learning how to play this game. But if reserve catchers are needed the Yankees have Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera.

• — • — •

RASCHI, Lopat, Reynolds and Byrne won 70 of the Yankees' 98 victories last year and there is little doubt that they may do as well again. Lopat, who won 18, and Byrne, who won 15, will have to repeat their top performances, however, to keep the Yankees in the running. Raschi posted 21 and Reynolds 16.

"Joe Page has looked pretty well this spring," Casey says, "and it's just as well. We may need him an awful lot this year."

At that, Page is probably more likely to return to a semblance of his 1949 form, a year in which he gathered many votes for the most valuable award, than Tom Ferrick is to win eight games again in relief roles. In any event, one of the two will have to prove they have not lost that magic relief touch.

Whitey Ford, the southpaw gamester who came from virtually nowhere to win nine in a row for the Yankees in the last half of the 1950 season and pitch them right into the World Series, is in the Army now and that is the hardest blow of all.

"I don't see how we'll be able to replace him," Stengel moans.

• — • — •

THE YANKEES have some brilliant young talent assigned to their top minor league clubs and it's not all pitching. They have some flashy infielders, some slugging outfielders and a few promising catchers, all of whom Stengel gave the once-over at the prep school here in Phoenix before the regulars arrived.

Perhaps the best of the lot is switch-hitting Mickey Mantle, 19-year-old phenom who batted .383 at Joplin last season. Mantle came to camp as a shortstop, but he was soon turned into an outfielder. Tommy Henrich, now a coach, has taken Mantle under his wing.

Gil McDougald, a second baseman at Beaumont last year who was voted the most valuable player in the Texas league, has been converted into a third baseman. A line-drive hitter with an odd stance at the plate, he is being groomed as the successor of Johnson.

Jim Brideweser, a shortstop from the campus of the University of Southern California, and Jerry Snyder, a 21-year-old second baseman with four years of professional experience behind him already, closely watch Rizzuto and Coleman in the hope that they may someday step in.

• — • — •

THERE IS little likelihood that Berra will be replaced in the immediate future, but the Yankees have two outstanding prospects in Clint Courtney, a bespectacled catcher who prepped at Beaumont last year, and young Gus Triandos, a powerfully built youth who has a wealth of long-ball promise.

Stengel is especially high on Tom Morgan, a 17-game winner at Binghamton last year; Ernie Nevel, a 21-game winner for Beaumont, and Bob Wiesler, a left-handed fireballer who was something of a sensation at Joplin.

"They're all fine looking kids," Casey said, "but we don't yet know whether they're ready for the big leagues. If you ask me if any of them are ready to step in and take the place of Whitey Ford, the answer is no."

There is a growing suspicion around the Yankee camp that Tommy Henrich, pinch hitter deluxe last season, will return to an active status before the season is over. His gimpy knee, which caused him to join the coaching staff, has pained him less this spring than it did last.

"It's up to him whether or not he wants to play," Casey said. "It would be foolish of me to say that we can use him. You know darned well we can!"

Racing Suspended At Lincoln Downs Because Of Snow

LINCOLN, R. I., March 22 (AP)—The afternoon racing program at Lincoln Downs was suspended after the second race today because of the snow.

About 3500 spectators were in the stands to watch what was to have been an eight-race program. After the first race, jockeys complained that the driving snow had blinded them most of the time.

The track management announced the cancellation immediately after the second race was run.

The daily double was won by Mrs. William Hinphy's Indian Barney and Walter Wilkerson's Bambi Lynne. It paid $33 to each of 345 ticket holders. Indian Barney won the first race and Bambi Lynne the second.

Japhap Pays $81.70 To Win Fourth Race At Gulfstream Park

HALLANDALE, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Why horse players go batty down here was again illustrated today when T. D. Buhl's Japhap won the fourth race of the afternoon at Gulfstream Park, paying $81.70, $32.40 and $16.50 across the board.

Japhap had been beaten a total of 82 lengths in his last four starts this winter, but he had the speed this time and came on to whip Bold Knot by a neck, running seven furlongs in 1:25 4/5.

He also was a "gift" for Apprentice Jimmy Picou, who came out of a long slump on the gelded son of Alsab. It was Picou's first winner of the meeting. The Prophet was third, while nine other platers completed the field.

J. J. Nolans Roseada, $5.10 choice, was all out to take the third, a dash of three furlongs for maiden 2-year-olds. Ridden by Logan Batcheller, she outgamed Busy Indian by a half-length, while I'm Sandy got third. The time was brisk, .33 flat.

Longshot players got off on the right foot when Mon Torch, ridden by Anthony Tavares, romped off with the opener, paying $33.10 straight.

Laurel Opens Spring Racing Season Today

Ten Vie In Feature At Maryland Miler

Stiff competition for Magnet is contained in nine other entries for the $7,500 prize.

The Good Friday opening is the earliest in Maryland racing history and starts 55 days of the sport at the state's three major tracks. Laurel will run for 24 days, Bowie for 12 and Pimlico for 19.

The picturesque Laurel track between Baltimore and Washington is under new management. The Maryland Jockey Club, owner of Pimlico, sold it to Morris Schapiro, Baltimore scrap company owner.

The highlight of the Laurel session will be the Chesapeake Stakes which was taken over from Havre de Grace where racing was abandoned this year. The Chesapeake on April 14 is the state's major warm-up for the Kentucky Derby and subsequent 3-year-old classics.

The caliber of the field facing Magnet is indicated in the weights assigned for the six-furlong race by Racing Secretary Charles McLennan. He put only 110 on last year's Capitol winner while Bedford Stable's call over will have to carry 122.

Maine Chance Farm's Admirals Pride is weighted next to call over with 114 pounds. Admirals Pride tied the Hialeah track record of 1:09 3/5 for six furlongs during his Florida campaign.

NATS EDGE RED SOX

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Starter Sid Hudson and Gene Bearden held the Boston Red Sox to seven hits today as the Washington Senators gained a 6-5 decision before 2,487 fans.

Boston pitcher Ellis Kinder was brilliant in his first game action of the spring training season but by the time he got into the contest, the Nats had landed on Mel Parnell for a five-run fifth inning. Washington combined five hits, an error and two walks in the splurge, adding a run off Kinder in the eighth. Score:

Washington (A)	...... 000 050 010—6	9	3
Boston (A)	.... 100 001 201—5	7	1

Hudson, Bearden (6) and Grasso, Okrie (7); Parnell, Kinder (6) and Batts.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the tenth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By S. D. ROCKWELL
Central Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK YANKEES
Finish in '50: First
Last pennant: 1950
Leading pitcher:
Vic Raschi (21-8)
Leading hitter:
Phil Rizzuto (.324)
(Averages are for 1950)

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Casey Stengel denies he used a ouija board as manager of the New York Yankees during their last two championship seasons, but he frankly admits he would like to have one now. "Maybe it'll tell me what I'm supposed to do without Whitey Ford, Bobby Brown and Tommy Henrich," he says.

The Boston Red Sox have strengthened themselves with the addition of Pitchers Ray Scarborough and Bill Wight and the Indians claim that they will be stronger, what with the added experience and one thing and another, but where have the Yankees improved?

"Well, now," ol' Casey says. "I don't think it's as bad as that. We've still got a fella named DiMaggio and one by the name of Rizzuto and a guy called Berra and one called Mize. Is that bad?"

However, Casey wonders how much mileage he'll get out of Joe DiMaggio, who has just passed his 36th birthday, and out of Johnny Mize, who has passed his 37th, and out of Joe Page, the once great fireman who was of little use to the club in 1950 because of injuries.

• — • — •

IN A WORD, the Yankees are uncertain. They are terribly thin in outfield strength and they haven't much in the way of infield reserves. They are strong behind the plate with Yogi Berra, but they have a glaring lack of pitching depth.

"I'd like a couple more pitchers," Stengel says, "because I think we'll be able to use them. But show me the club that wouldn't be able to use a few more pitchers."

After you've named Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne you have some difficulty finding another dependable Yankee starter. Fred Sanford is a distinct possibility and so is Bob Porterfield. But after that you're stumped.

The Yankees have six outfielders on their roster and only four—DiMaggio, Hank Bauer, Gene Woodling and Cliff Mapes—have been found to be tried and true. For that matter, Mapes batted only .247 last year and Woodling's .283 mark lacked luster.

The other two outfielders are Jackie Jensen, the bonus beauty from the campus of the University of California who has had only one year of minor league seasoning, and Hank Workman, a University of Southern California graduate who batted a mere .267 at Kansas City.

And then the $64 question is: How many games can DiMaggio play this year? Stengel says he is certain to play more than 100 and DiMaggio himself says he will play as many as he did last year (139) but close observers are shaking their heads in wonder.

• — • — •

IN THE MIDDLE of the infield the Yankees are strong — perhaps stronger than any club in the league. Phil Rizzuto, the AL's most valuable player of 1950, a .324 hitter, is a frisky 32 and Gerry Coleman, slick second baseman, is rapidly becoming a master.

However, at first base and at third base the Yankees pose grave doubts.

If nothing else, they have more first basemen than any other club—the aging Mize, a sensational surprise last year with his 25 homers in little more than half the season; a National league castoff in Johnny Hopp, who is 35, and a .234 hitter in Joe Collins.

Billy Johnson seems destined to carry the burden alone at third base, which he shared last year with Bobby Brown. Stengel switched them against rival pitchers, but now Dr. Brown is frozen to his internship in San Francisco. If he leaves that job the Army will grab him.

Berra, who has probably not yet reached his peak at 26, gives Stengel little cause for concern. To the contrary, the Yankee pilot expects Yogi to improve on his .322 mark and his 28 homers. Stengel says Berra is just now learning how to play this game. But if reserve catchers are needed the Yankees have Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera.

• — • — •

RASCHI, Lopat, Reynolds and Byrne won 70 of the Yankees' 98 victories last year and there is little doubt that they may do as well again. Lopat, who won 18, and Byrne, who won 15, will have to repeat their top performances, however, to keep the Yankees in the running. Raschi posted 21 and Reynolds 16.

"Joe Page has looked pretty well this spring," Casey says, "and it's just as well. We may need him an awful lot this year."

At that, Page is probably more likely to return to a semblance of his 1949 form, a year in which he gathered many votes for the most valuable award, than Tom Ferrick is to win eight games again in relief roles. In any event, one of the two will have to prove they have not lost that magic relief touch.

Whitey Ford, the southpaw gamester who came from virtually nowhere to win nine in a row for the Yankees in the last half of the 1950 season and pitch them right into the World Series, is in the Army now and that is the hardest blow of all.

"I don't see how we'll be able to replace him," Stengel moans.

• — • — •

THE YANKEES have some brilliant young talent assigned to their top minor league clubs and it's not all pitching. They have some flashy infielders, some slugging outfielders and a few promising catchers, all of whom Stengel gave the once-over at the prep school here in Phoenix before the regulars arrived.

Perhaps the best of the lot is switch-hitting Mickey Mantle, 19-year-old phenom who batted .383 at Joplin last season. Mantle came to camp as a shortstop, but he was soon turned into an outfielder. Tommy Henrich, now a coach, has taken Mantle under his wing.

Gil McDougald, a second baseman at Beaumont last year who was voted the most valuable player in the Texas league, has been converted into a third baseman. A line-drive hitter with an odd stance at the plate, he is being groomed as the successor of Johnson.

Jim Brideweser, a shortstop from the campus of the University of Southern California, and Jerry Snyder, a 21-year-old second baseman with four years of professional experience behind him already, closely watch Rizzuto and Coleman in the hope that they may someday step in.

• — • — •

THERE IS little likelihood that Berra will be replaced in the immediate future, but the Yankees have two outstanding prospects in Clint Courtney, a bespectacled catcher who prepped at Beaumont last year, and young Gus Triandos, a powerfully built youth who has a wealth of long-ball promise.

Stengel is especially high on Tom Morgan, a 17-game winner at Binghamton last year; Ernie Nevel, a 21-game winner for Beaumont, and Bob Wiesler, a left-handed fireballer who was something of a sensation at Joplin.

"They're all fine looking kids," Casey said, "but we don't yet know whether they're ready for the big leagues. If you ask me if any of them are ready to step in and take the place of Whitey Ford, the answer is no."

There is a growing suspicion around the Yankee camp that Tommy Henrich, pinch hitter deluxe last season, will return to an active status before the season is over. His gimpy knee, which caused him to join the coaching staff, has pained him less this spring than it did last.

"It's up to him whether or not he wants to play," Casey said. "It would be foolish of me to say that we can use him. You know darned well we can!"

Racing Suspended At Lincoln Downs Because Of Snow

LINCOLN, R. I., March 22 (AP)—The afternoon racing program at Lincoln Downs was suspended after the second race today because of the snow.

About 3500 spectators were in the stands to watch what was to have been an eight-race program. After the first race, jockeys complained that the driving snow had blinded them most of the time.

The track management announced the cancellation immediately after the second race was run.

The daily double was won by Mrs. William Hinphy's Indian Barney and Walter Wilkerson's Bambi Lynne. It paid $33 to each of 345 ticket holders. Indian Barney won the first race and Bambi Lynne the second.

Japhap Pays $81.70 To Win Fourth Race At Gulfstream Park

HALLANDALE, Fla., March 2 (AP) — Why horse players go batty down here was again illustrated today when T. D. Buhl's Japhap won the fourth race of the afternoon at Gulfstream Park, paying $81.70, $32.40 and $16.50 across the board.

Japhap had been beaten a total of 82 lengths in his last four starts this winter, but he had the speed this time and came on to whip Bold Knot by a neck, running seven furlongs in 1:25 4/5.

He also was a "gift" for Apprentice Jimmy Picou, who came out of a long slump on the gelded son of Alsab. It was Picou's first winner of the meeting. The Prophet was third, while nine other platers completed the field.

J. J. Nolans Roseada, $5.10 choice, was all out to take the third, a dash of three furlongs for maiden 2-year-olds. Ridden by Logan Batcheller, she outgamed Busy Indian by a half-length, while I'm Sandy got third. The time was brisk, .33 flat.

Longshot players got off on the right foot when Mon Torch, ridden by Anthony Tavares, romped off with the opener, paying $33.10 straight.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (INS)—Donald O'Connor's first job since he and Universal-International kissed each other goodbye on an exclusive contract is a honey. Don goes to MGM to team up with Gene Kelly in "Singin In The Rain" which also has that cute Debbie Reynolds in the lineup.

Don O'Connor

I can tell Don a little secret: Gene Kelly plugged so hard with his bosses to get O'Connor for his co-star that he oughta get 10 per cent. Gene has been a fan of Don's ever since the "Francis" comedies—and what's more, he thinks Don a heck of a dancer.

They'll play a couple of vaudeville hoofers who crash Hollywood. Gene also co-directs with Stan Donen. Arthur Freed, who produces, wrote all the music—some lineup of talent if you ask me.

Greta Garbo has just closed a deal selling her home on Bedford Drive for $50,000 although it was valued at $20,000 more. As soon as the deal went into escrow the Garbo ordered her furniture to be packed and shipped to New York, so it seems that she will make her future home there.

Dusty and Jean Negulesco have bought the place and will move in as soon as GG moves out.

Looks as if Deborah Kerr will have another trip to Europe this summer and it won't be a vacation.

She will be teamed with Robert Taylor in MGM's "Ivanhoe." This will be the second time they'll make a picture in Europe together. Bob and Deborah are, of course, the stars in "Quo Vadis," made in Rome.

Elizabeth Taylor has rented an apartment on the south side of Beverly Hills and she's busy furnishing it. Living with her will be a secretary-companion, and this is a real heartbreak to her father and mother who had hoped she would come home.

In the meantime, MGM is trying to talk Elizabeth out of giving interviews about her numerous boy friends.

Liz may be interested in hearing—if Nicky Hilton hasn't already told her—that he has acquired some oil wells.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Graves (he's the actor who made a hit in "Rogue River") are expecting a baby in the fall.

Phyllis Pittinger, sister-in-law of Jimmy Roosevelt, has quietly filed a divorce suit against Dick Pittinger, former 20th publicity man. Phyllis is the sister of Romelle, Roosevelt's wife, and the Pittingers have three children.

Dorothy Kirsten is packing all her furniture to send to San Antonio and closing her house here. Her bridegroom-to-be, Dr. Eugene Chapman, is building her a beautiful French provincial home. She says there is no date set for the wedding as yet.

Gene Nelson will act as master of ceremonies for the annual musical play given by his old high school in Santa Monica. What excitement there will be among the girl grads.

Irving Berlin flew to Phoenix today to meet Mrs. Berlin and help her celebrate her birthday. Congratulations to Ellin, who is a fine person.

Harry Akst's song, "Goodbye, G. I. Al," is already popular in New York. Now Eddie Fisher comes here to record it for Harry. My guess is that it will be a sensation.

Ned Washington, composer of "My Foolish Heart," and his wife have separated after 13 years of marriage. Mrs. Washington, who as Zoe Allen was a Broadway singer and dancer, plans to file divorce action soon.

The Alfred Hitchcocks and their daughter, Pat, sail from New York Sunday for a two-month tour of Italy and Switzerland.

Wonder that Lionel Barrymore is well enough to do two pictures in a row. He first does "Banner Line" and then goes immediately into "The Man With the Cloak."

Barbara Stanwyck is the latest flu victim and she'd bedded at home.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

WHO IS IN THE LEAD?

WHETHER a particular contract gets made or not can depend often on who has the lead at some important stage of the play, or perhaps at several different stages. It may mean the difference between the lead coming up to guarded honors or going through them, and hence can influence several tricks. On some deals, you see a bunch of fine players fighting to get rid of the high cards which would cause them to win certain tricks. They are seeking exits as frantically as a panicked audience in a burning theater.

Having bullied himself into keeping out of the bidding, West led his club 4, which the J won over the 9. Realizing the danger of being in the lead and hoping East could get in to lead a club at some stage, West had a mean assignment. When the diamond 4 was led, he played low, hoping South might finesse the 10 to a possible J But the Q won that and the 3 to the K forced West in with the A. Striving to unblock, he led the heart Q, which the K won. The diamond J and 10 were scored then, West tossing away the heart J and 6 to unblock for a possible 10 in the East The spade J was finessed, and West was in again with the Q. Now his safe return was the spade 9 to the A and South was beaten, having to drop one trick in hearts and two in clubs.

South had thought of taking a second heart after his first one, then putting West in with the J. But West would have put that card on the second heart top, building the 10 for East, who could have returned a club to beat the contract. After West shed two hearts on the diamonds, South could have scored two spade tops and put West in with the J to the Q, compelling a lead to the club K for South's game trick.

But if West had tossed one club and the heart J on the diamonds to retain a small heart, that try by South would have been thwarted. The heart 6 could have put East in with the 10 after West won with the spade Q, and a club return would have put the blocks to the declarer. His sole chance for the contract developed when West discarded two hearts on the diamonds, but he foiled himself when he tried the spade finesse instead of making West win the third spade, which would have left him only clubs to return.

Mirror Of Your Mind

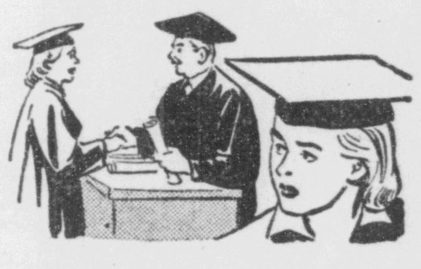
By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Are most great men "realistic"?

Answer: Usually not in the same sense as ordinary mortals. The main difference is in the great man's attitude toward what the rest of us would "realistically" see as obstacles to the achievement of our goals, but which the great man manages to ignore or surmount—as Beethoven, for instance, did his deafness. But confidence based on mere wishful thinking will not make a man great, and in so far as their unique natural gifts make possible for them what is impossible for most of us, great men have their own special kind of "realism."

Can matter triumph over mind?

Answer: Apparently, in some cases. On the theory that when obesity is the result of neurotic over-eating, what the person really craves is an emotionally reassuring sense of fullness, chemists have developed a harmless substance known as "mucilose" which will fill a person's stomach without giving him calories which he does not need. It is said that after having fooled his sense in this way, a stout person will "leave food on his plate." Dr. A. J. Jonas reports that with his patients, this method of treatment produced weight reductions of an average of 2.5% per month.



Are scholarship awards biased?

Answer: They would seem to be, say Drs. Irving Lorge and Rose Kushner of Teachers College, New York. The apparent bias does not involve racial or religious backgrounds, but the subjects which the givers of awards seem to think most important. The fact that more boys than girls receive scholarships does not mean that the boys are brighter, but that they more often specialize in science and mathematics, whereas girls are more apt to choose the "humanities."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

A Jury Of 20,000,000 Persons

THE KEFAUVER Committee hearings in New York were sponsored by "Time" magazine over a 19-city television network (and were broadcast unsponsored over a good many other stations) to an audience estimated at 20,000,000 persons.

John Crosby

I bring up the size of the audience because it is probably the most controversial point raised by the televised hearings on a number of counts. The fact that millions of persons were viewing the proceedings sharply modified the answers and the behavior of witnesses. Ambassador O'Dwyer at one point in his testimony protested that he wanted the record on a particular matter made very clear because so many people were watching. The implication was plain that he wouldn't have cared so much if the cameras weren't on him.

•—•—•

The question of invasion of privacy was brought up several times by James Carroll, of St. Louis, who wouldn't testify before the cameras, and by Frank Costello, who wouldn't allow his face to be shown. On strictly legal grounds, it's hard to justify the question of privacy. Public hearings have been held in this country since earliest times and in the nation's infancy, were held in a meeting-house where the whole community could crowd in and watch. In a city of 7,500,000, that's no longer possible, but television has taken us a long ways toward making it so.

On the grounds of strict logic, it's also hard to understand why O'Dwyer shouldn't be interested in keeping the record straight whether 20,000,000 onlookers were watching or not. But—let's face it—the audience does make a difference and a very large one. The difference is one of emotion. A great deal of the testimony and the "revelations" were old stuff which had been heard by many grand juries and had been printed many times in newspapers and magazines. But the fact that they were being restated before so great an audience has charged them with emotion, not all of it rational.

The Kefauver Committee is the number one topic of discussion in New York and, for all I know, in large parts of the rest of the country, too. Suddenly, everyone is an expert on organized crime, a problem that has been with us quite a while now, and what to do about it. All sorts of sweeping, ill-advised and certainly hasty suggestions are being made on how to cope with the problem and are being made by so many people at once that, just possibly, some of them might be pursued.

Some of the reactions have been decidedly curious. Even Senator Kefauver noted with some alarm that large segments of the populace showed a tendency to sympathize with the witnesses, no matter how shady their past. Similarly, Senator Tobey, God's Angry Man, and Rudolph Halley, the coldly relentless inquisitor, were not universally popular with the masses and were decidely unpopular with many people.

In fact, the one person who appears to have won universal acclaim after a stint before the cameras was Virginia Hill, which suggests that thi sisn't so Puritan a country after all.

To be quite honest about it, we have been conditioned by the movies, by the theater, by books, to dislike the prosecutor who is trying to send poor Barbara Stanwyck to jail when we all know she's just shielding her idiot brother. The feminine audience especially has a tendency to confuse some of these hoodlums, the well-dressed and successful ones in particular, with Humphrey Bogart and to romanticize them accordingly. In the suburbs, the well-heeled matrons have picked Senator Kefauver as their matinee idol, a sort of Laurence Olivier with a briefcase.

Television, in snort, has contributed not only to popular enlightenment but, more importantly, to public maturity. But we've still some distance to go before we can view such a hearing with anything like the cool skepticism and judicial impartiality it deserves. Television is a wonderfully potent instrument for arousing the populace and in this case, it's arousing it against organized crime, a fairly non-controversial thing. Next time, though, the question might not be anything so open and shut as our opinions on criminals; it could conceivably be a question such as foreign policy. Then, we'll have to judge the proceedings, not on the physical attractions or personal problems of the witnesses, but, of all things, on what they have to say.

Some of the reactions have been decidedly curious. Even Senator Kefauver noted with some alarm that large segments of the populace showed a tendency to sympathize with the witnesses, no matter how shady their past. Similarly, Senator Tobey, God's Angry Man, and Rudolph Halley, the coldly relentless inquisitor, were not universally popular with the masses and were decidely unpopular with many people.

In fact, the one person who appears to have won universal acclaim after a stint before the cameras was Virginia Hill, which suggests that thi sisn't so Puritan a country after all.

To be quite honest about it, we have been conditioned by the movies, by the theater, by books, to dislike the prosecutor who is trying to send poor Barbara Stanwyck to jail when we all know she's just shielding her idiot brother. The feminine audience especially has a tendency to confuse some of these hoodlums, the well-dressed and successful ones in particular, with Humphrey Bogart and to romanticize them accordingly. In the suburbs, the well-heeled matrons have picked Senator Kefauver as their matinee idol, a sort of Laurence Olivier with a briefcase.

Television, in snort, has contributed not only to popular enlightenment but, more importantly, to public maturity. But we've still some distance to go before we can view such a hearing with anything like the cool skepticism and judicial impartiality it deserves. Television is a wonderfully potent instrument for arousing the populace and in this case, it's arousing it against organized crime, a fairly non-controversial thing. Next time, though, the question might not be anything so open and shut as our opinions on criminals; it could conceivably be a question such as foreign policy. Then, we'll have to judge the proceedings, not on the physical attractions or personal problems of the witnesses, but, of all things, on what they have to say.

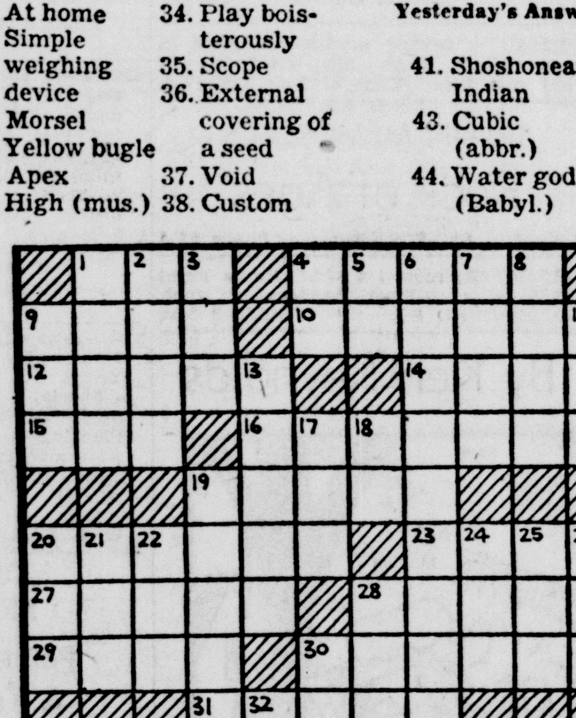
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

THE PHOTO of T/Sgt. James McCone of Glendive, Mont., shows that it takes a lot of wire to run a modern war. McCone is trying to locate and re-establish a severed communication circuit somewhere in this maze on the Hoengsong front in Korea. Each unit must lay wire as it advances in order to maintain contact with all other units in the area. Probably some of this wire was laid months ago and abandoned during United Nations withdrawals. (International Soundphoto)

These Days

a part of the Japanese empire?

G. W. Keeton, dean of the faculty of law in the University of London, says of this:

> ". . . it is an attitude which is quite inconsistent with that adopted in respect of Korea, which was also Japanese in 1943, but is now treated as an independent state. Moreover, if Formosa was to be regarded as still formally Japanese territory, then administration of it pending the peace treaty is ultimately the responsibility of the Allied powers, whose agent for defence is General MacArthur. Hence it would follow that any attack on it would be an attack upon the Allied military administration, and as such, a matter of immediate concern to this country as much as to the United States. Yet Great Britain has committed herself to the position that she is not primarily concerned with a Communist attack upon Formosa!"

Both Communist and Nationalist China reject the British position. Both regard Formosa as Chinese territory. The official American view is that Formosa is Chinese territory. The British were premature in their recognition of Soviet China and that got them all tangled up in difficulties.

direction of known murderers, can defy the protestations of honest leaders and put out of business any reputable individual or firm they choose.

"What can we do about this situation?" Kefauver asked aloud, in respect to the New York crime front. He recommended a permanent U. S. crime commission, endowed with penal powers, so, in all fairness, did Bill O'Dwyer. But the chances are that we'll contribute to Communist Yugoslavia and Fascist Spain more money, more quickly, than this country now desperately needs to raise its own moral standard of living.

WATER VITAL RESOURCE IN PEACE OR WAR; WE NOW USE 200 BILLION GALLONS DAILY!

By H. D. CRAWFORD
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Water is more essential than any other natural resource for the perpetuation of life on the earth. Some civilizations of the past have declined to extinction because they could not get enough water to prevent their once-fertile land from becoming desert. And a major problem facing our highly industrialized, scientific culture today is how to supply enough water to meet our increasing demands.

Water use in the United States has increased 35 billion gallons daily in the last decade, according to Oscar L. Chapman, secretary of the Interior. In 1940, Americans used 165 billion gallons a day, but in 1950 their daily consumption had climbed to 200 billion gallons.

Not only is water essential to our daily diet and necessary for producing all our food, but American industry—so vital to our strength and power as a nation—uses 30 billion gallons of water every day. Among the largest industrial users of water are industries essential to our national defense.

* * *

DID YOU know that the production of a ton of steel requires 65,000 gallons of water? Or that 77,000 gallons of water are needed to produce 100 barrels of oil? Or that a ton of smokeless powder requires 50,000 gallons of water? Or that it takes 100,000 gallons of water to produce a tank? Or that a ton of synthetic rubber requires 600,000 gallons of water?

In a democracy such as ours it is essential that citizens be kept fully informed on news developments, and great quantities of water are required in the manufacture of the newsprint on which this newspaper is printed.

Many American communities face water shortages. This is not necessarily because there is less water, but because demands for available water have increased. Other communities have apparently reached the limit of their expansion because no further water supplies are in sight.

* * *

NOT ONLY have crops failed or been of inferior quality in some areas, but other areas find it virtually impossible to increase their industrial production because of limited water supplies.

"There is every reason to believe that the rearmament program will increase the drain of water supplies and dangerous shortages in some areas may be looked for unless steps are taken promptly to avert them," asserted Mr. Chapman.

"If our nation is to remain secure, we can no longer delay the bold steps needed to cope with the looming water crisis. To wait until our wells run dry could spell disaster in the present day emergency."

A WATER "BANK"—Water remains on this Nebraska hillside during the winter, freezing and thawing and soaking into the soil. There is virtually no run-off because the field is farmed on the contour.

The President's Water Resources Policy Commission recently issued a 445-page report summarizing the nation's water situation and recommending measures designed to assure a continued supply to meet the needs of a growing population and increasing industrial demands. This commission will soon release two additional reports, one entitled Ten Rivers in America's Future, and the other, Water Resources Law.

* * *

THIS MOMENTOUS study of our water resources brings out the amazing facts that not much thinking was done about conserving water supplies and utilizing river basins until the first decade of the Twentieth Century, and that not much was actually done about them until the last two decades. Most of the work still lies ahead.

Serious as the water crisis is, the commission's recommendations are encouraging. They challenge the ingenuity and resourcefulness of conservation-minded citizens. They indicate a new frontier for reforming our wasteful practices and strengthening the future of the nation.

"We need much greater knowledge, determination and foresight than our fathers needed in order to fulfill the promise of American life," asserted the seven-man commission. "That promise is as great for us as it was for them. The wise development and conservation of our key resource, water, is essential to further economic progress."

* * *

MULTIPLE - USE development of river valleys is under way in many parts of the nation. Federal, state, local and private interest co-operation is greater than ever before. Some of the most significant water developments in the nation's history lie ahead.

These involve conservation and full utilization of water resources. These include flood control, conservation of water on the soil, increased production of hydroelectric power, improved recreation facilities, deepened inland waterways for transportation, preservation of fish and wild life, construction of dams to create bodies of water for irrigating millions of acres now too dry to produce crops, and reforestation to help hold and control the supply of water.

Momentous water developments will require great expenditures of public money, but their economic returns should far exceed their cost.

They challenge the individual citizen to take a new interest in supporting local water conservation, in cleaning up polluted streams, and in demanding greater efficiency in utilizing this precious resource, water, in its vital, lifegiving cycle from raindrops to mighty oceans.

THE PHOTO of T/Sgt. James McCone of Glendive, Mont., shows that it takes a lot of wire to run a modern war. McCone is trying to locate and re-establish a severed communication circuit somewhere in this maze on the Hoengsong front in Korea. Each unit must lay wire as it advances in order to maintain contact with all other units in the area. Probably some of this wire was laid months ago and abandoned during United Nations withdrawals. (International Soundphoto)

a part of the Japanese empire?

G. W. Keeton, dean of the faculty of law in the University of London, says of this:

". . . it is an attitude which is quite inconsistent with that adopted in respect of Korea, which was also Japanese in 1943, but is now treated as an independent state. Moreover, if Formosa was to be regarded as still formally Japanese territory, then administration of it pending the peace treaty is ultimately the responsibility of the Allied powers, whose agent for defence is General MacArthur. Hence it would follow that any attack on it would be an attack upon the Allied military administration, and as such, a matter of immediate concern to this country as much as to the United States. Yet Great Britain has committed herself to the position that she is not primarily concerned with a Communist attack upon Formosa!"

Both Communist and Nationalist China reject the British position. Both regard Formosa as Chinese territory. The official American view is that Formosa is Chinese territory. The British were premature in their recognition of Soviet China and that got them all tangled up in difficulties.

On The Line

direction of known murderers, can defy the protestations of honest leaders and put out of business any reputable individual or firm they choose.

"What can we do about this situation?" Kefauver asked aloud, in respect to the New York crime front. He recommended a permanent U. S. crime commission, endowed with penal powers, so, in all fairness, did Bill O'Dwyer. But the chances are that we'll contribute to Communist Yugoslavia and Fascist Spain more money, more quickly, than this country now desperately needs to raise its own moral standard of living.

Selective Stocks Advance As Much As $3 Per Share

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Most major segments of the stock market got the benefit of a selective advance today with gains running to as much as $3 a share.

There were setbacks as well, however, and losses extended to around a dollar a share.

Gainers held a small numerical edge over the losers and the plus signs were generally larger than the minus marks.

Oils piled up the largest gains and showed considerable activity.

Rails and utilities were neglected and in both sections the losses ran from a few cents to around a dollar a share.

The volume of business held up rather well for a pre-holiday session, coming to 1,290,000 shares as against 1,310,000 shares yesterday.

Both the stock exchange and the curb will be closed tomorrow for Good Friday. They will resume business as usual with the two-hour session Saturday.

Westinghouse Electric has headed the list of most active issues every day this week. Today it was up ¾ at 38⅝ on 24,700 sales.

Following Westinghouse in order were AVCO Mfg. 8¼, General Public Utility 19 and American Airlines 16, all unchanged, and Armour & Co. up ½ at 11¾.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 20 cents to $93.90 with the industrial component up 70 cents, rails down 30 cents; and utilities down 10 cents.

WATER VITAL RESOURCE IN PEACE OR WAR; WE NOW USE 200 BILLION GALLONS DAILY!

By H. D. CRAWFORD
Central Press Correspondent

A WATER "BANK"—Water remains on this Nebraska hillside during the winter, freezing and thawing and soaking into the soil. There is virtually no run-off because the field is farmed on the contour.

WASHINGTON—Water is more essential than any other natural resource for the perpetuation of life on the earth. Some civilizations of the past have declined to extinction because they could not get enough water to prevent their once-fertile land from becoming desert. And a major problem facing our highly industrialized, scientific culture today is how to supply enough water to meet our increasing demands.

Water use in the United States has increased 35 billion gallons daily in the last decade, according to Oscar L. Chapman, secretary of the Interior. In 1940, Americans used 165 billion gallons a day, but in 1950 their daily consumption had climbed to 200 billion gallons.

Not only is water essential to our daily diet and necessary for producing all our food, but American industry—so vital to our strength and power as a nation—uses 30 billion gallons of water every day. Among the largest industrial users of water are industries essential to our national defense.

DID YOU know that the production of a ton of steel requires 65,000 gallons of water? Or that 77,000 gallons of water are needed to produce 100 barrels of oil? Or that a ton of smokeless powder requires 50,000 gallons of water? Or that it takes 100,000 gallons of water to produce a tank? Or that a ton of synthetic rubber requires 600,000 gallons of water?

In a democracy such as ours it is essential that citizens be kept fully informed on news developments, and great quantities of water are required in the manufacture of the newsprint on which this newspaper is printed.

Many American communities face water shortages. This is not necessarily because there is less water, but because demands for available water have increased. Other communities have apparently reached the limit of their expansion because no further water supplies are in sight.

• • •

NOT ONLY have crops failed or been of inferior quality in some areas, but other areas find it virtually impossible to increase their industrial production because of limited water supplies.

"There is every reason to believe that the rearmament program will increase the drain of water supplies and dangerous shortages in some areas may be looked for unless steps are taken promptly to avert them," asserted Mr. Chapman.

"If our nation is to remain secure, we can no longer delay the bold steps needed to cope with the looming water crisis. To wait until our wells run dry could spell disaster in the present day emergency."

The President's Water Resources Policy Commission recently issued a 445-page report summarizing the nation's water situation and recommending measures designed to assure a continued supply to meet the needs of a growing population and increasing industrial demands. This commission will soon release two additional reports, one entitled Ten Rivers in America's Future, and the other, Water Resources Law.

• • •

THIS MOMENTOUS study of our water resources brings out the amazing facts that not much thinking was done about conserving water supplies and utilizing river basins until the first decade of the Twentieth Century, and that not much was actually done about them until the last two decades. Most of the work still lies ahead.

Serious as the water crisis is, the commission's recommendations are encouraging. They challenge the ingenuity and resourcefulness of conservation-minded citizens. They indicate a new frontier for reforming our wasteful practices and strengthening the future of the nation.

"We need much greater knowledge, determination and foresight than our fathers needed in order to fulfill the promise of American life," asserted the seven-man commission. "That promise is as great for us as it was for them. The wise development and conservation of our key resource, water, is essential to further economic progress."

• • •

MULTIPLE - USE development of river valleys is under way in many parts of the nation. Federal, state, local and private interest co-operation is greater than ever before. Some of the most significant water developments in the nation's history lie ahead.

These involve conservation and full utilization of water resources. These include flood control, conservation of water on the soil, increased production of hydroelectric power, improved recreation facilities, deepened inland waterways for transportation, preservation of fish and wild life, construction of dams to create bodies of water for irrigating millions of acres now too dry to produce crops, and reforestation to help hold and control the supply of water.

Momentous water developments will require great expenditures of public money, but their economic returns should far exceed their cost.

They challenge the individual citizen to take a new interest in supporting local water conservation, in cleaning up polluted streams, and in demanding greater efficiency in utilizing this precious resource, water, in its vital, life-giving cycle from raindrops to mighty oceans.

Beall Urges Defense Area Created Here

Cites Availability Of Factory Sites

Rep. J. Glenn Beall introduced legislation yesterday that would call upon the defense mobilization director to look into the advisability of establishing defense plants in Cumberland or any part of Allegany County.

Beall said there are some 5,000 unemployed workers in the county. He said 90 per cent of them own their homes.

He said the Potomac and the North Branch of the Potomac River provide the county with ample water for all purposes. Cumberland, he said, is only about 150 miles from Washington and near the Atlantic Seaboard.

His resolution added that many "ideal factory sites" are available in Allegany County close to the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland railroads.

Gives Brief Speech

On Wednesday, prior to introducing the legislation, Rep. Beall made a brief talk before the House of Representatives, calling attention to Allegany County as a site for defense industries.

In his opening remarks, Rep. Beall quoted an article which appeared in the Cumberland Evening Times March 19 in a syndicated column written by Peter Edson. Edson wrote:

> Plant location. There is today no area in which a new defense plant can be put to draw on surplus labor. Every new site selected in the future will have to be determined by a shift of labor from nonessential industry, as well as by availability of power, transportation, raw material, and housing, Projections: So far there have been no tables prepared on how many men will be needed for defense production, when and where. Projecting the employment and draft curves to show total manpower requirements is a first job of Government agencies operating under D. Flemming's directives.

Rep. Beall continued:

"If the Department of Defense is considering areas where there is surplus unemployment, I would like to call their attention to the present situation in Cumberland and Allegany County, Md., where there are approximately 5,000 unemployed persons at this time. In this total there are skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers such as machinists, carpenters, chemists and chemical laboratory technicians.

Many Own Their Homes

"When these people apply to the Unemployment Compensation Division they are advised to go to other areas to seek employment. This, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, is not good either for the community or for the worker himself because 90 per cent of these unemployed own their homes and naturally when they leave the local community their homes will be unoccupied and they will create a housing problem in industrial areas.

"Cumberland and Allegany County are ideally situated for the establishment of a defense plant. Not only do we have ample labor but we are located on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Maryland Railroads with an adequate water supply from the Potomac River and the North Branch of the Potomac River and many ideal factory sites are available.

"I think it would be well for the Department of Defense and the Real Estate Divisions of the Army and Navy to look into the availability of this community which is approximately 150 miles from the Nation's Capital and close to the Atlantic Seaboard."

Army To Investigate

Beall said last night that he made informal contacts last week with two officials of the Real Estate Division of the Department of the Army, pointing out the possibilities of Allegany County as the location of defense plants.

He said the officers promised they would investigate the area as soon as possible, adding they were interested in the picture, due to location, availability of land and the splendid water supplies which will result from the operation of the Savage River Dam.

Uniform Civil Service Bill Is Introduced

All Employes Would Have Appeal Rights

A uniform Civil Service System for employes of the City of Cumberland is provided in Senate Bill 358, which was introduced recently by Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

After repealing Senate Bills 409, covering Police and Firemen, and Senate Bill 177, which set up a Merit System for other city employes, the bill chiefly provides:

The right to appeal in cases of suspension, demotion and discharge for all employes. Present legislation provides such protection only for police and firemen.

Sets up a standard probationary period of one year for all city employes and specifies that during that period they shall have no right to appeal.

The Civil Service Board, following examinations, may certify to the Mayor and Council three names only. Present legislation calls for certifying 10 in the police and fire departments and five names in other departments.

Specifies that applicants for lieutenants and captains posts in the fire and police departments must have five or more years experience, with 10 or more years needed for applicants seeking assistant chief and chief ratings.

In the event of a suspension, demotion or discharge sustained by the Commission, the employe may appeal the decision to the Circuit Court of Allegany County within 30 days.

Civil Service Commission officials said last night that a number of amendments, minor in nature have been forwarded to Senator Kimble for inclusion in the bill.

Volunteers Of America Plan Easter Party

Major Ruth Hartman, commander, said games will be played and refreshments served.

Training School Director Will Visit Allegany County

The 50-year old man who is credited with changing the Maryland Training School For Boys from a prison for young offenders to an actual home for juvenile delinquents will visit Allegany county the week of April 9 to discuss the institution with school officials and members of various service clubs.

He is Elbert L. Fletcher, who has been superintendent of the school at Lock Raven, north of Baltimore, since 1945.

Arrange Visit

Fletcher's visit to Allegany county has been arranged by Robert W. Jones, public school personnel counselor for the Georges Creek region of the county, and Paul Footen, a teacher at Barton High School.

The school superintendent will make his first county appearance at a meeting of the Frostburg Rotary Club at 6 p. m. Monday, April 9. He will speak to the Cumberland Rotary Club at noon Tuesday, April 10, and will meet with the county high school principals that afternoon.

Heavy Assignment

Wednesday, April 11, will provide Fletcher his heaviest speaking assignments. He will be at Barton High School that morning, at the Tri-Towns Rotary Club at noon and at the Lonaconing Rotary Club that evening. He will wind up his speaking engagements at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at noon Thursday April 12.

Many changes have been made in the Maryland Training School For Boys since Fletcher took charge in 1945. He has abolished corporal punishment and has substituted deprivation of privileges to punish offenders. Iron bars were removed from cells, persuasion and kindness took the place of force and the drab cottages were brightened by paint,

Today's Sermonette

But all this is the work of God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ, and gave us the ministry of reconciliation . . .

II Corinthians 5:18

By REV. NORMAN O. SCRIBNER

Today's sermonette was prepared for Good Friday by Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church. The sermonettes are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Good Friday—Two Worlds In Conflict

There upon the cross two worlds meet in conflict. The cross itself discloses the sin, stupidity, blindness, and cruelty of men. The man on the cross reveals the patient long-suffering of God that to the end, matched the deliberate sin of men with saving power.

Rev. Scribner

Why did men crucify Jesus? They crucified him because they read in his words and conduct the superficiality of their own way of life. They heard in the accents of his voice of truth, the death knell of their own secure and favored way. Should they forsake their world for His and admit that they were wrong? Not by any wild stretch of the imagination could this be done. Thus, in order to make their special privileges and perogatives all the more secure, they would demand the death of This One whose world was so diametrically opposed to their own. No one knew this better than Jesus did. Hence it was with a clear mind and a heart overflowing with compassion and saving grace that He matched His world against theirs. All that He asked was that He might love them to the end: that was why He came out from the Father.

On this Good Friday in the year 1951, does the conflict still exist? Yes, as strong as ever! Still there is sin, stupidity, blindness, and the constant jockeying of men and nations for favored places, still the old claim to self-righteousness and pride of position, for privilege without responsibility. As ever Christ is crucified afresh and put to an open shame. How do we do it? By refusing to believe that His way is practicable, and by making a comfortable, convenient, interpretation of His words and deeds, when following Him becomes difficult. And when we do, we identify ourselves, in spirit, and practice with those who demanded His life.

How does the cross save a person? Well, the cross doesn't save anybody, but the Man on the cross can save everybody. A cross means bearing the burdens of others, burdens which you must volunteer to assume, because God's love shed abroad in your heart constrains you to make them your own. If you really want to know the cross and its meaning, then take this Man on the cross in all sincerity. "Love your enemies" without any facile, convenient, castigating, interpretations of that command, and see where you wind up. Lose your life that you might find it. Die that you might live.

"Bless them which persecute you and revile you and say all manner of evil against you falsely" because you take Christ seriously. . .and you will begin to know the saving power of the cross and the Man upon it. One month of real Christ-centered cross bearing by the peoples of this earth would so transform all of our thought, politically, economically, militarily and otherwise, that we would look back upon our now accepted lives as barbarous and unbelievable. Still the two worlds in conflict. While this conflict lasts there can be no peace. But before Him ultimately the captains and the kings must depart. God's "ancient sacrifice" is yet the humble and the contrite heart, and it is also the believing and the responsive heart. Here alone is to be found our salvation.

Good Friday is "Good" because "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." The example of Jesus discloses the innermost secret of God, His patient love that seeks us out in spite of Our sin and waywardness, so that He might in the spirit of His gracious Son freely give of Himself. It is a love that will not let us go, nor will that love, if we continue to refuse it, let us off. Which of these two worlds commands your life?

Flood Project Employs Many County Men

The Cumberland Flood Control Project now underway throughout various sectors of the city, and the Savage River Dam project nearing completion are employing many of the residents of Allegany County and helping alleviate the unemployment problem in the area.

In a letter to Rep. J. Glenn Beall, Col. Alan J. McCutchen, district engineer of the U. S. Army Engineer Corps, said that about 83 per cent of those employed by George and Lynch on flood control are men from Allegany County. The present number of employes working with the contractor is 122, with 101 of this number of Allegany County, and the remaining ratio are from Garrett County, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Forty-three percent of the workers on the Savage River Dam project are residents of Allegany County. A total of 26 men are now employed on the project.

McCutchen added that the ratio of local to outside labor is approximately that which will prevail in future contracts. The reason given for outside labor is that the organization of large firms capable of performing work under Federal Specification must include their key personel such as office engineers, foreman and clerical help.

McCutchen said when specialized help is not obtained from local labor markets it must be recruited from elsewhere in order to meet construction schedules.

Water Rights Bill Presented By Rep. Beall

Provides Access To River Along Parkway

A bill clarifying the right of the Department of the Interior to give water rights along the route of the proposed C. and O. Canal Parkway was introduced yesterday by Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

Rep. Beall said existing legislation actually gives the department the right to grant access to the Potomac River for industrial purposes.

Makes Powers Specific

The legislation, he added, will make the powers specific since opposition has developed on that point.

Beall then revealed he will meet with the Industrial Committee of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce Monday in an effort to win its support of the parkway plan. Hagerstown has offered bitter opposition to a bill to enable the State Roads Commission to acquire land to grant, trade or transfer to the Federal government in regard to the canal project.

Declaring Beall's bill premitting the survey and acquisition of land by the Federal government for the parkway had hindered the growth of industry in Washington County, Hagerstown's Chamber of Commerce said the proposed parkway would cut off industry's access to water and would be detrimental to wild life and fish.

Opposition Misunderstands

"Opposition is coming from groups who misunderstand or misinterpret the plan," Beall said, adding "it will aid and develop wild life and fishing along the route and industry will be able to gain access to any water from the canal or the Potomac River simply by asking the Department of Interior to grant permission for use of the water."

Beall originally sponsored a bill in 1947 which enabled the Department of Interior to conduct a survey of the 184 miles of land between the nation's capital and Cumberland for the purpose of determining the best possible use for the land. Congress appropriated $40,000 for the survey and the parkway plan was proposed. Another bill introduced by Beall and passed by Congress enabled the Federal government to buy, trade, or grant land from states, individuals or industry to further the project.

Pfeiffer Hearing Set For Tuesday Morning

Officer George Pfeiffer of the city police department will receive a hearing Tuesday morning in Trial Magistrate's Court on a warrant issued by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew charging him with assault.

The charge is the result of a scuffle that occured when Pfeiffer was arresting Herman Brant, Ridgeley, W. Va. on a bus in South Cumberland, January 30.

According to a statement by Officer Pfeiffer, he approached Brant, who was standing on the corner of Virginia and Laing Avenues, and asked him to straighten his disarrayed clothing. After Brant boarded the bus, Pfeiffer said the Ridgeley man directed an obscene remark at him.

Pfeiffer said it was necessary to strike Brant with his mace while making the arrest.

Mrs. Louise Emerick is organist and Rev. Raymond A. Faulds director.

City Workers Irate About Pay Partiality

Firemen, Police Only Beneficiaries

City Employes who were disregarded when the Allegany County Delegation voted to seek a pay increase for police and firemen were bitterly outspoken against the move yesterday.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357 for the firemen and 359 for the police, will be amended to provide a $12-a-month across the board salary boost for members of the two departments.

See also said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not present a bill covering the legislation.

Statement Branded

When contacted yesterday a group of the city's employes branded See's statement as false and reported a petition seeking similar pay raises for all employes had been sent to both See and Senator Robert B. Kimble.

One employe called the unexpected move "cheap politics" and stated the petition was sent to the delegation March 12 and receipt of same was acknowledged by See. The petition asked all municipal employes be considered for the increase instead of just two departments, it was revealed.

Another worker, smiling wryly, commented "if the tax rate is going to be increased for a pay raise then no favoritism should be shown."

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson, when asked what such a pay raise for the police and fire departments would mean as far as the tax rate was concerned, replied, "that amounts to $144 per year per man for 100 men in the two departments or $14,400 a year increase. That will require about a 2½ cents hike in the tax rate."

Pressure Blamed

The city workers all were of the opinion that outside pressure had been brought to bear on the delegation and admitted that there was no organization among the other employes to fight for the raise as there was in the two departments granted the increase.

"The council here knows what is needed and are handicapped trying to raise needed revenues to operate the city now without having this additional burden placed upon them," one worker said wondering why two departments were singled out for an increase.

Whitworth Opposes

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., last night reported he was still opposed to the police and fire increases, saying it is unfair to take the action above the objections of the Mayor and Council.

He said any such boost should be an "over the board" increase for all departments.

He also objected to the raise on the grounds that the legislation gives the Mayor and Council no means of additional revenue to pay the increases.

See said the police and firemen alone were given increases since they were the only groups which presented bills.

He added that the Delegation did not give additional taxing authority, believing the City can work out the problem satisfactorily.

He added that the Delegation

First Baptist Church Will Join Evangelistic Crusade

Beginning with the morning Easter service, at 11 o'clock Sunday, First Baptist church of Cumberland will join with most of the 18,000 Southern Baptist churches east of the Mississippi River in a Simultaneous Evangelistic Crusade, according to Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor.

Pastor Linger stated the evangelist for these special services will be Rev. Sam W. Scantlan, superintendent of Baptist Rural and City Missions, Oklahoma City Okla. He said Rev. Mr. Scantlan will also be the director of the Simultaneous Crusade in the churches of the Western Baptist District Association, comprising churches in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Evangelist Scantlan served as the director of one of the associational crusades when the Southern Baptists west of the Mississippi conducted such services at Easter time last year. Rev. Mr. Scantlan is one of the outstanding evangelists and leaders of Southern Baptist work.

These revival services, which will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock, will continue through Sunday, April 8. The hour of the week day morning services will be announced later.

In addition to his preaching ministry in First Baptist church, Rev. Scantlan will meet with Baptist leaders for a luncheon each Monday and Friday at noon during the crusade. He is also scheduled as the speaker for the Cumberland Rotary Club meeting Tuesday at Central Y.M.C.A.

REV. SAM W. SCANTLAN

Pastor Linger said the public is cordially invited to the services of the First Baptist Church, as well as the similar services being held at eight of the other Baptist churches of the area during the same period.

Easter Will Fall On Maryland Day

Since Easter Sunday is also Maryland Day, a state holiday, a number of institutions and offices will be closed Monday. The Cumberland Banks which are closed all day today, will remain open from 9 a. m. until noon tomorrow but will be closed Monday.

Most offices of the Court House will be open Monday, but Register of Wills A. Charles Stewart plans to keep his office closed Monday as well as today. Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp said the Board of Education building will be closed today and Monday.

Maryland Day will mark the 317th anniversary of the date in 1634 when Leonard Calvert, brother of the first Lord Baltimore, landed on St. Clement's, now Blackiston's Island, with 200 colonists.

See To Oppose Transferring Of Barton Students

Will Fight Bill To Consolidate

Delegate Charles M. See said last night that he will lead a fight on the floor of the House in support of a bill which would prohibit the Board of Education from requiring Barton students to attend school in any other community.

Consolidation Favored

Barton students could be sent to a consolidated school in Lonaconing if the House of Delegates accepts a vote of its Education Committee.

The committee stamped an unfavorable report yesterday on a bill by three Allegany Delegates to block the transfer of Barton students. The County Board of Education had proposed consolidation.

Delegates Reed, See and Driscoll, Allegany Republicans, sponsored the bill. It was rejected by an 8-7 committee roll call.

The committee held for possible amendments another Allegany school bill. Introduced by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) and passed by the Senate, the measure would require at least two women and two minority party representatives on the county board of education.

Bills Introduced

Two new bills were introduced by members of the Allegany County Delegation yesterday. They are:

HB711, sponsored by the Delegation, to change the requirements for the appointment of the Allegany County road engineer.

Delegate See said the bill would allow the county to hire a practical engineer to supervise the county road construction and maintenance.

He said the Delegation felt that much of the actual construction is carried out under federal supervision, making it necessary only to have an engineer with practical experience.

Delegate Fred B. Driscoll introduced HB706, to repeal, as obsolete, a section of the Allegany County local laws referring to advertisement of elections.

House Approves

House Bill 447, providing for a county wide referendum on Daylight Savings Time, passed the House yesterday and was sent to the Senate.

Passed on its third reading was House Bill 256, by Driscoll, which refers to the pay of election officials. It provides that each election official will receive a flat $22 at a sitting.

BIRTHS

Memorial Hospital announces the following births:

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Malloy, 507½ Franklin Street, a daughter yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Moody, 400 Bond Street, a son Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Willison, 28 Queen City Pavement, a daughter yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Strawderman, RFD No. 3, a daughter yesterday morning.

Work Begins On Flood Job Clean-Up

Bulldozer, Police At Drowning Scene

Work was started yesterday at the coffer dam in North Cumberland, just off Furnace Street, to eliminate the pool of water where Ronald Keith Knippenberg, age six years, drowned Tuesday evening.

An auxiliary policeman was on duty all day and last night to prevent children from playing in the dangerous area. Elsewhere throughout the city, on all parts of the flood control project, a "clean-up" campaign appeared to be underway as debris was moved, more neatness created and barricades were erected at excavations and water holes.

A bulldozer was moved to the Furnace Street site along with a truck load of tile drain pipe and reinforcing steel. It was evident an effort was being made to remove the death trap and to eliminate other hazards which seemed to exist.

In the meantime two probes were continuing. One inaugurated by Mayor Thomas S. Post was reported making progress and the other by the Corps of Engineers was getting well started. It was also learned safety inspectors, probably from an insurance company, were in the city.

Funeral Rites Today

The disaster, which has aroused the entire community, took the life of Ronald Keith Knippenberg, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, when he fell into a pool of water at the Furnace and Valley Street coffer dam. He drowned in about four feet of cold, muddy water, despite efforts of a playmate and two men to save him.

Funeral rites for the child will be held today at 2 p.m. at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wills, 530 Riehl Avenue.

Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church will officiate with interment in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Prodded by the tragic drowning the Allegany County Board of Commissioners will study the problem posed by a reservoir located above the county farm in the Piedmont Avenue section of the North End.

Commissioner James Orr brought up the matter at yesterday's session of the board and said that something should be done to eliminate any possible danger to youths in the North End section. The reservoir, which is about 20 feet long and 15 feet wide is 12 feet deep and is used during warm weather by some youths as swimming place.

May Be Drained

The county has had water rights to the reservoir for many years but the property is believed owned by heirs of the Dilfer farm property in that section. The commissioners said they believe the reservoir should be drained by blowing out one end with dynamite or other explosives.

Ownership of the reservoir is not quite clear and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said he would investigate.

Last year the reservoir was requested by Charles A. and Paul C. Roeder for use as a park development. Getty said the county did enter into a tentative agreement to lease the reservoir rights, but yesterday it was termed null and void.

The county had the right to enter upon and maintain the reservoir, the water of which was used years ago at the county home, Sylvan Retreat and the county farm, but vandalism by youths has posed a problem for the county. Locks were torn from the gate in a fence around the reservoir and a wooden covering over the pool was torn off and used as firewood by boys using the pool for swimming.

City To Mark Good Friday

Many offices in the city will close today for the Easter weekend. Sessions of the Orphans Court and County Commissioners were held yesterday instead of today and all offices at the court house will be closed today. Offices at City Hall will close at noon.

The Cumberland Free Public Library will close today. The Library's South End Branch is closed until the end of the spring vacation for schools April 2.

Holy Cross Episcopal Church on Virginia Avenue will say a litany at 10 a. m. today and a litany and address is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. today.

Music will feature the Good Friday services at St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

A special Easter program will be held tonight at 7:45 p. m. at the Salvation Army Citadel, Major Elmer W. Wall said last night.

Sacred musical numbers will be featured and several short talks given. Major Wall will also give a brief talk at the unveiling of a picture of "Christ at the Hearts Door" by Sallamn.

At the South Cumberland Outpost on Virginia Avenue Major Wall said a special service on the Seven Last Words of Christ will be given at 7:45 p. m. today.

A program of sacred music will be presented at Pinto Mennonite Church by the Youth Fellowship directed by Mrs. Harold Ours today at 7:30 p. m.

Beall Urges Defense Area Created Here

Cites Availability Of Factory Sites

Rep. J. Glenn Beall introduced legislation yesterday that would call upon the defense mobilization director to look into the advisability of establishing defense plants in Cumberland or any part of Allegany County.

Beall said there are some 5,000 unemployed workers in the county. He said 90 per cent of them own their homes.

He said the Potomac and the North Branch of the Potomac River provide the county with ample water for all purposes. Cumberland, he said, is only about 150 miles from Washington and near the Atlantic Seaboard.

His resolution added that many "ideal factory sites" are available in Allegany County close to the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland railroads.

Gives Brief Speech

On Wednesday, prior to introducing the legislation, Rep. Beall made a brief talk before the House of Representatives, calling attention to Allegany County as a site for defense industries.

In his opening remarks, Rep. Beall quoted an article which appeared in the Cumberland Evening Times March 19 in a syndicated column written by Peter Edson. Edson wrote:

> Plant location. There is today no area in which a new defense plant can be put to draw on surplus labor. Every new site selected in the future will have to be determined by a shift of labor from nonessential industry, as well as by availability of power, transportation, raw material, and housing, Projections: So far there have been no tables prepared on how many men will be needed for defense production, when and where. Projecting the employment and draft curves to show total manpower requirements is a first job of Government agencies operating under D. Flemming's directives.

Rep. Beall continued:

"If the Department of Defense is considering areas where there is surplus unemployment, I would like to call their attention to the present situation in Cumberland and Allegany County, Md., where there are approximately 5,000 unemployed persons at this time. In this total there are skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers such as machinists, carpenters, chemists and chemical laboratory technicians.

Many Own Their Homes

"When these people apply to the Unemployment Compensation Division they are advised to go to other areas to seek employment. This, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, is not good either for the community or for the worker himself because 90 per cent of these unemployed own their homes and naturally when they leave the local community their homes will be unoccupied and they will create a housing problem in industrial areas.

"Cumberland and Allegany County are ideally situated for the establishment of a defense plant. Not only do we have ample labor but we are located on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Maryland Railroads with an adequate water supply from the Potomac River and the North Branch of the Potomac River and many ideal factory sites are available.

"I think it would be well for the Department of Defense and the Real Estate Divisions of the Army and Navy to look into the availability of this community which is approximately 150 miles from the Nation's Capital and close to the Atlantic Seaboard."

Army To Investigate

Beall said last night that he made informal contacts last week with two officials of the Real Estate Division of the Department of the Army, pointing out the possibilities of Allegany County as the location of defense plants.

He said the officers promised they would investigate the area as soon as possible, adding they were interested in the picture, due to location, availability of land and the splendid water supplies which will result from the operation of the Savage River Dam.

Uniform Civil Service Bill Is Introduced

All Employes Would Have Appeal Rights

A uniform Civil Service System for employes of the City of Cumberland is provided in Senate Bill 358, which was introduced recently by Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

After repealing Senate Bills 409, covering Police and Firemen, and Senate Bill 177, which set up a Merit System for other city employes, the bill chiefly provides:

The right to appeal in cases of suspension, demotion and discharge for all employes. Present legislation provides such protection only for police and firemen.

Sets up a standard probationary period of one year for all city employes and specifies that during that period they shall have no right to appeal.

The Civil Service Board, following examinations, may certify to the Mayor and Council three names only. Present legislation calls for certifying 10 in the police and fire departments and five names in other departments.

Specifies that applicants for lieutenants and captains posts in the fire and police departments must have five or more years experience, with 10 or more years needed for applicants seeking assistant chief and chief ratings.

In the event of a suspension, demotion or discharge sustained by the Commission, the employe may appeal the decision to the Circuit Court of Allegany County within 30 days.

Civil Service Commission officials said last night that a number of amendments, minor in nature have been forwarded to Senator Kimble for inclusion in the bill.

Volunteers Of America Plan Easter Party

Major Ruth Hartman, commander, said games will be played and refreshments served.

Training School Director Will Visit Allegany County

The 50-year old man who is credited with changing the Maryland Training School For Boys from a prison for young offenders to an actual home for juvenile delinquents will visit Allegany county the week of April 9 to discuss the institution with school officials and members of various service clubs.

He is Elbert L. Fletcher, who has been superintendent of the school at Lock Raven, north of Baltimore, since 1945.

Arrange Visit

Fletcher's visit to Allegany county has been arranged by Robert W. Jones, public school personnel counselor for the Georges Creek region of the county, and Paul Footen, a teacher at Barton High School.

The school superintendent will make his first county appearance at a meeting of the Frostburg Rotary Club at 6 p. m. Monday, April 9. He will speak to the Cumberland Rotary Club at noon Tuesday, April 10, and will meet with the county high school principals that afternoon.

Heavy Assignment

Wednesday, April 11, will provide Fletcher his heaviest speaking assignments. He will be at Barton High School that morning, at the Tri-Towns Rotary Club at noon and at the Lonaconing Rotary Club that evening. He will wind up his speaking engagements at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at noon Thursday April 12.

Many changes have been made in the Maryland Training School For Boys since Fletcher took charge in 1945. He has abolished corporal punishment and has substituted deprivation of privileges to punish offenders. Iron bars were removed from cells, persuasion and kindness took the place of force and the drab cottages were brightened by paint,

Today's Sermonette

But all this is the work of God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ, and gave us the ministry of reconciliation . . .

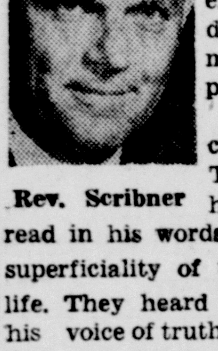
II Corinthians 5:18

By REV. NORMAN O. SCRIBNER

Today's sermonette was prepared for Good Friday by Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church. The sermonettes are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Good Friday—Two Worlds In Conflict

There upon the cross two worlds meet in conflict. The cross itself discloses the sin, stupidity, blindness, and cruelty of men. The man on the cross reveals the patient long-suffering of God that to the end, matched the deliberate sin of men with saving power.



Rev. Scribner

Why did men crucify Jesus? They crucified him because they read in his words and conduct the superficiality of their own way of life. They heard in the accents of his voice of truth, the death knell of their own secure and favored way. Should they forsake their world for His and admit that they were wrong? Not by any wild stretch of the imagination could this be done. Thus, in order to make their special privileges and perogatives all the more secure, they would demand the death of This One whose world was so diametrically opposed to their own. No one knew this better than Jesus did. Hence it was with a clear mind and a heart overflowing with compassion and saving grace that He matched His world against theirs. All that He asked was that He might love them to the end: that was why He came out from the Father.

On this Good Friday in the year 1951, does the conflict still exist? Yes, as strong as ever! Still there is sin, stupidity, blindness, and the constant jockeying of men and nations for favored places, still the old claim to self-righteousness and pride of position, for privilege without responsibility. As ever Christ is crucified afresh and put to an open shame. How do we do it? By refusing to believe that His way is practicable, and by making a comfortable, convenient, interpretation of His words and deeds, when following Him becomes difficult. And when we do, we identify ourselves, in spirit, and practice with those who demanded His life.

How does the cross save a person? Well, the cross doesn't save anybody, but the Man on the cross can save everybody. A cross means bearing the burdens of others, burdens which you must volunteer to assume, because God's love shed abroad in your heart constrains you to make them your own. If you really want to know the cross and its meaning, then take this Man on the cross in all sincerity. "Love your enemies" without any facile, convenient, castigating, interpretations of that command, and see where you wind up. Lose your life that you might find it. Die that you might live.

"Bless them which persecute you and revile you and say all manner of evil against you falsely" because you take Christ seriously. . .and you will begin to know the saving power of the cross and the Man upon it. One month of real Christ-centered cross bearing by the peoples of this earth would so transform all of our thought, politically, economically, militarily and otherwise, that we would look back upon our now accepted lives as barbarous and unbelievable. Still the two worlds in conflict. While this conflict lasts there can be no peace. But before Him ultimately the captains and the kings must depart. God's "ancient sacrifice" is yet the humble and the contrite heart, and it is also the believing and the responsive heart. Here alone is to be found our salvation.

Good Friday is "Good" because "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." The example of Jesus discloses the innermost secret of God, His patient love that seeks us out in spite of Our sin and waywardness, so that He might in the spirit of His gracious Son freely give of Himself. It is a love that will not let us go, nor will that love, if we continue to refuse it, let us off. Which of these two worlds commands your life?

Flood Project Employs Many County Men

The Cumberland Flood Control Project now underway throughout various sectors of the city, and the Savage River Dam project nearing completion are employing many of the residents of Allegany County and helping alleviate the unemployment problem in the area.

In a letter to Rep. J. Glenn Beall, Col. Alan J. McCutchen, district engineer of the U. S. Army Engineer Corps, said that about 83 per cent of those employed by George and Lynch on flood control are men from Allegany County. The present number of employes working with the contractor is 122, with 101 of this number of Allegany County, and the remaining ratio are from Garrett County, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Forty-three percent of the workers on the Savage River Dam project are residents of Allegany County. A total of 26 men are now employed on the project.

McCutchen added that the ratio of local to outside labor is approximately that which will prevail in future contracts. The reason given for outside labor is that the organization of large firms capable of performing work under Federal Specification must include their key personel such as office engineers, foreman and clerical help.

McCutchen said when specialized help is not obtained from local labor markets it must be recruited from elsewhere in order to meet construction schedules.

Water Rights Bill Presented By Rep. Beall

Provides Access To River Along Parkway

A bill clarifying the right of the Department of the Interior to give water rights along the route of the proposed C. and O. Canal Parkway was introduced yesterday by Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

Rep. Beall said existing legislation actually gives the department the right to grant access to the Potomac River for industrial purposes.

Makes Powers Specific

The legislation, he added, will make the powers specific since opposition has developed on that point.

Beall then revealed he will meet with the Industrial Committee of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce Monday in an effort to win its support of the parkway plan. Hagerstown has offered bitter opposition to a bill to enable the State Roads Commission to acquire land to grant, trade or transfer to the Federal government in regard to the canal project.

Declaring Beall's bill premitting the survey and acquisition of land by the Federal government for the parkway had hindered the growth of industry in Washington County, Hagerstown's Chamber of Commerce said the proposed parkway would cut off industry's access to water and would be detrimental to wild life and fish.

Opposition Misunderstands

"Opposition is coming from groups who misunderstand or misinterpret the plan," Beall said, adding "it will aid and develop wild life and fishing along the route and industry will be able to gain access to any water from the canal or the Potomac River simply by asking the Department of Interior to grant permission for use of the water."

Beall originally sponsored a bill in 1947 which enabled the Department of Interior to conduct a survey of the 184 miles of land between the nation's capital and Cumberland for the purpose of determining the best possible use for the land. Congress appropriated $40,000 for the survey and the parkway plan was proposed. Another bill introduced by Beall and passed by Congress enabled the Federal government to buy, trade, or grant land from states, individuals or industry to further the project.

Pfeiffer Hearing Set For Tuesday Morning

Officer George Pfeiffer of the city police department will receive a hearing Tuesday morning in Trial Magistrate's Court on a warrant issued by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew charging him with assault.

The charge is the result of a scuffle that occured when Pfeiffer was arresting Herman Brant, Ridgeley, W. Va. on a bus in South Cumberland, January 30.

According to a statement by Officer Pfeiffer, he approached Brant, who was standing on the corner of Virginia and Laing Avenues, and asked him to straighten his disarrayed clothing. After Brant boarded the bus, Pfeiffer said the Ridgeley man directed an obscene remark at him.

Pfeiffer said it was necessary to strike Brant with his mace while making the arrest.

The Choir of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church will present a cantata, "Seven Last Words," by Theodore DuBois, tonight at 7:30, in the church, North Mechanic Street.

Mrs. Louise Emerick is organist and Rev. Raymond A. Faulds director.

City Workers Irate About Pay Partiality

Firemen, Police Only Beneficiaries

City Employes who were disregarded when the Allegany County Delegation voted to seek a pay increase for police and firemen were bitterly outspoken against the move yesterday.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357 for the firemen and 359 for the police, will be amended to provide a $12-a-month across the board salary boost for members of the two departments.

See also said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not present a bill covering the legislation.

Statement Branded

When contacted yesterday a group of the city's employes branded See's statement as false and reported a petition seeking similar pay raises for all employes had been sent to both See and Senator Robert B. Kimble.

One employe called the unexpected move "cheap politics" and stated the petition was sent to the delegation March 12 and receipt of same was acknowledged by See. The petition asked all municipal employes be considered for the increase instead of just two departments, it was revealed.

Another worker, smiling wryly, commented "if the tax rate is going to be increased for a pay raise then no favoritism should be shown."

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson, when asked what such a pay raise for the police and fire departments would mean as far as the tax rate was concerned, replied, "that amounts to $144 per year per man for 100 men in the two departments or $14,400 a year increase. That will require about a 2½ cents hike in the tax rate."

Pressure Blamed

The city workers all were of the opinion that outside pressure had been brought to bear on the delegation and admitted that there was no organization among the other employes to fight for the raise as there was in the two departments granted the increase.

"The council here knows what is needed and are handicapped trying to raise needed revenues to operate the city now without having this additional burden placed upon them," one worker said wondering why two departments were singled out for an increase.

Whitworth Opposes

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., last night reported he was still opposed to the police and fire increases, saying it is unfair to take the action above the objections of the Mayor and Council.

He said any such boost should be an "over the board" increase for all departments.

He also objected to the raise on the grounds that the legislation gives the Mayor and Council no means of additional revenue to pay the increases.

See said the police and firemen alone were given increases since they were the only groups which presented bills.

He added that the Delegation did not give additional taxing authority, believing the City can work out the problem satisfactorily.

He added that the Delegation

Easter Will Fall On Maryland Day

Since Easter Sunday is also Maryland Day, a state holiday, a number of institutions and offices will be closed Monday. The Cumberland Banks which are closed all day today, will remain open from 9 a. m. until noon tomorrow but will be closed Monday.

Most offices of the Court House will be open Monday, but Register of Wills A. Charles Stewart plans to keep his office closed Monday as well as today. Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp said the Board of Education building will be closed today and Monday.

Maryland Day will mark the 317th anniversary of the date in 1634 when Leonard Calvert, brother of the first Lord Baltimore, landed on St. Clement's, now Blackiston's Island, with 200 colonists.

See To Oppose Transferring Of Barton Students

Will Fight Bill To Consolidate

Delegate Charles M. See said last night that he will lead a fight on the floor of the House in support of a bill which would prohibit the Board of Education from requiring Barton students to attend school in any other community.

Consolidation Favored

Barton students could be sent to a consolidated school in Lonaconing if the House of Delegates accepts a vote of its Education Committee.

The committee stamped an unfavorable report yesterday on a bill by three Allegany Delegates to block the transfer of Barton students. The County Board of Education had proposed consolidation.

Delegates Reed, See and Driscoll, Allegany Republicans, sponsored the bill. It was rejected by an 8-7 committee roll call.

The committee held for possible amendments another Allegany school bill. Introduced by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) and passed by the Senate, the measure would require at least two women and two minority party representatives on the county board of education.

Bills Introduced

Two new bills were introduced by members of the Allegany County Delegation yesterday. They are:

HB711, sponsored by the Delegation, to change the requirements for the appointment of the Allegany County road engineer.

Delegate See said the bill would allow the county to hire a practical engineer to supervise the county road construction and maintenance.

He said the Delegation felt that much of the actual construction is carried out under federal supervision, making it necessary only to have an engineer with practical experience.

Delegate Fred B. Driscoll introduced HB706, to repeal, as obsolete, a section of the Allegany County local laws referring to advertisement of elections.

House Approves

House Bill 447, providing for a county wide referendum on Daylight Savings Time, passed the House yesterday and was sent to the Senate.

Passed on its third reading was House Bill 256, by Driscoll, which refers to the pay of election officials. It provides that each election official will receive a flat $22 at a sitting.

BIRTHS

Memorial Hospital announces the following births:

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Malloy, 507½ Franklin Street, a daughter yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Moody, 400 Bond Street, a son Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Willison, 28 Queen City Pavement, a daughter yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Strawderman, RFD No. 3, a daughter yesterday morning.

First Baptist Church Will Join Evangelistic Crusade

Beginning with the morning Easter service, at 11 o'clock Sunday, First Baptist church of Cumberland will join with most of the 18,000 Southern Baptist churches east of the Mississippi River in a Simultaneous Evangelistic Crusade, according to Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor.

Pastor Linger stated the evangelist for these special services will be Rev. Sam W. Scantlan, superintendent of Baptist Rural and City Missions, Oklahoma City Okla. He said Rev. Mr. Scantlan will also be the director of the Simultaneous Crusade in the churches of the Western Baptist District Association, comprising churches in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Evangelist Scantlan served as the director of one of the associational crusades when the Southern Baptists west of the Mississippi conducted such services at Easter time last year. Rev. Mr. Scantlan is one of the outstanding evangelists and leaders of Southern Baptist work.

These revival services, which will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock, will continue through Sunday, April 8. The hour of the week day morning services will be announced later.

In addition to his preaching ministry in First Baptist church, Rev. Scantlan will meet with Baptist leaders for a luncheon each Monday and Friday at noon during the crusade. He is also scheduled as the speaker for the Cumberland Rotary Club meeting Tuesday at Central Y.M.C.A.

REV. SAM W. SCANTLAN

Pastor Linger said the public is cordially invited to the services of the First Baptist Church, as well as the similar services being held at eight of the other Baptist churches of the area during the same period.

Work Begins On Flood Job Clean-Up

Bulldozer, Police At Drowning Scene

Work was started yesterday at the coffer dam in North Cumberland, just off Furnace Street, to eliminate the pool of water where Ronald Keith Knippenberg, age six years, drowned Tuesday evening.

An auxiliary policeman was on duty all day and last night to prevent children from playing in the dangerous area. Elsewhere throughout the city, on all parts of the flood control project, a "clean-up" campaign appeared to be underway as debris was moved, more neatness created and barricades were erected at excavations and water holes.

A bulldozer was moved to the Furnace Street site along with a truck load of tile drain pipe and reinforcing steel. It was evident an effort was being made to remove the death trap and to eliminate other hazards which seemed to exist.

In the meantime two probes were continuing. One inaugurated by Mayor Thomas S. Post was reported making progress and the other by the Corps of Engineers was getting well started. It was also learned safety inspectors, probably from an insurance company, were in the city.

Funeral Rites Today

The disaster, which has aroused the entire community, took the life of Ronald Keith Knippenberg, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, when he fell into a pool of water at the Furnace and Valley Street coffer dam. He drowned in about four feet of cold, muddy water, despite efforts of a playmate and two men to save him.

Funeral rites for the child will be held today at 2 p.m. at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wills, 530 Riehl Avenue.

Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church will officiate with interment in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Prodded by the tragic drowning the Allegany County Board of Commissioners will study the problem posed by a reservoir located above the county farm in the Piedmont Avenue section of the North End.

Commissioner James Orr brought up the matter at yesterday's session of the board and said that something should be done to eliminate any possible danger to youths in the North End section. The reservoir, which is about 20 feet long and 15 feet wide is 12 feet deep and is used during warm weather by some youths as swimming place.

May Be Drained

The county has had water rights to the reservoir for many years but the property is believed owned by heirs of the Dilfer farm property in that section. The commissioners said they believe the reservoir should be drained by blowing out one end with dynamite or other explosives.

Ownership of the reservoir is not quite clear and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said he would investigate.

Last year the reservoir was requested by Charles A. and Paul C. Roeder for use as a park development. Getty said the county did enter into a tentative agreement to lease the reservoir rights, but yesterday it was termed null and void.

The county had the right to enter upon and maintain the reservoir, the water of which was used years ago at the county home, Sylvan Retreat and the county farm, but vandalism by youths has posed a problem for the county. Locks were torn from the gate in a fence around the reservoir and a wooden covering over the pool was torn off and used as firewood by boys using the pool for swimming.

City To Mark Good Friday

Many offices in the city will close today for the Easter weekend. Sessions of the Orphans Court and County Commissioners were held yesterday instead of today and all offices at the court house will be closed today. Offices at City Hall will close at noon.

The Cumberland Free Public Library will close today. The Library's South End Branch is closed until the end of the spring vacation for schools April 2.

Holy Cross Episcopal Church on Virginia Avenue will say a litany at 10 a. m. today and a litany and address is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. today.

Music will feature the Good Friday services at St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

A special Easter program will be held tonight at 7:45 p. m. at the Salvation Army Citadel, Major Elmer W. Wall said last night.

Sacred musical numbers will be featured and several short talks given. Major Wall will also give a brief talk at the unveiling of a picture of "Christ at the Hearts Door" by Sallamn.

At the South Cumberland Outpost on Virginia Avenue Major Wall said a special service on the Seven Last Words of Christ will be given at 7:45 p. m. today.

A program of sacred music will be presented at Pinto Mennonite Church by the Youth Fellowship directed by Mrs. Harold Ours today at 7:30 p. m.

Weather Forecast
Some cloudiness and milder today.

Mobster Clams Up, Arrested For Contempt

O'Dwyer's Tax Affairs To Be Investigated

Justice Dept. Will Check Testimony

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Congressmen leveled tax evasion and perjury at Ambassador William O'Dwyer today because of a reported $10,000 cash handout from an AFL union leader.

Both his Kefauver crime committee and his personal tax affairs were placed under scrutiny.

The tax inquiry also took in O'Dwyer's long-time aide, James J. Moran, who, during the day, quit under fire his cushy $15,000 a year lifetime job as city water commissioner.

But O'Dwyer stood firm under attack, denying any plans to step out as U. S. Ambassador to Mexico.

Perjury Charges Loom

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) said in Washington there are grounds for possible perjury charges in testimony about lavish cash gifts by John P. Crane, president of the AFL Uniformed Firemen's Association of New York.

Kefauver asked the Justice Department and the U. S. attorney in New York to go over the entire record of the New York hearing—a record in which Crane swore he gave O'Dwyer $10,000 in cash and Moran $55,000.

Another congressional subcommittee set the internal revenue agents to combing the former Democratic Mayor's tax affairs. The agents were directed to see if he evaded payment on the $10,000 Crane claims to have handed him in 1949, in the midst of a mayoralty campaign.

Rep. Kean (R-N. J.) told reporters:

"Somewhere in there, there may be a gift tax which should be paid, or if the money was given for services rendered or to be rendered, it should be reported as income."

Conflicting Testimony

However, Crane swore yesterday to the Kefauver crime committee that he handed O'Dwyer $10,000 in cash in a red manila envelope in October, 1949. He said the money was evidence of the firemen's support for O'Dwyer's reelection as mayor.

Crane also testified he gave Moran $55,000 in installments for his good will. Moran had sworn to the committee that he never took any money from Crane.

Moran quit his job as water commissioner today after Mayor Vincent Impellitteri ordered him to get out or face ouster proceedings.

Queries Evaded By Rosenberg

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — Julius Rosenberg, atomic spy trial defendant, refused today on grounds of self-incrimination to answer seven questions relating to Communist Party membership.

The 34-year-old electrical engineer, charged with wartime atomic espionage for Russia, has been labeled a Communist by other witnesses during the trial.

He, his wife, Ethel, 35, and his onetime City College classmate, Morton Sobell, 33, a radar expert, are co-defendants. If convicted, all three could be given the death penalty.

U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol read to Rosenberg, the first defense witness, a letter Rosenberg admitted sending to Signal Corps officials in 1945 stating that he was not a member of the Communist Party and had never been.

Saypol asked him if the statement was true and Rosenberg — for the seventh time in an hour — claimed the constitutional privilege of not answering on the ground it might incriminate him.

Earlier he had refused to answer such questions as whether he ever belonged to the Communist Party or to a group that discussed the Soviet Russian system and whether he had ever talked about aiding Russia against the Germans "at any Communist meeting you might have attended."

Actor Larry Parks "Sick," Attorney Says

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP)—Film Star Larry Parks, who testified yesterday in Washington that he once was a Communist, is "sick of heart and sick in bed," his attorney reported tonight.

Louis Mandel, the lawyer, said he planned to take Parks "away for a few days until he comes to himself."

Parks testified before the House committee on Un-American Activities that he joined the Communist Party in an idealistic search that "didn't work out" and quit when his interest faded.

AFL Packinghouse Union Calls Off Monday Walkout After Green Urges Delay

WEEPING ACTRESS—Actress Kay Buckley breaks into tears in Superior Court, Los Angeles, while listening to her husband, J. Arthur Warner, New York broker, testify yesterday about their marriage. She is seeking $700 monthly alimony until trial of her suit for divorce or annulment. She also wants $1,500,000 damages because she says Warner deceived her by marrying her before his divorce from a former wife became final. (AP Wirephoto).

Possibility Of CIO Stoppage Remains

CHICAGO, March 22 (AP) — AFL meat handlers today promised "No AFL strike Monday" but CIO packinghouse workers said they are "ready to strike" when a date is set.

A CIO spokesman said the union's strike strategy committee will meet tomorrow morning to complete strike details and set a date.

A strike of 120,000 CIO United Packinghouse Workers could curtail sharply but not stop the flow of meat to the American dinner table.

The AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen promised not to strike Monday after AFL President William Green telegraphed a request that it be delayed. The union has some 10,000 packinghouse workers.

Pact Expires Sunday Midnight

Workers in both unions are free to strike after midnight Sunday, at the expiration of present wage agreements.

The unions had threatened to walk out in plants across the nation Monday in protest against governmental refusal to approve an 11-cent hourly wage increase they negotiated with the major packers.

The CIO spokesman said packinghouse union officials had received no communication from CIO President Philip Murray along the lines of Green's plea.

Green sent his appeal to both unions. He contended a strike Monday might upset negotiations in Washington between the United Labor Policy Committee and Defense Mobilization officials.

Green's telegrams reached leaders of the two unions as they met to consider whether to call a strike.

Johnston Said No

Both unions received a raise of 11 cents an hour in August, 1950.

The unions and major packers also agreed on an increase of 11 cents an hour in February. It would be effective as of Feb. 9 — provided the Wage Stabilization Board approved it by March 25.

However, Eric Johnston, economic stabilizer, declined to approve the raise. He held that only three cents of the hike could be allowed under the Government's wage formula. This formula limits pay increases to ten per cent above Jan. 15, 1950, levels.

Carriers Reject Rail Union Plan To Settle Dispute

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A union proposal to settle a two-year-old railroad wage dispute failed today when the carriers rejected it.

The answer was given to the Senate Labor Committee which is investigating the long-drawn disagreement between the nation's rail carriers and the four big operating unions.

Chairman Murray (D-Mont) had urged the lines to accept the new proposal, put forward through him by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Although it directly affected only the trainmen, Murray believed it would lead to a settlement with all four unions.

But D. P. Loomis, representing the railroads, announced at the committee's public hearing that management would not go along with the union plan.

The settlement proposal differed in two respects from a compromise reached Dec. 21 at the White House between the four unions and the railroads. The compromise collapsed when local union officials turned it down.

The trainment suggested (1) that somebody besides John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, be named arbitrator under the agreement, and (2) negotiation between individual roads and the unions on a working condition dealing with the coupling of air hose.

Loomis said the carriers would be willing to accept another arbitrator if Steelman named him. He noted that Steelman was familiar with the issues and settlement discussions.

Loomis said the union's air hose coupling suggestion was "just a subterfuge to preserve and extend this lucrative field of penalty payments."

Sometimes, he said, when a member of a yard crew is required to couple an air hose all men in the crew have to be paid for an hour to a full day's pay.

1,500 Marines Back From War

OAKLAND, Calif., March 22 (AP)—More than 1,500 joyful U. S. Marines and 57 of the nation's heroic Korean war dead came home today.

The 1,529 Marines, many of whom had fought through the 25 below zero cold of the retreat from the Changjin reservoir, basked in warm sunshine at the rail of their transport, the USS General G. M. Randall, as it docked at an Oakland pier. They craned their necks eagerly for loved ones among the hundreds of welcomers at the dock.

Maj. S. R. Schlessinger, Oceanside, Calif., commanding officer of this second group of Marines to return on the rotation system, was proud of them.

"They did one hell of a fine job," he said.

The Marines streamed down the gangplank to one joyful reunion after another. In convertibles they wound through the streets of Oakland in a long parade to Treasure Island. Ahead of the Marines were 30 day furloughs.

Back in the ship were the dead—57 fighting men from the Navy, the Army, the Marine Corps and the Air Force.

FCC Tentatively Opens Up Space For 70 TV Channels

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission today tentatively opened up much more space for television broadcasting and announced plans for a partial lifting of the long freeze on new station grants.

Also, for the first time, FCC made specific provision for educational television.

The additional TV space would be created by setting up 65 to 70 new channels in the so-called ultra high frequencies. This is in a section of the radio spectrum now used for experimental purposes only.

Added to the present 12 channels in the very high frequencies, this would give the country between 77 and 82 channels numbered from 2 to 83 (the original channel No 1 has been turned over to public safety services.)

With this total, some 2,000 stations could be eventually operated in more than 1,200 communities across the country. This compares with present space for only about 400 stations in 140 locations. There are only 107 stations on the air in 64 cities.

This FCC plan tentatively allocates the new UHF channels and also makes some changes in present channel assignments. A total of 31 stations now on the air would have to shift to new channels, under the proposal.

The limited number of stations now operating results from the freeze which FCC declared on new station construction permits on Oct. 1, 1948 in order to iron out kinks in the operating setup.

'Chutists Drop Behind Enemy North Of Seoul

Allies Open Drive North Of Capital

TOKYO, Friday, March 23 (AP)—Thousands of U. S. parachute troops today dropped behind enemy lines north of Seoul and cut the main escape highway for an estimated 60,000 Communists.

The day before three Allied divisions close to Seoul struck along a broad front, grinding out gains up to four miles. They were keeping up the frontal pressure on the big enemy force.

The airborne troops, including hard-hitting Rangers, spread out along the flatlands near the Imjin River, which flows about 20 miles north and northwest of Seoul.

Field reports said the airborne troops cut the main road that leads 35 miles northwest from Seoul to Kaesong.

Ridgeway Directs Maneuver

It was a brilliant maneuver, personally led and directed by America's own master paratrooper, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. S. Eighth Army commander.

The troops bailing out of the big Flying Boxcars caught the enemy completely by surprise. They quickly consolidated their positions.

Ground forces only a few miles to the south were hitting the enemy from positions last reported from five to eight miles north of Seoul.

A field dispatch said the United Nations troops swung north deliberately on a broad front along the road down which the Korean Reds invaded South Korea last June 25.

AP Correspondent Jim Beeker said the three unidentified divisions met slight opposition although earlier reports estimated the Chinese Communist high command had thrown 60,000 reinforcements into this sector.

16 Miles Below Parallel

This drive through Communist minefields put the Allies within seven miles of Uijongbu, a strategic road junction 12 miles north of Seoul and 16 miles south of the politically ticklish 38th parallel.

The new Allied push perhaps was aimed at throwing the Reds off balance before they could mount an expected counterattack in the west.

On the central front, U. S. First Calvary Division tank patrols prodded within easy range of the artificial boundry between North and South Korea.

The dismounted cavalrymen who took abandoned Chunchon Wednesday, already may have sent patrols across the old boundry between Red North and Republic South Korea, field dispatches indicated.

Although the bulk of the massive Chinese Communist forces on this sector apparently have pulled back behind the border, a veteran rearguard remained entrenched one to two miles south of the parallel.

Johnston Hits "Complacency"

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston tonight issued a warning that "too much complacency" over inflation is undermining the mobilization effort.

"Inflation is already sabotaging our defense just as surely as if it carried the red flag of international Communism," Johnston declared in an address prepared for broadcast over the CBS network.

Johnston said last September's $4,500,000,000 tax increase already has been eaten up in the higher price the government must pay for weapons and military equipment.

The public must expect higher taxes, because a balanced federal budget is vital to conquer inflation, he said. Credit controls must be tightened to end the "spree of easy credit since last June."

He said the country "simply can't afford to let the rate of profit go on shooting upward"; it must halt the upward march of farm prices; and it must stop the "never-ending chase between higher prices and higher wages."

Sen. Vandenberg Able To Read Greetings

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 22 (AP)—Sen. Vanderberg (R-Mich) was able to read greetings from scores of well-wishers throughout the world on his 67th birthday today but he remained seriously ill.

Dr. A. B. Smith said there had been "no change" today in the Senator's condition. The physician reported "slight improvement" yesterday and said the senator spent "a fairly good night" last night.

Share Spotlight In Crime Probe

Congress Probe Of Mobilization Setup Ordered

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Chairman Maybank (D-SC) of a Senate-House "watchdog" committee today ordered a broad investigation of the nation's mobilization program, centering on wage-price controls and charges of favoritism.

Maybank said public hearings will start about April 4.

The Senator told a news conference that officials of "at least 50" federal agencies involved in the multi-billion-dollar defense program will be called as witnesses.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), a member of Maybank's Senate-House Committee on Defense Production, told newsmen:

"Amortization" To Be Probed

"The inquiry will try to find out why they are not controlling prices, not controlling wages, not controlling anything."

Aside from controls, Maybank said the committee wants to look into charges of favoritism in granting tax benefits to some industries to encourage defense production.

He said federal officials will be called on to explain why tax concessions were made to certain companies while others in the same industry failed to get benefits.

Under the 1950 Defense Production Act — the master chart of the whole mobilization program — a company may be permitted to write off as much as 20 per cent a year, for tax purposes, on the cost of building a plant. The write-off is known as "amortization."

Privilege Given Railroads

"I don't say it's illegal," Maybank said, "but a lot of amortization certificates were given where it was not the intent of Congress that they should be given."

Asked if he had heard of any non-defense projects getting the certificates, Maybank replied:

"I didn't hear it, I saw it."

He said the privilege had been given to "most of the railroads" to build new cars, and to other projects including some cement factories.

"You don't fight the Russians with cement," Maybank said. "For the life of me, I can't see how they are entitled to those certificates."

Sun-Tanned Truman Back In Washington

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — President Truman arrived in Washington at 5:55 p. m. (EST) today, ending a three-week vacation at Key West, Fla.

"I had a good trip and I worked hard," the sun-tanned President told Cabinet officers who greeted him at the military air transport terminal.

The President was smiling broadly. He looked fit as he stepped down the gangplank and inquired "where's the boss?" meaning Mrs. Truman.

She was on hand. He kissed her, then turned to shake hands with Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Attorney General McGrath and other dignitaries.

Some People Have 'Biological Urge' To Bet, Solons Told

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Some people have a "biological urge" to bet, James J. Carroll told senators today.

"It is a quality that gives substance to their day dreams," he said, and "a biological necessity for certain types."

Carroll also said horse players don't always lose.

"Contrary to general opinion," he said, "there are many, many players who make a livelihood out of playing the horses. Some of them win consistently, year after year."

Big 4 Deputies Meet In Secret

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—The Big Four deputy foreign ministers will meet in their first closed (secret) session tomorrow to decide, according to informed sources, whether to continue their deadlocked efforts to arrange a meeting of their chiefs.

For nearly three weeks now, the deputies have failed in their assignment to draw up a list of world problems for the foreign ministers to discuss.

The Russians say the Western Powers are to blame.

The Western Powers say the Russians are to blame.

That was the position when the four principal delegates and their aides had luncheon today at the British Embassy. British Delegate Ernest Davies was the host.

At this session there was "plain speaking and no propaganda," informed sources said. The delegates agreed to call off today's formal session and hold the closed meeting tomorrow.

Truck Tax Measure Aimed At Virginia Arouses Storm

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—A tax bill on trucks, which actually would apply only to Virginia, ran into a floor fight in the Maryland Senate tonight and got stalled temporarily.

The bill, which received support of the Finance Committee, says that a Maryland gasoline tax would be collected on out-of-state trucks from any state which impose similar taxes.

Virginia is the only nearby state that does so.

Minority Leader Robert Kimble (R-Allegany) spent 20 minutes lambasting the bill as a scheme of the "truck lobby" to escape even the Virginia tax on out-of-state vehicles.

Kimble argued that this "wicked bill" was so worded that its real purpose was to allow Maryland trucks to ride tax-free through Virginia. He said it would work this way:

Maryland would impose the tax. Then, under a provision of the bill, it could advise Virginia the Maryland tax would not be collected if Virginia did likewise. Which meant trucks in neither state would pay anything for use of the roads.

Kimble lost by a 24-2 vote his attempt to have the bill rejected.

Then he offered a series of amendments which would require trucks from all states to pay gasoline tax in Maryland—no matter where they bought the gas.

One of them was defeated but Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) then asked that the other amendments be held up for a day to allow study.

The bill was then laid over until tomorrow.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 22 (AP)—Prodded by Democratic leaders, the House tonight accepted Gov. McKeldin's plan to pay state police one way and get $1,768,000 to help state employes another.

Every Republican delegate and most Democrats outside Baltimore City endorsed the Governor's proposal.

Mediterranean Situation Causes Italian Concern

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The Italian government has warned the West that rearmament of Russia's Balkan satellites has built up a dangerous situation in the Mediterranean, officals said today.

At the same time, it was learned Italy indirectly appealed for revision of peace treaty restrictions to allow increases in her own armed forces.

The Italian government's warning, the officials told a reporter, was passed on to the governments of the United States, Britain, France and Yugoslavia.

U. S. Shares Concern

The State Department has replied that it shares Italy's serious concern over the illegal military buildup in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. But the United States is said to have insisted it does not consider the present appropriate for any discussion on possible changes in the Italian peace treaty.

The American answer, officials said, pointed out that the rearmament of Russia's satellites in Eastern Europe is among the topics the Big Four foreign ministers' deputies are trying to discuss now in Paris.

May Ease Restrictions Later

The reply, however, left the way open for scrapping Italian peace treaty restrictions on rearmament later, if the Paris talks fail.

Sen. Lodge (R-Mass) called for such action in a letter to Secretary Acheson recently. He said it was necessary in order to permit Italy to play its full role in the North Atlantic defense pact.

At present, Italy is limited to an army of 185,000 men and a police force of 65,000. Its navy is restricted to 67,500 tons.

Senate Group Votes Citation Against Guzik

Carroll Escapes Similar Charges

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Racketeer Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik came out of hiding today and quickly was slapped under arrest when he refused to answer questions of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The committee voted contempt citations against Guzik — reputed money man for the late Scarface Al Capone — and three other gambling figures.

It decided, however, to lift the contempt citation it had voted against James J. Carroll, long-time St. Louis betting commissioner who had refused to testify before TV cameras in St. Louis. Carroll talked at some length today before Guzik took the witness stand to bring the day's hearing to a dramatic close by being led out of the room by a police captain.

A professional bondsman quickly put up $10,000 bail for him and he was released.

Refuses To Tell Age

Guzik, a squat, pudgy mobster, had told the committee practically nothing, not even his age. He did acknowledge that his first name was Jacob, but then clammed up and, in a hoarse monotone, replied to question after question:

"I refuse to answer."

He parroted over and over that the questions "might incriminate me, tend to incriminate me or lead to incriminating me in some devious way." He explained he learned the phrase by watching television.

The committee voted unanimously to hold Guzik under arrest for contempt. He was ordered held under $10,000 bond for an appearance before the committee next Friday, March 30, at 10 a. m. (EST).

The balding, graying underworld character got his nickname "Greasy Thumb" when, according to reports, he was the treasurer and money-handler for the Chicago Capone mob. He was one of 17 missing witnesses for whom the Senate crime hunters had issued warrants.

His brief appearance on the stand pushed into the background the testimony by "Betting Commissioner" Carroll, who acknowledged making $110,000 in 1949 by gambling.

A. T. And T. Denies Charge

Carroll had given a quiet and almost scholarly discussion of gambling. And the big television show which has captured the interest of millions had aroused only one major outburst among the senators.

This was an angry accusation that the telephone and Western Union companies were aiding big-time gamblers by permitting them to use telephones and wire facilities for betting.

But A. T. & T. and Western Union immediately came back with statements that they discontinue service whenever a law enforcement authority tells them it is being used illegally. Western Union officials in New York told reporters that, as a common carrier, the company itself has no power to censor morals or messages.

The A. T. & T. statement said "we don't want bookie business."

Saturday the committee expects to hear testimony from Louis Farrell of Des Moines, Iowa, and Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee. Kefauver said Farrell is a liquor wholesaler and Brodson is known as a betting commissioner.

Prowlers Raid Secret RFC Files

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — A story of midnight prowlers who apparently tried to get access to secret files of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during the current senate RFC inquiry was related today.

Officials said an investigation is being made.

RFC Chairman W. Elmer Harber told newsmen he did not know whether any of the confidential documents — some of them linked with the Senate probe — were stolen.

Other informants said the only item definitely known to be missing is a bank or building and loan association passbook owned by Mrs. Donald Dawson, who has charge of the files.

Mrs. Dawson is the wife of a White House aide who has been named by a Senate Banking subcommittee as having exerted pressure on RFC in connection with loans.

Informants said a severed chain on a door leading to the file rooms gave the first tipoff on the prowlers' visit. Officials said the disclosure led the agency to install an electric lock and burgler-alarm system.

Hiss Begins His 5-Year Sentence

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — Alger Hiss, one-time trusted adviser to President Roosevelt, was whisked off to jail today to begin serving a five-year perjury sentence.

His only words were that he had "nothing to add" to previous professions of innocence. He displayed no particular emotion, though he did smile a time or two.

The 46-year-old former high State Department official surrendered at the U. S. courthouse. Handcuffed to a negro prisoner, he was taken by van to the house of detention to await transfer to a federal prison.

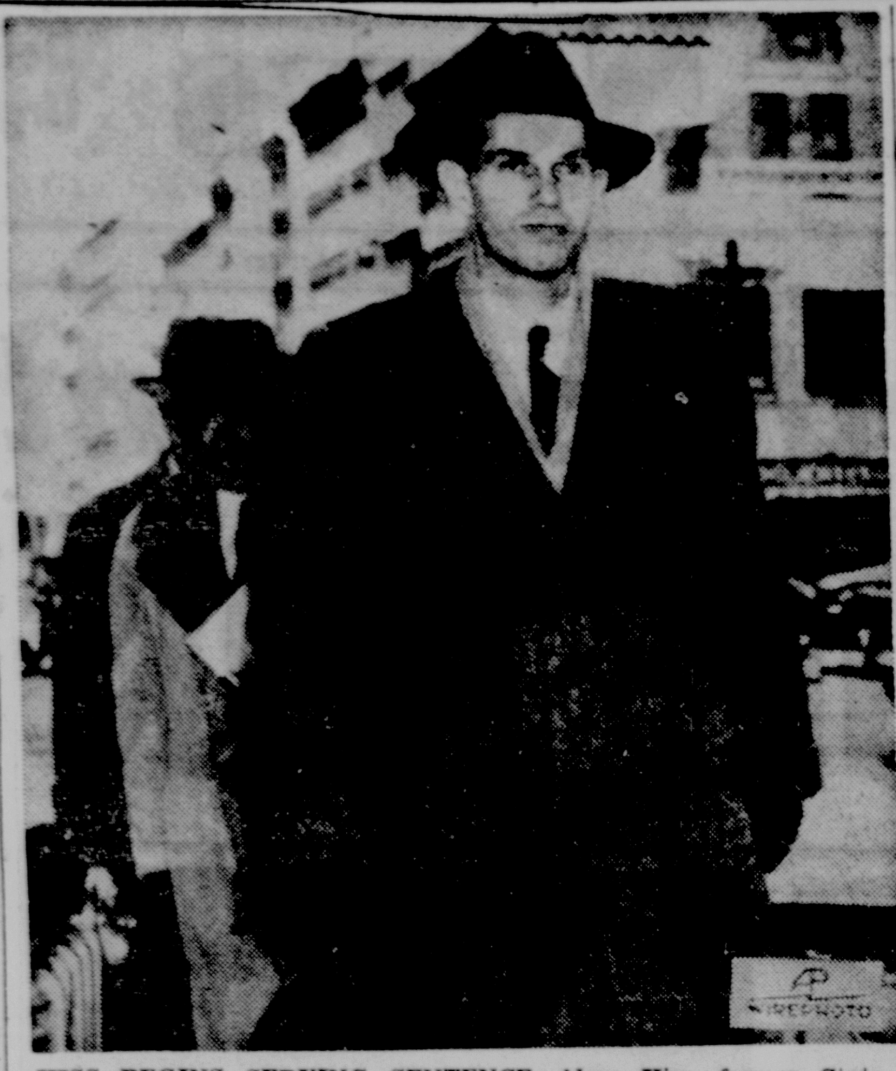
The prison to which he will be committed, was not disclosed immediately. He can apply for parole after serving one-third of the sentence.

The one-time Phi Betta Kappa student at Johns Hopkins and Harvard universities was convicted Jan. 21, 1950 on two counts of perjury.

In effect, the guilty verdict branded him a liar and a traitor who betrayed his country by slipping government secrets to a pre-war Russian spy ring.

Hiss' chief accuser during the two long trials was Whittaker Chambers, avowed former courier for the Red spy apparatus.

Hiss' surrender followed rejection of his appeal of the conviction and the U. S. Supreme Court's action last week in refusing to review the case.



HISS BEGINS SERVING SENTENCE—Alger Hiss, former State Department official, crosses slushy street on his way to the federal courthouse in New York City to surrender to authorities and begin serving his five-year term for perjury.

Collazo To Hear Death Sentence April 6

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Oscar Collazo, once fiery Puerto Rican Nationalist, will be sentenced April 6 to be electrocuted for his role in the attempt to assassinate President Truman last Nov. 1.

Collazo lost his plea today for a new trial. Rejecting the request, Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough said sternly:

"If ever a human being on the face of the earth had a fair trial, this defendant did."

Goldsborough announced he will impose the mandatory death sentence on Friday, April 6.

Celanese Proposes New Stock Issuance

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Celanese Corporation of America filed with the Securities Commision today a statement proposing the public offering of $100,000,000 of new debentures and 1,000,000 shares of $100-par preferred stock.

This would be one of the largest industrial offerings in recent months.

The company said it intends to use $120,008,750 of the cash proceds to redeem outstanding issues, and put the rest into plant expansion or general corporate funds.

The company's prospectus named Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., as the underwriter.

W. Va. Slayer's Death Sentence Commuted

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 22 (AP)—Gov. Patteson today commuted to life imprisonment the sentence of Robert Ballard Bailey, who had been sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murder of an elderly woman storekeeper.

At the same time, the Governor set for next Monday the execution of two other men, who originally had been scheduled to be electrocuted along with Bailey tomorrow night—Good Friday.

The two are Fred Painter, 32, and Harry Atlee Burdette, 26, both convicted of the "stomp murder" of Edward O'Brien, a Charleston soft drink salesman.

Downing Threatened

SALISBURY, Md., March 22 (AP)—telephoned death threat was reported to police today by John W. Downing, former state bank commissioner and now president of radio station WBOC here.

Downing said he received the threat several hours after police jailed William M. Cooper, Jr., 47, on a charge of assaulting Downing. Cooper was held in the Wicomico County jail under $30,000 bond.

WARWICK, R. I., March 22 (AP)—Alfreda LaPierre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred LaPierre, weighed nine pounds and nine ounces when she was born.

On her second birthday, 10 days ago, she weighed 73 pounds.

Mrs. LaPierre is five feet five inches tall and weighs 165 pounds. But Alfreda seems to be following her father, now five-eleven and 219 pounds, who was about Alfreda's size when he was two.

Neither Alfreda nor her playmates let a little thing like a few pounds interfere with fun. And the doctors said she is all right.

Actress Sylvia Sidney Files Suit For Divorce

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP) — Sylvia Sidney, sloe-eyed actress, filed suit for divorce today from her husband of four years, Actor's Agent Carleton Alsop.

"He berated me in the presence of others without cause and caused me such mental anguish and embarrassment that my health was impaired and I had to go under a doctor's care," the actress' complaint read. That, she added, constituted extreme cruelty.

Probe To Recall Tydings, Fedder

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A Senate subcommittee investigating the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign decided today to recall as a witness former Sen. Tydings, Maryland Democrat.

Chairman Monroney (D-Okla) also announced that the elections subcommittee will recall William H. Fedder, Baltimore printer, whose testimony other witnesses have disputed.

The two are listed as witnesses for hearings next week.

Sen. Smith (R-Me) said yesterday it was "evident some one has committed perjury" in testimony dealing with what Tydings has described as a "midnight ride" experienced by Fedder.

She asked that Tydings and Fedder be recalled as witnesses, and that Louis Fried, a committee investigator, also be called to testify.

Fried has been mentioned in testimony as the author of a report to the committee on Fedder's story.

Donald A. Surine, investigator for Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Ewell G. Moore, Jr., former part-time worker for McCarthy, testified this week that Fedder lied in saying that he was threatened and "taken for a ride."

Speedup In Freight Car Handling Urged

PITTSBURGH, March 22 (AP) — Citing the gravity of the growing freight car shortage, Clifford F. Hood, vice president in charge of operations for U. S. Steel, said today all industries should load and unload cars on a seven-day week basis.

Speaking at the silver anniversary meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board, Hood declared that railroads and other carriers face an unprecedented strain. The steel industry loads and unloads cars seven days a week, Hood said as he suggested other industries should do the same, even if it costly or difficult.

La Prensa's Editor Declared Fugitive

BUENOS Aires, Argentina, March 22 (AP)—Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, editor of the government-seized independent newspaper La Prensa, was declared a fugitive from justice today.

A congressional committee, appointed to take over the newspaper and investigate its activities, issued the declaration and ordered federal police to "exhaust all efforts to bring about the capture of the editor of La Prensa because it is essential that he be questioned."

The investigators last night ordered that Gainza Paz be arrested and imprisoned for 15 days for contempt of Congress. The newspaper executive had sent a statement to Congress charging that seizure of his strikebound paper violated Argentina's constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Judy Garland Wins Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (INS)—Judy Garland, the film star who last summer slashed her throat with broken glass, divorced Director Vincente Minnelli today and said she is through with marriage.

Judy ended her five-year-old marriage to her mate in a brief hearing in which she said Minnelli's one-time ardent love turned inexplicably cold and she found herself shut out of his life.

The divorce granted, Judy promptly announced that after two unsuccessful marriages she has decided never to marry again. Her first husband was David Rose, the composer. She declared:

"I don't intend to marry again. If I wanted to have a new husband I would have gone to Nevada for a quick divorce."

Speed With Which American Printer Earns New Shirt Amazes Britons

LONDON—(AP)—Fourteen British printers and their bosses, who made a survey of a number of American shops, returned to England amazed by the speed with which an American printer earns a new shirt.

The American does it, the British investigators reported, by working at his job one hour and 10 minutes. The British printer works 10 hours and eight minutes to earn the same kind of a shirt.

The British printers were members of a productivity team which, under auspices of the ECA, studied methods in printing shops in New York, Indianapolis, Dayton, Cincinnati, Baltimore and Washington in February and March, 1950. Their report just published, emphasizes the higher pay schedules and the higher standard of living enjoyed by American printers.

The American printers, somewhat less secure in their jobs than their opposite number in Britain, generally receive much greater rewards for their labor because of the high productivity of American plants, the report said.

The team report reduced to hours of labor the cost of articles printers buy on both sides of the Atlantic. The cost of a shirt here, in terms of a printer's effort, is 869 per cent of what it is in New York.

Only bread was found to be about the same. The American printer works four minutes for a loaf. The British printer does it in 4.3 minutes.

A blue serge suit is earned by an American printer in 12 hours. The Briton works 74 hours 48 minutes for it. A pair of nylon stockings costs the American printer 38.3 minutes of work, while to bring home the same pair the British printer would have to stick at his job four hours, one minute. To go to a movie costs the American printer 18.5 minutes of effort, but the price of the ticket to the British printer is 42.1 minutes.

"These figures are, of course, astounding," the report said. "The great advantages which the American worker is shown to enjoy over his British counterpart have been made possible largely by the high level of productivity in the U. S. The team is convinced that a substantial increase in the standard of living of the British worker is possible only if the nation's output can be raised x x x."

"The one factor which more than any other has made for the high productivity in the U. S. is the attitude of its people toward work. Management and workers take an intense interest in output and efficiency. There is a widespread appreciation of the basic economic fact that a high output means a high standard of living. x x x

"Another factor may be that, as American stock was drawn from pioneering elements who left Europe and were willing to work hard in a new country, there is greater concentration of vigor and ambition in their descendants who now form the community than there is in Britain."

Members of the team said they found excellently designed plants in America, but generally not superior to the best in Britain. While they had seen some superlative examples of printing in America, they observed that there was less effort than in Britain to maintain a uniformly high quality. American shops, they said, were disposed to gain speed and keep costs down by producing printing good enough for the purposes intended, but no better than it needs to be.

In America "printing has ceased to be regarded as a craft and is considered as an engineering problem by production engineers," the report said.

Witnesses And Contempt

Professed fear of self-incrimination could become a handy "out" for many reluctant witnesses before congressional investigating committees if the trend of recent court decisions holds up. Frank Panzino, official of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, who was acquitted of a contempt-of-Congress charge in federal court in Washington on March 16, had cited the Fifth Amendment guaranty against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions.

Judge F. Dickinson Letts had ruled on February 5 that Harry Russell, Chicago and Miami Beach gambler, was within his rights in giving no answer to questions of the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee. Some of those asked Russell, Judge Letts said, were not pertinent. "Their relevance becomes apparent only when they are considered as links in a chain of questions which, taken together, would warrant a deduction of ultimate facts. The defendant had a right to so regard the questions. He was . . . privileged to remain mute."

Panzino's was the fifth acquittal in nine contempt-of-Congress trials in Washington this year. Two other UEW leaders convicted of contempt of Congress on February 26 had raised the issue of self-incrimination. But in those cases Judge Letts ruled the pleas defective.

The ruling of Judge Letts on February 26 was paralleled by a 5-to-3 Supreme Court ruling handed down on the same day. In upholding a jail sentence imposed on Mrs. Jane Rogers, former treasurer of the Communist party in Denver, Chief Justice Vinson said the defendant could not claim the self-incrimination privilige as "pure afterthought."

"Since the privilege against self-incrimination presupposes a real danger of legal detriment arising from the disclosure," Vinson said, the defendant could not "invoke the privilege where response to the specific question would not incriminate her."

However, the convictions of Patricia and Irving Blau, who were linked in the same lower court case with Mrs. Rogers, had been reversed by the Supreme Court in separate rulings in December, 1950, and January, 1951. The Blaus, the court ruled, had properly availed themselves of the constitutional privilege; i. e., in direct response to questions which might have elicited incriminating responses.

The law on rights of witnesses before congressional committees is still in the process of formation. After Frank Costello, racketeer, walked out of Kefauver Committee hearings in New York March 15, he was threatened with a citation for contempt. But Costello's attorney claimed that his client was suffering from laryngeal bronchitis. Former Mayor of New York William O'Dwyer, another bronchitis victim, had been allowed to postpone his appearance before the committee until he recovered sufficiently to make the journey from Mexico City.

Costello's attorney also complained of conditions at the hearing—"powerful, blinding Klieg lights . . . motion picture cameras . . . hordes of photographers." The Kefauver Committee had previously decided to ask the Senate to cite James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, for contempt in refusing to testify at a hearing on February 24 because he had a right to privacy that was violated by a television broadcast of the proceedings.

Happiness In Retirement

How to achieve happiness after retirement will be the object of a three-year study conducted by the New York Adult Education Council. By September it is expected to have funds enough to make a start with 100 men and women in their 40s and 50s, who will be volunteers as objects of experiment. Most of the money is expected to be contributed by industry and labor unions.

This project will go much further than trying to find avocations to prevent those in retirement from becoming introverts for lack of something to do. It begins with recognition by its head, Dr. Alonzo Meyers, chairman of the department of higher education at New York University, that "the income on which most employes retire is not enough to live on." Certainly happines is impossible without assured comfort.

The plan is to have 100 "scholarships" of $1,000 each for the three-year period, 60 of which will go to employes of companies and members of trade unions that have contributed, and the remaining 40 to white-collar workers, for whom the money will be sought from some foundation.

These 100 will get personal counsel from educators and discuss their problems in groups of 15 to 20. They will do their own planning, not accept ready-made formulae. But in addition to hobbies, personal interests, adult education and group affiliations, there will be one outstanding "must." That is to find means of supplemental income. Here is a need of which industry and other employers should have a new awareness.

Part-time use of aptitudes and skills of pensioners should be considered in the busy years ahead.

Vitality At Peak

A real task confronts the economists over the years in dealing with the effect upon the social order of a record low death rate at a time the population is increasing not by immigration, but by births within the country's confines. Last year showed the lowest death rate in the country's entire history of 9.6 per 1,000 population, compared to a previous all-time low in 1949 of 9.7 per 1,000. These are the figures formally announced by the National Office of Vital Statistics.

Thus of every 100 persons who saw either year dawn, 99 saw its close, an amazing fact that bespeaks ultimate increased longevity to an extent today unknown. These figures are the most accurate that can be had and are, generally speaking, dependable because in almost every community of every state deaths and their cause, when ascertainable, must be reported.

The NOVA is not on quite as sure ground when dealing with births because compulsory registration of births is not quite universal. Allowing for incomplete registration of births, this office estimates the babies born in 1950 at 3,699,000.

Infant mortality is sharply on the decline. Of live registered births in 1949 only 29.2 per 1,000 died in their first year in 1950, contrasted to 31.1 in 1949. There is no reason for surprise that more children were born in this country between 1945 and 1950 than in any other half-decade, the total being estimated, including the unregistered, at roughly 18,000,000.

What is surprising, however, is to learn that the general death rate decreased as much as 10 per cent between 1940 and 1950, and the infant death rate by 38 per cent. These decreases parallel a gain in medical knowledge, employment of new drugs and better sanitation, all of which played an important part.

Make Leisure Worthwhile

A VACATION is good medicine because it provides leisure and recreation. An ocean voyage has cured many peptic ulcers and a fishing trip in the north woods is an excellent preventive of a nervous breakdown. Spending the winter in Florida or California has added years to the lives of millions of our oldsters, especially those with heart disease or high blood pressure.

We do not wish to imply that going away will overcome all of our troubles. The nervous or emotionally disturbed who leave their cares and worries at the station or dock are improved only temporarily; on returning home they are bothered by the little gremlins all lined up ready to resume where they left off. In the circumstances, a vacation may make matters worse because when we run away from our problems they are twice as hard to lick on contacting them again. The only individuals who benefit are those who are nervous thru overwork. Rest obviously is the cure. Similar results cannot be expected when the person is perturbed because he has difficulty in adjusting to the situations of life.

But it is not necessary to go away to obtain leisure time. Most of us are able to set aside a few hours each day, free from labor or external compulsion. Some prefer to take it easy; others busy themselves in the garden or workshop or on the car. This may or may not be recreation and, in this respect, leisure time and recreation are not necessarily synonymous. There is no end to the ways in which we can occupy ourselves when not pursuing our daily job. Some profit more than others but from the health standpoint relaxation is essential. Not long ago a newspaper man was telling a carpenter that he enjoyed spending his spare hours at home in the basement making cabinets and bookcases and repairing this and that. The carpenter then said that when he got home in the evening he had fun writing stories on a secondhand typewriter he had purchased. Apparently we derive pleasure from doing things that differ from the regular routine.

There is a tendency nowadays to shorten working hours and increase leisure time. It has been said that a 40 hour week is the minimum; anything less reduces production and the physical state tends to staleness. More than 60 hours is too much, especially when sustained over a long period. Working under these conditions lessens efficiency and promotes chronic fatigue. Much depends upon the nature of the work, the pace, environment, capabilities of the worker, and his recuperative power.

We realize that articles galore have been written on the pros and cons of the concept that we should work less and play more. A sensible approach must be taken because persistent idleness usually leads to physical and mental deterioration to a greater degree than does overwork. We can have our cake and eat it too and in the future we hope that our schools will devote more time to teaching us how to live—that is, a schedule balanced between work and play.

Heredity And Epilepsy

S. H. writes: Is epilepsy inherited?

REPLY

Certain types are believed to be inherited, especially the most common—idiopathic epilepsy.

Resident

B. T. writes: What does a resident physician in a hospital do?

REPLY

"Residency" is a training period after completing the internship. It is taken by those who desire to obtain a year or more of training in fields such as surgery, internal medicine, X-ray, or gynecology. The work of the resident depends upon the specific program arranged by the hospital. He also supervises and helps the interns and assumes responsibility for the patient when the attending physician is away from the hospital. The resident has a medical degree and frequently, a license to practice.

This is a possibility. X-ray would be needed to confirm your suspicion.

COLOR BLINDNESS

N. W. writes: Will vitamin A cure color blindness?

REPLY

No. At one time it was believed that large doses of vitamin A and training in color appreciation would be successful but the plan fell by the wayside. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on color vision.

Benign Tumors

Mrs. E. writes: Is it safe to let fatty tumors alone if they are not causing trouble?

REPLY

Yes, as they rarely become malignant. If they are unsightly, subject to trauma, or located in a tender spot, removal is suggested.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Has Made European Preparedness A Partial Reality In Three Months; Allied Troops Should Be Indoctrinated On Why We Oppose Communism

PARIS—It is now more than two years since the foreign ministers of 12 nations met in solemn conclave in Washington and, accompanied by klieg lights and overseas broadcasts, signed the North Atlantic Pact.

The purpose of that pact was to protect the liberty-loving democracies from Soviet aggression. In the two years that have passed, however, not one single division has been raised to block that aggression, and there has been no agreement on pooling of raw materials, no schedule for production, no program for propaganda and political warfare, and no coordination of intelligent reports—in brief, all that the North Atlantic Pact countries have after two years of talking is a piece of paper plus an array of cumbersome committees which get in each other's way.

It was this emaciated skeleton of a defense organization that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower took over less than three months ago. Actually, he didn't exactly take it over, for Eisenhower, as supreme commander, reports back to "the standing group" in Washington, where Gen. Omar Bradley is his boss, and the standing group, in turn, takes orders from NATO, or the North Atlantic Pact Organization, in London.

Out of this tangled skein of red tape, however, Eisenhower has emerged as a contagious and forceful catalyst. Already his influence is being felt; already he has made European preparedness a partial reality. He doesn't talk in terms of so many troops here or so many troops there but in terms of goals, teamwork and cooperation.

The biggest thing Eisenhower has done, however, is to inspire confidence. There is a sort of contagious, almost spiritual, driving force about Eisenhower when he talks with his Allied colleagues. His job is partly one of public relations between governments, to get them to stop bickering over who will manufacture a three-inch fuse and how much they will be paid for it or who will make a 90-millimeter gun and what price they will charge for it. This is what NATO has been haggling over for two long years, and what Ike is trying to make them see is that having a certain command is not a question of prestige but an obligation and a responsibility.

Another thing Ike has done is to insist that every member of his international organization function as a team. If a Dane starts talking like a Dane, not as part of the team, he is through as far as Eisenhower is concerned.

Morale Boost Soon

The first big boost to North Atlantic Pact morale will come early in April when America's first division of troops under NATO will dock at Havre, march up the Champs Elysees and then entrain for Germany.

This is going to be the biggest lift to European defense psychology since June, 1944, when Eisenhower landed other U. S. troops on the Normandy beachhead. However what has been diplomatically suggested to France and England is that they make this psychological impact even greater by adding one division each to the North Atlantic Pact organization on the same day the American division lands.

Thus, as U. S. troops land at Havre, a British division would land at Cherbourg, with a French division joining them in Paris, and all three then entraining for the area where the Red army, if it strikes, would strike first—Germany.

NOTE—At present Eisenhower has only eight divisions to defend a 500-mile line from the Baltic to Switzerland if the Red army moves. On the other immediate side of this line the Russians have about 30 German divisions plus around 70 divisions in the Russian standing army. To meet this, France has promised 10 divisions this year and England five for Europe and five for other parts of the British empire.

Ike's On Diet

One of the first things Ike did to speed work at his Allied headquarters in the Astoria Hotel in Paris was to abolish the typical two-to-three-hour Parisienne lunch. He did this by setting up a dining room at his headquarters and then putting an Englishman in charge of English foods so bad that the Allied officers spend only 30 minutes lunching.

Ike himself is dieting and gets a large plate of carrot salad put in front of him at lunch. Several months ago his doctor made Ike cut out smoking which meant that he began putting on weight, so now the doctor has not only put him on a diet but curtailed Ike to one evening cocktail per day.

Ike's chief personal problem, however, is not dieting but Mrs. Eisenhower's reluctance to return to Europe. During the long war years and during the period before them, when Ike was in the Philippines, the Eisenhower family never had a home of their own.

Finally, at Columbia, Mrs. Eisenhower revamped the president's mansion and had just got comfortably settled when her husband was yanked off to Europe. Naturally, Mrs. Ike wasn't enthusiastic although now she realizes the tremendous challenge facing him and she is almost beginning to like their poorly heated Paris apartment.

Step Toward Unifying Europe

Some significant trans-Atlantic haggling is taking place regarding what could be one of the most important by-products to emerge from European rearmament—namely, an educational program for Allied troops on why we oppose communism. If properly put across, this could be the first real step toward unifying Europe.

Some of Eisenhower's staff, realizing that several thousand troops would be on their hands in Germany with relatively nothing to do, proposed a troop indoctrination program similar to the historic "Why We Fight" films produced by Hollywood's Frank Capra during the war. They also proposed radio talks by Eisenhower to his troops on the reasons [illegible] Europe, together with the goals and ideals of democracy as against communism.

However, because this verges on things political, the State Department and the British got scared. State Department officials didn't like the Army barging into their field, while the British held up their hands in horror at any American propaganda going to their troops.

Trans-Atlantic wire-pulling is still continuing over what could be the most important phase of the entire rearmament program.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The State Of Formosa

IN the United States, we continue to debate whether we are to support Chiang Kai-shek's government in Formosa, or whether we shall bypass him and deal with the agents of guerrilla generals on the mainland or whether we shall recognize the Communist Mai Tze-tung.

The British have solved this problem to their disadvantage by prematurely recognizing the Chinese Communists, who, however, do not recognize the British. This might be amusing were it not so tragic in view of General Douglas MacArthur's stalemate in Korea, which is largely a result of this faulty British policy.

It is interesting, therefore, to have a look at the state of Formosa, an island which, by the Treaty of Shimonoseki in 1895, was ceded to Japan along with the Pescadores. The Japanese called the island Taiwan, a name which the Russians continue to use.

The defeat of Japan in 1945 left Formosa without government, and Nationalist China took over, housing large bodies of troops there. In their hunt for pro-Japanese natives, the Chinese behaved badly. When Chiang Kai-shek took over in 1949, he had the problem to face of establishing a government not only for the natives but for the enormous influx of refugee Chinese.

Meanwhile, the status of his government internationally became increasingly confused. According to the Cairo Declaration (November 26, 1943), Formosa was to be returned to China by the peace treaty with Japan. But there is no peace treaty with Japan. Also, while the United States and other countries and the United Nations recognize the Nationalist regime as the government of China, Great Britain and some other countries recognize the Soviet regime of Mao Tze-tung.

This question of legitimacy is very important in Asia. In the matter of Korea, for innstance, the Americans are embarrassed, perhaps disastrously, by the fact that Great Britain recognized that Chinese regime which is fighting us, while Great Britain is embarrassed by the obvious political necessity of voting in the United Nations with the United States and against Soviet China. General MacArthur emphasized this confusion in his "stalemate" statement.

Two cases have arisen in the British courts over this curious situation. In the matter of "Civil Air Transport, Inc. V. Chennault and others," decided in the Supreme Court of Hongkong, the legitimacy of government was involved. The British court decided that as there is no peace treaty with Japan, Formosa is still part of the Japanese empire. This is, of course, a retreat into pure legalism, unrelated to the facts of the situation. Furthermore, it makes the British position illogical, for if there is no legitimacy to the Nationalist government in Formosa, what possible legitimacy can there be to the Communist regime in Peking?

In the case of "USA V. Yang Soon EE" in the Singapore court, the chief justice said:

"It is clear tnat the central peoples government and the Peoples Republic in China is recognized both de facto and de jure as the only government in China. The ship is registered in Formosa which is legally part of the Japanese empire and not apparently de facto under the control of the Communist government in China."

If this is true, why is not Korea

Matter Of Fact

Dangerous Corner Ahead

BERLIN.

THIS tragic but brave city is the best place to think about the projected conference of the Big Big Four Foreign Ministers. In Washington, they worry about tactics. In Paris, the deputies wrangle about the agenda. But here in Berlin, you see all around you the human and material stakes in the desperate game the Soviets are playing.

In sum, these stakes add up to Germany. Germany nowadays is the key, both strategically and politically, of Western Europe. Hence this projected conference which in America seems so remote is likely to be as significant a turning point as the London meeting in 1946, that led the United States to adopt the policy of "patience and firmness."

To be sure, no one who surveys the scene from Berlin can possibly credit the rumor, so sedulously spread by the Kremlin, that the Soviets will take this occasion to offer the basis of a serious world settlement In pressing for the four power conference they have had much harder and more self-serving aims.

The first aim has been to delay decision on the vital matter of the German contribution to the defenses of the West. In this the Soviets have already triumphantly succeeded, gaining about six months' time thereby. The second aim is vastly more ambitious. The Soviets hope to use the conference itself to divide and disrupt the Western alliance for good and all.

Could Be Dangerous

The question is how Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky will seek to attain the planned objective. What is feared in Washington is of course well known. The American policy makers fear that Vishinsky will offer the unification of Germany on the basis of genuine free elections, in return for guaranties of German demilitarization and withdrawal of all occupation forces.

On the surface such an offer would be very attractive, especially to the Germans. For the Russians, it would mean the temporary loss of their profitable province in East Germany, where their stooge government would be snowed under in free voting. But for the Western allies this deal would mean the loss of the strategically vital central German position. Western rearmament would thus, at best, be appallingly hampered, and more probably would be permanently disrupted.

"Meanwhile the Russian armies would retreat only a few score miles from the German border. They would be as ready as ever to flow out again over a Germany left with no defense whatever, and a Western Europe exposed by the loss of the German glacis. Thus superficially, Washington fears (which are authoritatively reported to be shared by Chancellor Adenauer) would appear to be justified.

The Berlin signs suggest, moreover, that the Soviets have at least been playing with the idea of this whole gamble. At the Prague meeting, when the new Kremlin line of "German unity" was first announced some months ago, Vyascheslav Molotov not only rode rough-shod over the satellite Communists to make them agree to his draft declaration; there is also some evidence that Mototov called in the non-Communist so-called Foreign Minister of East Germany, George Dertinger, and gave him a little speech about the virtues of free elections.

Demilitarization Stressed

Since then, it is known that the Soviet Kommandatura has discreetly checked what the probable result of a free election in East Germany would be. And it is also known that the leaders of the East German government, foreseeing abandonment by their masters, had begun to be exceedingly concerned about their own future.

On the other side of the ledger, however, are three still more important items of evidence. First the Soviets have not only continued exploitation of the East German uranium mines of the Erzgebirge; they have also recently opened a large number of shafts producing very low quality ore. This suggests that the Erzgezirge resource is still vital to them and cannot be gambled with.

Second, Gromyko at Paris, contrary to the Prague line, has laid all his stress on German demilitarization rather than "German unity." Third, the East German leaders, Grotewohl, Ulbricht and Gerhard Eisler, have lately each gone out of the way to define "free elections" as the kind of transparent farce that would deceive nobody and receive no consideration at any four power meeting.

On balance, therefore, it appears more likely (although very far from certain) that the Soviets will avoid the great gamble with East Germany that has worried Washington. Unfortunately, however, there are other tactics, equally menacing, which are also open to the Kremlin. These require discussion in another report.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—America's moral force—the strongest influence that can be brought to bear to convince the Peron government in Argentina how vital freedom of the press is to the international standing of any nation—is being exerted to recover for "La Prensa," leading newspaper of Buenos Aires, the right to resume publication.

What Assistant Secretary Miller said recently has now been reaffirmed by the Secretary of State, Dean Acheson—namely, that the closing of "La Prensa" has had such an adverse impact on American public opinion that the United States Government now is limited in its ability to cooperate with the Argentine Government.

These are the polite and restrained phrases of diplomacy, but they convey a world of meaning. They are notice that the United States is not just fighting communism in Europe and Asia and shutting its eyes to fascism or totalitarianism in Latin America.

Opens Way To Danger

Once freedom of the press is abolished, the way is opened to the elimination of other liberties and soon a situation is developed which creates international danger. A nation that cares little for the preservation of internal liberties becomes unscrupulous next in international relations. That's the tragic course which dictatorship usually follows.

It is interesting to recall in this connection — for Argentina is a Catholic country—a pronouncement made in November, 1944, by the Catholic bishops of the United States. They discussed this very subject—when what seems to be an internal matter becomes a matter of external or international concern. The words of that pronouncement of a little more than six years ago fit the Argentine situation as explicitly as if they had been written today:

"The international organization must never violate the rightful sovereignty of nations. Sovereignty is a right which comes from the juridicial personality of a nation and which the international organization must safeguard and defend. However, national sovereignty may not be interpreted as absolving a nation from its obligations in the international community. Moreover even within the state, national sovereignty is limited by the innate rights of men and families. Since civil authority does not confer these God-given rights, it may not violate them.

"The ideology of a nation in its internal life is a concern of the international community. To reject this principle is tantamount to maintaining that the violation of the innate rights of men in a country by its own government has no relation to world peace. Just at this moment, in the interest of world peace, our nation is exerting itself to root out some ideologies which violate human rights in the countries we are liberating. We hold that if there is to be a genuine and lasting world peace, the international organization should demand as a condition of membership that every nation guarantee in law and respect in fact the innate rights of men, families, and minority groups in their civil and religious life.

Tyranny Menaces Peace

"Surely our generation should know that tyranny in any nation menaces world peace. A nation which refuses to accord to its own people the full enjoyment of innate human rights cannot be relied upon to cooperate in the international community for the maintenance of a peace which is based on the recognition of national freedom. Such a nation will pursue its own selfish international policies, while paying lip service to international cooperation."

The foregoing is a doctrine which, if it had been widely understood prior to 1939, might have prompted an international organization to examine the behavior of the Hitler government—then regarded, unfortunately, by too many countries as just an internal affair. But there was no strong international institution available at that time to take up the fight.

Today the United Nations, backed by world opinion, can examine the Argentine situation. Certainly a concerted step to withraw am-

WHAT THE CROSS DOES

And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him. Luke 23:33 (K. J. V.). Read Isaiah 53.

Erskine of Linlathen used to express his wonder at what he called "the dumbness of God." God would not speak. The heavens were brass. When he prayed, God never came back with an audible answer.

Was there ever a man of us who did not have a similar experience? We hoped, and dreamed, and wondered about God. We asked if he cared; whether he was a God of mercy, or whether he was a tyrant sitting on his throne, delighting in his children's misery.

But somehow at the Cross God's silence is broken. He speaks. He lets us see through the darkness. The veil of the temple is rent in twain, and we see behind the scene. We hear his voice cutting through the silence like the sweep of a sword-blade. When he speaks he tells, not of his austerity, justice, and majesty, but of his love, forgiveness, and renewal of life. One "shining hour" before the Cross is enough to save us from cynicism, fear, and despair.

Let Us Pray: O God, we would stand long enough before that strange Man hanging on his Cross until our hearts melt and we are cleansed from all anger, revenge and hate. Hasten the day when the nations will lose their warring natures in his redemptive love. Amen.

Taft, Nixon Blast Report On Dixie Textile Industry

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An "amazing and unjustified slur" on the South—that's the way two Republican senators described a Senate Labor Subcommittee's majority report on the southern textile industry.

Sens. Taft (R-Ohio) and Nixon (R-Calif) called the document one-sided and "neither objective nor in any sense factual."

The majority report came out early this month. It charged that southern employers, businessmen and churches had conspired to destroy or block unionization of southern textile mills.

It also said manufacturers were quitting New England for the South mainly because of lower wake scales and the absence of organized labor in the mill areas.

In their minority report Taft and Nixon said publication of the majority document constitutes "an amazing and unjustified slur upon a great section of our country," and added:

"The fact is that employers in the southern textile industry do not differ greatly from employers in other parts of the country and southern employers in other industries."

The two senators said the subcommittee's inquiry appeared to have been inspired by the CIO textile workers union "because of its failure in its attempt to organize the majority of the employes in the southern textile industry."

As for the North-South wage differential, the minority document said:

"During World War II, the National War Labor Board held that wage differentials as between different parts of the country were sound and proper on the basis of social, economic and geographic factors."

Taft and Nixon asked:

"Is there, after all, any reason for forcing a cost on southern employers higher than is necessary to give the same standard of living in the South as prevails in the North?"

The majority's findings were based on case studies covering an American Enka Corporation plant at Morristown, Tenn.; the American Thread Company, Tallapoosa, Ga.; Anchor Rome Mills, Inc., Rome, Ga.; the Celanese Corporation plant at Rome, Ga.; and activities of a citizens committee at Anderson, S.C.

The Taft-Nixon report said the majority had presented "a distorted picture" of labor-management relations in the South, particularly in the textile industry.

"In the American Enka case," Taft and Nixon said, "photographs and testimony that was not denied showed that, not twice or three times but time after time, mobs of striking union members, living in three counties of East Tennessee, gathered at the plant gates at the same times and engaged in organized assaults on non-striking employes.

"Yet the majority report, insofar as it mentions these incidents at all, avoids any intimation that the union had any hand in organizing and directing the jobs or responsibility for what they did."

Taft and Nixon said that in the American Thread case, the majority report "describes in emotional terms" a "brutal" assault by one nonunion employe upon two union organizers after he had received many threats from union people. They added parenthetically that the majority failed to mention that the non-union worker had a broken arm.

"But in the American Enka case, the majority shows no sympathy whatsoever for a non-striking employe who was shot twice, and whose condition was critical, nor for a third non-striking employe who was shot once, all on the morning of June 22, 1950, as they came to work at the plant."

Taking note of majority criticism of the issuance of injunctions in the Anchor Rome Mills, American Enka and the Celanese Corporation cases, Taft and Nixon said:

"The picketing that was enjoined against in the cases the majority report cites went, in each instance, far beyond what any of these states and judges would tolerate, and those cases do not support legislation interfering with the power of the states to enjoin against disaster."

As for majority criticism of use of the National Guard in the American Enka case, Taft and Nixon cited incidents of violence and added:

"When workers wish to work and police — whether deputies, highway patrolmen, guardsmen or others — restrain pickets who seek through force and violence to keep them from working, there are those who always will say this is 'strikebreaking.' The question is simply one of whether or not the 'right to strike' includes also the right by these methods to destroy the equal right of others not to strike."

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

How To Beat Inflation

LA GRANGE, GA.

THE financial expert said the way to beat inflation was to buy a farm and have cows, bulls, and the products of the soil, so the missus and I started out last January to look for a ranch in the South. The ones she liked I didn't, since she was interested in houses, and I was seeking rolling, fertile fields. The upshot of the tour was I made a man an offer by telephone when I got back, and he took it, although he had told me positively he wouldn't consider a cent less than his price, and besides property was going up every week.

Well, a few days ago I came here to inspect my purchase and close up the deal, having already paid a deposit. I took the train to get a good night's sleep. A group of about five or six gents met me at the station, and I thought it was a reception committee, reflecting the civic enterprise of the town, but they turned out to be dealers in trucks, hay balers, feed, and other items for farms. The word had certainly gotten around fast, and I had heard there was a shortage. It was arranged with the boys to make a thorough inspection the next day. There was one young man who appealed to me, so I suggested we might have a drink before dinner.

"But this county is dry," he remarked.

"Oh, forget it then," I said. But he wouldn't take no for an answer, and we got into his truck and drove about two miles to a cottage which he entered after suggesting I stay aboard. It turned out he bought a pint of something marked "blended whiskey," and the whole procedure took me back to the good old days of prohibition. We stopped at his feed store which was closed for the day, and the second shot didn't taste so bad when mixed with a southern vintage called Coca Cola. Both being old soldiers, we got to talking about war, and he modestly admitted he had been General Patton's aide for a time.

"And there was one hell of a soldier," he said admiringly. "I imagine I can still feel the place in my back where he prodded me with his foot one day we were in the front lines. The Germans had opened up on us with machine guns from a house off a little to our right, and I suddenly felt tired and lay down in a ditch. I looked around, and the old man was standing up stright as an arrow, firing at the Heinies with his 45 automatic.

"'Hey Phil,' he hollered, 'where the hell are you?' Then he spotted me. 'Get up. What do you think you're doin'?' He emphasized his remark with his boot toe.

"'I'm dodgin' those bullets?' I answered.

"'What will the boys here think of you?'

"'They'll think I'm smart like they are. They're all down.' He just laughed and didn't say anything more, but he never took cover himself."

I asked him about the slapping incident in Sicily when he was supposed to have whacked a soldier in a hospital.

"He never hit him," insisted my companion. "I was standing as close to Patton as I am to you, and we were going through the place when there was an air raid. This boy was scared and struggling with some nurses to get out of bed, and the General just gave him a shove. Yeh, the old man sure was one hell of a soldier."

I discovered my friend had later joined the paratroopers and had made several combat jumps.

"I'd be too scared to go overboard," I said as I contemplated tumbling out into enemy territory.

"So was I the first time," he admitted, "but I got kicked out by a better man than I was, otherwise I would have loused up the whole show."

My room at the hotel was in the front on the second floor, and I got very little sleep, as there were trucks and automobiles going through it all night, and along toward five in the morning a couple of airplanes. By breakfast time, my enthusiasm had waned, and I was more interested in aspirin than tilling the soil, because by now the whole business began to seem like a headache.

With a cabinet of experts—salesmen, county agents, conservation guys, etc.—we went over the land, and I got plenty of suggestions. When we had finished, I was groggy from advice. I had heard about fertilizers, and various grasses like lespedeza, fescue, sericea, and kudzu until my head was spinning.

That night I made up my mind. Fortunately I knew a local friend who would take the place off my hands on the same terms. The first thing in the morning I called him up, before he could change his mind, and we made a deal. Then I went quietly to the airport without notifying the boys and flew back to Connecticut. To hell with inflation.

IF YOU'RE IN THE MOOD TO CAUSE A FURORE YOU MIGHT GIVE SOME OF THE FRENCH FASHIONS A WHIRL

By FLORENCE MILLS
AP Newsfeatures

PARIS — Some highly sensational fashions have been shown in Paris this spring, especially in the accessory field, but you have to have a lot of pluck to venture out in public with them.

There's a suit by Alwynn, for example, that has the strictly tailored jacket worn back to front. High placed lapels and buttons set in double-breasted formation are there, but you only see them from back view.

Then Schiaparelli is showing a black tulle evening dress with a sort of Moses basket attachment, edged with stiff pleated frilling, jutting out from the back of the shoulders.

It's a natural for a spectacular entrance but once that's over it might tempt an onlooker to use it as a deposit for cigarette ashes.

Or how does purple or green straw hair strike you? It's lacquered to match the color of your topcoat coat, braided at the back, then coiled into two enormous "earphones," remimiscent of the hair styles worn so much in the Twenties.

If you don't mind being as blind as a bat and looking like a hangman at work, then mask your face and head completely with two or three layers of black chiffon to match your cocktail ensemble. Balenciaga, the Spanish designer, does this and crowns the whole effect with a "cabbage" hat made of stiffened chiffon leaves.

According to Schiaparelli, all you have to do is to add a little dash to that ordinary looking dress is to fix yourself up with a pair of pink satin garters, worn around your calves so that they show beguilingly (you hope) every time your skirt sways out from your legs.

If you feel a little chilly in your summer dress, you can just lift up the skirt and wrap it around your shoulders, according to this designer. She introduces a number in caramel colored taffeta which has arm-slits cut near the bottom of the hem of its fan-pleated skirt. The whole business is quite respectable, for a plain sheath in the same material is worn beneath it.

You can put your feet in the limelight by trimming your plain black pumps with big orange flowers or attract attention to your corns by going barefooted and wearing a colossal amethyst ring on your middle toe.

Dye your pet dog purple, or any other non-canine color, and carry him under your arm in order to complete the color scheme of your ensemble. Make a handbag out of a cigar box with a gaudy label—or wear evening gloves that merge into ground length panels.

Become a hula-hula girl and wear a huge wreath of flowers round your neck the way they wear them in Hawaii. A Paris version of this type of wreath is made entirely of yellow chiffon daffodils to match its accompanying dress.

If you get tired of covering your chignon with flowers or ribbon, just string half a dozen lemons together and use those instead.

If your're the type that likes a walking stick to support you, choose one of the new, extra tall types that reach the waist. You can have a purse built into the top—or a monocle, released by a secret catch.

There's no knowing what people will say if you adopt any of these ideas but at least you can rest assured that the Priests of High Fashion are all on your side.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

SPROBABLY too soon to say. . . . But Majority Leader McFarland aims at August first for the adjournment of the Senate this year. . . Many of his colleagues, though, expect to stay right through summer with international and investigation sitches being what they are.

AUSTINE

Mink breeders think they'll bring suit against the United States Government—namely, the Agriculture Dept. . . . Innocently, hundreds of mink breeders fed their beasties with chicken heads from fowls that had been fed a new "Miracle' drug (which the Agriculture Dept. had informed chicken growers would prevent a disease called "black-head" in their birds). . . . But horrors! The mink breeders found that the feeding of such chicken heads made the male minks unfit for papahood.

Now the irate mink breeders are fuming that something must be done by the Agriculture Dept. or the U. S. government to allow them to recoup their losses!

Republican congressmen swear the voters also will "Think of mink" come next election —That $10,000 mink coat!

The coat appears in sworn testimony as having been received by a White House secretary, wife of the former RFC official Mr. Merl Young. . . The mink supposedly was paid for by a D. C. lawyer who handled RFC applications. . . In the voter's mind that mink coat has already become a symbol—a symbol of the influence, the seeking and bestowing of favors, which has obviously been going on in the Royal White House Court.

Congressman Shafer, a balding battler from Battle Creek, Michigan, not long ago reminded me of the history of this federal-lending agency:

"The RFC was established by Congress in 1932 during the last year of President Hoover's administration. It was intended as a temporary expediency, made necessary during the world-wide depression when normal sources of risk money to stimulate and sustain industry and commerce were dried up. "At the time, President Hoover pointed out that it was not the proper business of the government to make loans to the public."

As it now operates, RFC uses your taxpayer dollar to make low-interest rate loans, that's sort of unfair competition with private banks—and right now the banks are looking for business. When RFC selects certain private firms to become the "beneficiaries" it gives these firms unfair advantage over competitors who can't get those low rate RFC loans.

Chunky, plain, hard-working Hoosier Representative Wilson tongue-in-cheeks about Merl Young, accused of RFChicanery:

"Mr. Young has been trying to convince a Senate committee that he rose from one thousand a year salary to sixty-thousand a year salary by sheer application of his talent and time—a true modern day Horatio Alger hero!

You probably have heard that RFC stands for "Real Fat Cat."

RITTER-TITTERS

Thelma Ritter who completely stole the movie, "The Mating Season," tittering with Georgia Neese Clark, the United States Treasurer. . . Close friends of long standing, the two of them went to dramatic school together—longer ago than either cares to admit!

SMARTEST ARTISTS

There may be painters of fish —and even fish that paint—but so far, Washington has never had the joint exhibition of a husband and wife painting team. . You might call theirs a "One Man-One-Woman Show". . . Perhaps, not as many folk as have flocked to the National Gallery to see the sizeable Kress collection of paintings, but still a good turnout of art critics, prospective buyers and admiring friends should fill the little New Georgetown Gallery next Sunday when the exhibition opens.

Tall, alert, pert, pretty Rosalind Rust Tolman and her equally tall, talented and attractive husband, Eads, practically began painting together on their honeymoon.

Now they'll show—and they hope, sell—some 30 or 40 of their paintings. . . Pastel's his medium. . . "Gouache" hers.

On the second floor of their Georgetown home, Roz and Eads work side by side, utterly silent and absorbed, for hours on end, most week ends. . ."While working, no conversation," she says. "The advantage of having a husband who paints, is that he can criticize constructively. We know each other so thoroughly that we can encourage each other to do more and better creative work."

Their adorable baby has been put to work, too. . . "He makes a wonderful model!" said his young mother, enthusiastically.

FOY JOY

After waiting seven months, a bundle of joy rides—a factory fresh, gleaming Rolls Royce, for $15,000 —was delivered to exquisitely dressed, fascinating Chrysler heiress, Thelma Foy. . . The British-made car was docked in New York and driven to her door by Washington foreign car dealer, Jack Pry. . . Lacking a portable bar, leopard upholstery, and a private telephone, which some of the flashier American custom-builts display, the sleek, streamlined, new town car of sleek, streamlined Mrs. Foy is still handsome enough to draw a drooling crowd any time!

Use these two Powers Girl tricks to repair small grooming accidents that mar perfect appearances!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

EVERY exquisitely-groomed woman who wishes to maintain her reputation for always looking lovely learns all the tricks she can for repairing grooming accidents. A last-minute chip in your nail polish or a wisp of unruly hair can be as detracting from an otherwise perfect appearance as a dent in the fender of a new car—and you know how that catches the eye of any man.

Those all-too-common grooming tragedies can be repaired quickly and slickly if you just take these Powers Girl tips:

Controlling Unruly Wisps

For tress distress, keep a supply of the new spray-on hair dressings on hand. Be sure to select a type that will keep your hair in place without making it look stiff or unnatural. Then learn how to use it. If you practice this way, you will perfect your skill.

After arranging your hair to perfection in your favorite style, release the spray cap. Do not hold the spray too close or you will saturate one spot instead of misting your entire coiffure. Move the spray around your head systematically to dampen the whole surface evenly. While it's still moist, press the waves firmly in place with your fingers and smooth your curls.

When you are satisfied with the general effect, attack the particulars — those pesky back ends. Wet a piece of cotton with the spray. Press the cotton against your hairline at the side-back, and using the same pressure, move across to the other side. When you have finished, double check to make sure you have not disarranged any part of your coiffure that hangs below your back hairline.

Manicure Mishap

Now for the Powers Girl one-minute chip repair: Use your lipstick! Select one from your stock that matches your polish. Using a lipstick brush, apply the lipstick in a heavy opaque coat over the chip. Being careful not to disturb this layer, immediately brush over it and the entire nail a generous coat of clear, quick-dying polish.

In seconds the job will be done and dry. Don't worry about its not lasting! It will; and until your next manicure!

Too Little For Too Many Snags Communist China's Land Reform

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG, (AP)—The Chinese Communists, plans for dividing up the nation's land are well adcanved—but even the Reds themselves admit the going is rough.

The land division promise was one of the biggest planks in the Chinese Reds' platform when they were struggling for power. The Communists contended that too much farmland was owned by big landlords and that too few peasants tilled their own land.

Land reform promises were nothing new to the Chinese. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government made frequent announcements along this line but never acted. Critics of the Nationaists often charged that landlords controlled Chiang's government.

Most neutral observers felt that land reform was needed in China, but that it would be no cure-all for the country's trouble—which was too many people and too little land.

Information about the Communist land program is sketchy. Impartial observers aren't allowed to make first-hand inspection.

From here, however, it appears that in some areas the land has been divided up with fair success. In several areas the division was achieved by sheer force and terror, and is still resisted. In others, the opposition was so great the Reds called it off and delayed the whole program for a year or two. There are some locailities where the Communists haven't gotten around to starting it yet.

Opposition by landlords took many forms. Sometimes it was broken up by firing squads. Thousands of landlords fled China. Hong Kong is full of them. Many who stayed at home are opposing the Communist program as guerrillas.

Many small landlords, fearful of the approaching land division, sold their livestock and farm equipment, cut down wood lots and disposed of their household goods. When the Red officials arrived they found a barren countryside.

Most of China's landlords were little ones, despite Communist propaganda. The industrious little farmer took a dim view of dividing with his less energetic neighbor.

The most puzzling reaction is the fierce tenant-farmer resistance to the program in some sections, notably in South China.

Why should the tenant-farmer, who owns no land and pays rent to a landlord, resist redistribution?

Here is the answer from one of China's elder statesmen; a man who had served in almost every phase of the Nationalist government for half a century:

"You must remember that the Chinese land system is a product of evolution over the centuries, and for all its evils it represents an effort to meet the situation of too little land for too many people.

"It is based on paternalism. The landless peasant has a stake in it as well as the rich landlord. In a bad season the landlord scaled down the rent, and when taxes got heavy the landlord paid the larger share and sometimes all of them.

"At births and deaths and weddings, the landlords was expected to produce substantial gifts, and he did. In times of famine the peasant turned to the landlord, who usually had some food stored away.

"The Reds aren't the first to try land reform. Several dynasties tried it, and some of their attempts were very similar to that being tried by the Reds today, but none of them worked.

"Now, the Reds promise the peasant land of his own. It usually is not quite enough. The peasant knows that he then must pay taxes, in good years and bad.

"Chances are the peasant has at least one son in the Red army, so he is told he must pay a special levy of rice to support his army son.

"He sees innumerable Communist officials all over the country ,and he knows that the people who own land must feed them. The peasant, in some areas at least, simply decides he has more to lose than to gain.

"I think that China needs land reform. But the Reds are going too far. They won't compromise to meet circumstances.

"They aim to make the peasant prosperous if they have to stick a bayonet in him."

Art And Not Legs Stressed By Current Miss America

MOBILE, Ala.—(AP)—The current Miss America is stressing art, not legs, and refusing to "parade around in a bathing suit for any amount of money."

Yolande Betbeze, 22-year-old brunette whose 119 pounds are distributed in near perfect proportions, said that "the leg shows were all right back in the early 1920s when the Atlantic City pageant started.

"But the public now has a greater sense of values. There's a growth in culture and a greater appreciation for the girl who has talent along with physical beauty."

She gave her views in an interview following refusal to go on a bathing suit tour for Catalina, Inc., longtime supporter of the Miss America contest.

Coloratura soprano, Miss Betbeze will sing the role of Olympia, beautiful mechanical doll, in a Mobile Guild production of "Tales of Hoffman" next week.

As for live dolls, commented Miss Betbeze, you can find them "on any bathing beach or in any of the hundreds of beauty contests held throughout the country."

Russia Never Will Have Political System Like U. S., Expert Declares

NEW YORK—(AP)—Americans are justified in hoping the Russian people some day may throw off the Bolshevik yoke, even without world war. But Americans must not expect that the Russians ever will have a political system similar to that of the United States.

This appraisal comes today from George F. Kennan, former State Department counselor. A leading U. S. expert on Soviet affairs, Kennan says any anti-Bolshevik revolution should not be hampered by preconceived Western notions. He urges the U.S. to strive to keep its own house in order, to light the way to freedom by its own example.

Kennan writes in Foreign Affairs, a quarterly review:

"No iron curtain could suppress, even in the innermost depths of Siberia, the news that America had shed the shackles of disunity, confusion and doubt and had taken a new lease of hope and determination, and was setting about her tasks with enthusiasm and clarity of purpose."

Kennan is the "Mr. X" who won fame in 1947 as the architect of the U.S. policy of containment of Soviet aggression. He left the State Department last August on leave to join Princeton University's Institute of Advanced Study.

Americans, he says, must not expect "a capitalistic and liberal-democratic" Russia with institutions closely resembling American ones. Conceding that the form of the future Russian state after Bolshevism is a matter of concern to the West, he adds that Americans need not be concerned about the form of government if it keeps "within certain well-defined limits beyond which lies totalitarianism."

The Americans must remember, he says, that the Russians even before Bolshevik power never knew private enterprise as it is known in the U.S. In a new Russia, for instance, collective farms might remain and become a valuable form of enterprise, on a voluntary rather than compulsory basis.

"The forced collectivization of the farming population is probably today the greatest single cause of discontent in the Soviet Union, except possibly the excessive cruelty of the police, with which it is intimately connected."

In anticipation of the day of Bolshevism's end, Kennan says Americans should prepare themselves with a clear idea of the Russia they hope to see. If the future Russia is to live in peace with the West this is what should be hoped for:

"That she lift forever the iron curtain, that she recognize certain limitations to the internal authority of government; that she abandon as ruinous and unworthy the ancient game of imperialist expansion and oppression.

"If she is not prepared to do these things she will hardly be distinguishable from what we have before us today, and to hasten the arrival of such a Russia would not be worth the care or thought of a single American.

"If she is prepared to do these things x x x the basic demands of a more stable world order will then have been met." x x x.

If war with the Bolshevik power should come, Kennan says, Americans should avoid unrealistic slogans and bend their efforts to giving the Russian people the impression that "we are on their side and that our victory, if it comes, will be used to provide them with a chance to shape their own destiny in the future to a pattern happier than

Burma Eyes New Link To Britain As Ills Pile Up

By DOUGLAS LACKERSTEEN

RANGOON.—(AP)—If they had a free choice, 90 per cent of the Burmese would vote for a return to the British commonwealth, but first, said an authoritative source, there must be a change in government.

A new government, shorn of its socialist influence, would seriously consider reforging links with the commonwealth, veteran Burmese Politician U Ba Pe said in an interview, provided Burmese independence is guarantee.

Associated with this country's administration for more than 40 years, Ba Pe helped mould the anti-fascist People's Freedom League which accepted transfer of power from Britain in 1948. He was adviser to assassinated Prime Minister Aung San during independence negotiations with the British cabinet.

Now 68, he and a group of older politicians hope to make a comeback to power if and when independent Burma holds its first general elections.

Other responsible Burmans share Ba Pe's opinion the Burmere made a mistake in severing political ties with Britain.

One of these, U Chit Hlaing, former speaker in the Burmese parliament, told reporters Burmese independence came too soon. He said the sudden change in status upset the country's economy and gave rise to "all kinds of troubles."

Chit Hlaing disclosed he had been in communication with members of the British Labor Party who suggested Burma should rejoin the Commonwealth and guaranteed the country's independence will stand intact.

Another old timer, 67-year-old Ba Dun, said Burma lost more than it gained by trading security for independence. In an interview, he said it "would be advantageous for Burma to get back to the Commonwealth in these troublesome times."

Ba Dun, secretary of the prewar legislative assembly, said he would vote for a return to the Commonwealth if he had the chance.

Neutral observers betray no surprise at this swing in Burmese feelings. They assert it is a natural reaction to first elation over independence.

When Burma's five-star tri-color replaced Britain's Union Jack on Jan. 4, 1948, the Burmese anticipated a future as rosy as the breaking dawn.

They were a free people after 122 years' serviture and saw in independence an opportunity for nation-building enterprises.

Practricidal war breaking out three months after independence cut short their hopes.

Dad Uses Binoculars To Watch His Tiny Son In Hospital Nursery

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—A baby so small his daddy uses a pair of binoculars to look at him is in the Indianapolis Methodist Hospital.

The tiny child is William John Cherry. The nurses call him "Pee Wee," "Peanut," and "Mr. Bill."

"Mr. Bill" checked in at the hospital Feb. 24 weighing one pound, 15 ounces. He is now up to a weighty two pounds, eight ounces.

He is usually kept in a corner of the nursery, some distance from the observation window, and that's why his father, William R. Cherry, looks at him through the binoculars.

When he was born, the odds on "Mr. Bill" making the grade were one in ten. Now they are lengthening.

The bravery of the little fellow's mother gave him his chance.

Two and half months before his scheduled arrival his mother developed a toxemia condition.

Doctors advised that the baby would have to be delivered immediately by Caesarean section but, because of the effect on "Mr. Bill," a general anesthetic could not be given.

She underwent the operation with only local shots of novacaine.

Work On Dial Phone Project In Oakland Will Start Soon

The C. and P. Telephone Company announced yesterday the start of preliminary work for the conversion to a dial system at Oakland.

Richard E. Harman, local manager, said two Oakland crews and three additional crews totaling 16 men are spinning the Deep Creek cable between Oakland and Sand Flat. Open wire is being set up between Accident and Friendsville, he added.

Installation and rewiring work at Oakland will begin next week, Harman said, but the main part of the program will not be undertaken until summer.

A new building is to be constructed at Oakland.

Harman estimated that actual dial operations would not begin until 1952.

The present work is concerned with engineering, planning and conversion records, Harman said adding that when the project is completed it will affect 1,500 stations or phones.

Harman explained that the Oakland office is operating at capacity and something had to be done. The shift to dial will be the result.

Father Held On Morals Charges

James Leroy Crissey, 27, RFD 3, Bedford, Pa., waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles J. Harrison Jr., or Somerset yesterday on four morals charges.

Crissey posted a bond for $2,000 and will enter a plea before Judge Thomas Landsberry in the Somerset County Court on April 9. He had been accused of indecent exposure and displaying lewd pictures to at least seven children.

The 27-year-old father of two children was arrested here Tuesday by Pennsylvania State Police.

Police said Crissey accosted several young girls on the streets in Somerset Sunday. He was tentatively identified through a license number taken by one of the girls, traced to Bedford county and later to Cumberland where he was reported to have been living with his mother.

After he admitted accosting the girls, authorities said, Crissey was taken to Allegany County Circuit Court to waive extradition.

In a written statement, Crissey said he was visiting in Somerset over the weekend and had been drinking before approaching the girls.

State Police said seven children reported being approached by a man operating an automobile.

Caswell To Head Elks Lodge Here

George A. Caswell was elected exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks Wednesday night at an election and initiatory meeting.

He succeeds Walter A. Fraley, Jr., who becomes a member of the Board of Trustees for five years. Other elected officers are Earl M. Nonnenmann, esteemed leading knight; Joseph F. Stakem, esteemed loyal knight; John M. Robb, esteemed lecturing knight; Edgar A. Dashiell, treasurer; and James E. Yarnall, secretary. A chaplain is to be appointed.

A class initiated Wednesday night was in honor of Yarnall who on April 1 begins his 18th year in that office. The lodge, by resolution, paid tribute to his years of service and voted him an honorary life membership.

Past Exalted Ruler J. Douglas Heron conducted the initiation, filling all the chairs in a novel ceremony. Heron's feat will be remembered in a scroll which the lodge ordered prepared for presentation to him.

A number of guests from Frostburg, Frederick and Washington, D. C., attended. A shrimp feast followed.

County To Receive Surplus Seats From Nation's Capitol

Through the efforts of Rep. J. Glenn Beall the county will acquire between 75 and 100 mahogany chairs with leather seats which had been used in the House of Repreesenetatives' chamber in the nation's capital.

The chairs are surplus due to the remodeling and refurnishing of the chambers by the federal government. A truck was sent to Washington yesterday to pick up the chairs.

While on a trip to Baltimore two weeks ago to confer with the State Roads Commission, members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners went over to Washington to meet with Rep. Beall. It was at this time that arrangements were made to obtain the chairs.

The county commissioners said the chairs will be used in the grand jury room and auxiliary court room at the Court House.

While no exact price was set for the chairs, it is known that the cost will be nominal. Both judges of Circuit Court requested previously that chairs in the two rooms at the Court House be replaced due to their dilapidated condition.

Glamorous Desserts

Envied is the homemaker who is able to serve glamorous-looking luccious-tasting desserts that do not take hours to prepare. The modern homemaker finds this simple with the many appetizing desserts offered at her neighborhood bakery. By adding a touch or two of her own, she can turn plain, uniced baker's cakes into special dessert treats that are not only delicious, but attractive, thereby building a reputation for their cleverness in meal planning. An eye and taste-appealing cake topping that can be used with any type of baker's plain cake is made by combining sweetened whipped cream with peanut brittle pieces and diced pears.

Phone Company Will Conserve Vital Materials

Steps being taken by telephone companies to conserve vital defense materials through the use of new equipment were discussed by Sidney C. Miller, of the Baltimore office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company Wednesday night.

Miller addressed members of the Engineers Club of Cumberland and described the use of finer gauge wire and the derivation of more long distance circuits through the application of recently developed carrier systems.

Such systems, which are similar to radio systems operated over conventional long distance cables, may be used to increase the number of inter-city circuits with the minimum use of copper, now in short supply.

Growth of television broadcasting in the Baltimore-Washington, D. C., area was also discussed. The telephone company's techniques of furnishing inter-city circuits for network broadcasting as well as circuits between radio studios and remote television transmitters were described and illustrated with slides. Structures and apparatus used to relay systems by means of microwave radio transmitters and receivers were described in detail.

Miller indicated that Bell System facilities for television broadcasting are scheduled to be extended to the west coast during this year and that the same service would be available to Atlanta, Ga., in the near future.

Moose Member Honored

Robert (Bob) Snyder, member of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, was given a farewell party Wednesday night at the Moose Home by the lodge's "Toonerville Band." Snyder will leave Cumberland about April 1 to accept a position in the District Membership Department of the Loyal Order of Moose. Although his headquarters will be in Pittsburgh, Pa., his first assignment to promote membership will be at Lorain, Ohio. In the picture, Snyder, at the right, is shown receiving two leather bags from Lonnie Jackson, center, governor of Lodge No. 271, and another gift from Charles Pettie, on behalf of the "Toonerville Band."

Texas Native

Fletcher is a native of Grand Saline, Tex., where he was born in 1901. After graduation from high school there he entered Wesley College in Greenville, Tex., to study for the ministry. At the end of his second year in college he decided to forsake theology for sociology. He was principal of Knights of Pythias School at Wetherford, Tex., for three years. Later he was principal of the State Home for Dependent Children at Corsicana, Tex., from which he resigned in 1936 to accept a position as assistant superintendent of the State School for Boys, Warwick, N. Y., remaining there until coming to Lock Raven as superintendent in 1945.

The superintendent reports that Allegany county now has 12 boys in the institution which he directs. There are 13 others out on placement.

"We have always enjoyed a splendid relationship with your county," Fletcher has written here. "It has been easy to work with your people as they have been most cooperative. I am really looking forward to my few days in and around Cumberland."

City Workers

believes the police and firemen deserve additional pay since they work on a six-day week and must work holidays. He said that on an hourly basis, their pay is less than 75 cents an hour.

The Allegany county delegation did an about-face on its previous refusal to grant city police and firemen wage boosts and yesterday voted a $12 per-month across the board salary increase for members of the two departments.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357, for the firemen, and 359, for the police, calling for pay increases were given approval at a discussion by the delegates.

The delegation, See said, presented an unfavorable report on the bill increasing the sick leave and vacation time of the police and firemen.

Last Thursday, the majority of the delegation voted against giving any wage increases to the police and firemen, saying that the boost would make the city tax burden prohibitive.

Delegate See at that time also said that the bills were turned down because the delegation did not see why the police and firemen were singled out for raises. It felt that if any raise were to be given, all municipal employes should benefit.

No reason was advanced for the change of heart.

Tax Bill Introduced

Delegate See said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not request the legislation.

The delegation introduced today with a favorable report a bill enabling the city to increase Cumberland's taxing power for operating expenses by five cents. This measure was approved last week.

Delegate See also reported that a favorable report was given to the Bowling Green special taxing area bill. It will be introduced with five amendments, mostly clarification of wording.

The bill provides for a referendum on the plan to finance street lights and fire hydrants in the McMullen Highway community.

Delegate See said the bill has been amended to allow residents of that area who are qualified to vote in a state or county election to participate in the referendum. The original measure only made property owners eligible.

License Deadline Extension Seen

About 8,500 sets of automobile license plates have been sold at the office of Tax Collector Ernest B. Treat in the Court House, but he still has about 1,500 sets available for purchasers.

Treat's office, like all others in the Court House, will be closed all day today but will be open from 9 a. m. until noon tomorrow. He is expecting another shipment of plates soon.

Meanwhile, State Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd said yesterday in Baltimore that he will seek an extension of the March 31 deadline for Maryland auto license plates. A shortage of steel, he said, has thrown production of the new plates behind schedule.

Normally, vehicles could not be operated legally beyond the deadline without the new white-on-black tags.

Mudd said he will ask Governor McKeldin next week for permission to extend the March 31 limit. He did not indicate how long an extension would be requested.

Both Wednesday and yesterday, Treat's office disposed of exactly 414 sets of plates, keeping the average for the week well above the 400-daily level.

Treat said yesterday that he also will have license plates for farmers' trucks and privately-owned and operated trucks with a weight of 5,000 pounds or less, probably early in April. The deadline for truck plates is April 30.

Two Occupancy Permits Granted

Two occupancy and one building permit were issued this week by Albert S. Paye, city building engineer.

George R. McGee, this city, was granted permission to use 122 West Second Street as a wholesale and retail produce market.

The property, formerly used as a service station, is located in a Residential B district.

Charles Heavner, Wiley Ford, was granted permission to use a lot adjacent to 140 Harrison Street, as a parking lot and car washing stand. The property, formerly used for the same purpose, is in an industrial zoning district.

Leroy Miller, 430 Laing Avenue was issued a permit to enclose a porch on a property at 725 North Mechanic Street at a cost of $300.

Menu Ideas From Half Pork Loin

Solve two menu problems at once! Do it by purchasing half of a complete pork loin, says meat expert Reba Staggs.

For the first serving, use the loin chops from one end of the half pork loin. Of course, the chops are cooked by braising. Brown them in their own or a small amount of added lard or fat, then add a small amount of liquid. Cover the utensil closely and cook the pork chops from 45 minutes to 1 hour.

If desired, the chops may be cooked in mushroom sauce, tomato sauce or juice or a fruit juice. Or pork chops are ideal cooked over a scalloped dish. Brown them first, then arrange them over scalloped corn, tomatoes, potatoes or apples. The casserole is covered and presents just another way of braising the pork.

For the second serving use the remainder of the half pork loin to make chop suey or chow mein. For either of these, cut the meat into thin strips. Brown the meat and cook in the usual manner for chop suey. For still a different dish, cut the pork in cubes, brown them, then cook with green pepper squares and pineapple chunks. Near the end of cooking time add a sweet-sour sauce. Serve this over rice or French fried noodles to make mealtime news.

Cream Puffs

½ cup lard
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
1 cup enriched flour
4 eggs

Add lard to salted water and bring to a boil. Add flour all at once, and stir vigorously until ball forms in center of pan. Cool. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until mixture is smooth. Mixture should be very stiff. Shape on greased cooky sheet by dropping from spoon or using pastry bag and tube. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven (450° F.). Reduce temperature to moderate (350° F.) and continue baking for 30 minutes or until done. Cool. Fill with creamed meat, cream pie filling, ice cream or whipped cream. Yield: 12 to 14 cream puffs.

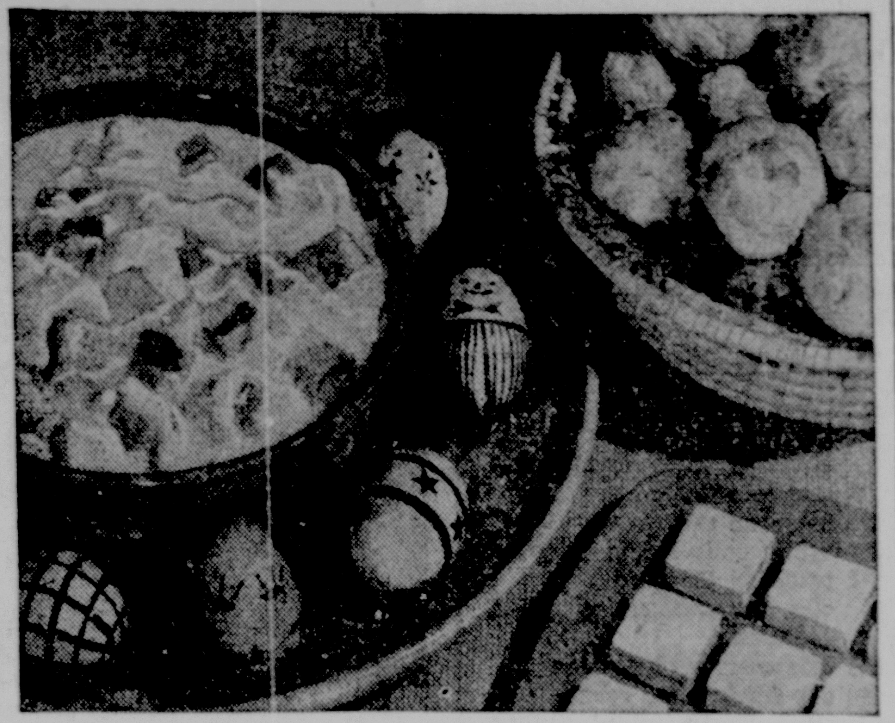
EASTER MORNING ENTERTAINING



Store windows full of flower-decked straw hats, pink-eared bunnies and pastel eggs tell us that Easter is close at hand.

If you're planning to do some Easter entertaining, why not invite friends in for a buffet breakfast or brunch. Or, make it a special occasion for the family anyway, if you don't entertain.

A special menu is in order for the occasion: Fresh strawberries with cream, cereal, creamed ham and eggs on toast points, tiny corn meal muffins with butter and hot chocolate. Use these recipes:

LITTLE CORN MEAL MUFFINS

¾ cup yellow corn meal
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
¼ cup melted butter

Sift corn meal, flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg; add milk and blend. Stir in melted butter. Add to dry ingredients, stirring just enough to blend. Fill 2 ¼-inch buttered muffin tins about ⅔ full. Bake in a hot oven, 425°F., for 20 minutes. Makes 16 muffins.

CREAMED HAM AND EGGS

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon condiment sauce
2½ cups milk
1½ cups diced cooked ham
4 sliced, hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons minced parsley (optional)
Hot toast points

Melt butter; add flour, seasonings and condiment sauce, and blend. Add milk gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add ham, sliced eggs and parsley. Heat through and serve with toast points. Serves 6.

Lenten Meal Suggestion

Fish Loaf

It is fish-fare during Lent with many delicious dishes in the offing. One popular-type dish, the fish loaf, is especially easy to make with canned fish, such as tuna, salmon and fish flakes.

A basic recipe may be used for all and changed from time to time with tasty "additional" ingredients. For instance, canned carrots and peas, added to the basic recipe, make a loaf that is different, nutritious and satisfying. Color, flavor and variety may be had by adding pimiento, ripe or green olives, or unusual seasonings to the basic recipe.

Tuna Loaf Deluxe will whet the appetites of the family on one of the meatless Lenten days. Hot cornbread sticks and crunchy tossed salad should tag along with the loaf.

Tuna Loaf Deluxe

2 eggs
¼ cup milk
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 7-oz. can flaked tuna
¼ cup chopped pimiento
¼ cup chopped ripe olives
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Beat eggs; add milk and crumbs; let stand about 5 minutes. Add ½ of the mushroom soup (saving remainder for sauce). Add rest of ingredients; mix. Place in greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until firm. Add ½ cup water to soup, heat and serve as sauce. Six servings.

So Ends The Meal

Finish off a heavy meal with this colorful, fruity delight. It's a "sweet tooth" satisfier, yet not too heavy.

Fruit Fluff On Caramel Cream

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
1 8-oz. can fruit cocktail
3 eggs
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons confectioners sugar
1 banana

Soak gelatin in syrup drained from fruit cocktail for 5 minutes. Separate one egg, reserving white for use in fruit fluff. Beat remaining eggs, sugar and salt together. Add milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add vanilla; pour into individual molds; chill until firm. Beat white until stiff; add confectioners sugar. Fold in diced banana and fruit cocktail. Unmold caramel cream and top with fruit mixture. Six servings.

Away With Lumps

Here's an aid to smooth gravy making. Instead of adding the flour straight to the drippings in thep an, add it to water in a small jar. Shake the jar vigorously, then pour the flour-water mixture into the drippings.

To Panbroil

Thep anboil((r400offa-ed-lk

To panbroil bacon, Canadian-style bacon and other meats, pour off the fat as it accumulates in the pan. Otherwise you'll be frying rather than panbroiling the meat.

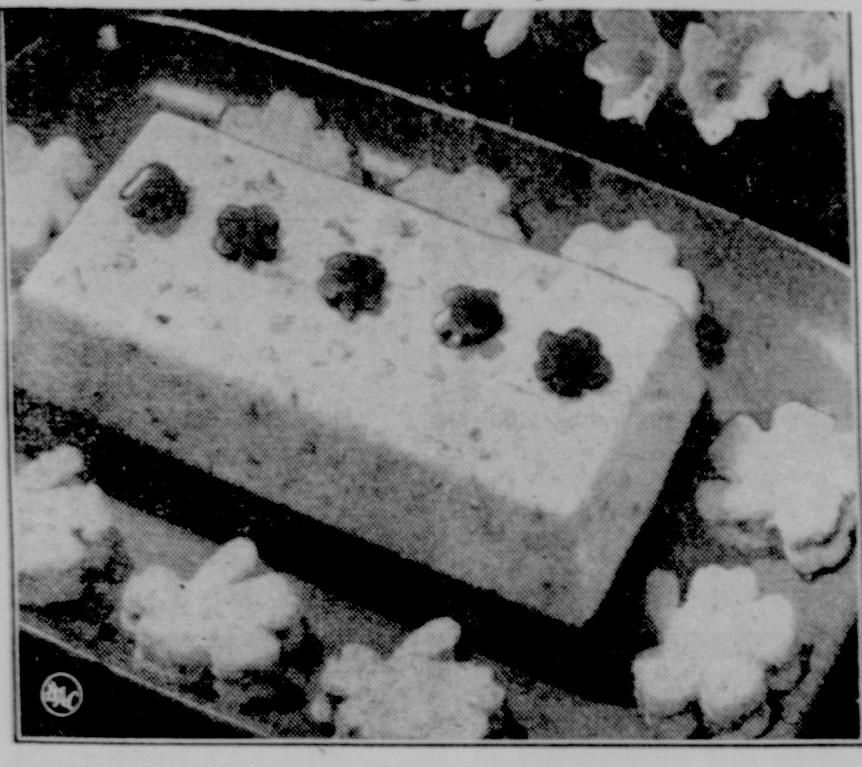
Molded Egg-Aspic Loaf



WHETHER you're a bona fide Irishman or just a sympathetic wearer of the green, St. Patrick's is a good day for celebrating foodwise with a shamrock studded egg and aspic loaf. Sure, an' it's a foin main dish any day in spring, what with its two layers made from unflavored gelatine. The recipe is elsewhere on this page.

Molded Egg-Aspic Loaf Meets Budget Needs

Soften gelatine in cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add salt, lemon juice an dTabasco; cool. Gradually add gelatine mixture to mayonnaise stirring until blended; mix in remaining ingredients. Turn into loaf pan and chill until almost firm.

Tomato Aspic Layer:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold tomato juice
1¼ cups hot tomato juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Soften gelatin in cold tomato juice. Dissolve thoroughly in very hot tomato juice, stirring well. Season and flavor with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Turn on top of egg layer; chill until firm. YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

Molded Egg and Aspic Loaf meets all the requirements of cooks harried by today's shrinking food dollars. First of all, it's good. Secondly, because unflavored gelatine's protein adds to that of the eggs, it supplies—inexpensively—the nuaritional needs of a main dish. And, thirdly, because each envelope of gelatine is so carefully made and so accurately measured, this molded loaf is easy to fix and failure-proof. Tere's how to do it:

Molded Egg And Aspic Loaf

Egg Layer:

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1½ teaspoons grated onion
½ cup finely diced celery
¼ cup finely diced green pepper
¼ cup chopped pimiento
4 hard cooked eggs, chopped

Flouring Ti p

Make quick work of flouring meat slices, cubes or meat strips by using a paper bag. Place the flour with seasonings in the bag, add the meat, then shake for a thorough coating.

Ready To Stuff

Stuffed pork chops present a clever serving. To make the pocket in the chops for holding the stuffing, simply cut into the meat along the rib bone. Cook them by braising, the same as unstuffed pork chops.

Ham and Egg Baskets

Biscuit "baskets" lining individual casseroles form tempting cases for creamed ham and eggs, extending more expensive protein foods and adding good nutrition at the same time.

One of the breakfasts men like best features pan fried ham with sunny-side eggs and plenty of hot biscuits. Turn this tempting menu into dinner entree with Ham and Egg Baskets, a thrifty "meal-in-one." Cut biscuit rounds made from recipe below or from a mix to line individual casseroles and extend a filling made with bite-size ham, chopped hard-cooked eggs, and cooked snap beans folded into a cream sauce.

With food prices higher than ever before, American homemakers are looking for new ways to make meals thrifty, nutritious and appealing to their families. Each Ham and Egg Basket costs about 25 cents, yet scores high in protein and other food values from meat and egg. The biscuit cases provide extra protein, coupled with essential B-vitamins and food iron.

When a large casserole is used to make the dish, roll biscuit dough out into a circle big enough to extend about an inch over side of casserole. This "inch" can be turned over the filling.

Complete a dinner featuring Ham and Egg Baskets with carrot and pineapple slaw, and extra biscuits for bread. Serve peanut butter cookies and hot coffee for dessert.

HAM AND EGG BASKETS

Biscuit Dough

3 cups sifted enriched flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
3 to 6 tablespoons shortening
1 to 1⅓ cups milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently ½ minute. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut ⅔ dough with floured 2-inch biscuit cutter. Line bottom of each casserole with remaining ⅓ of dough. Line sides of casseroles by overlapping 10 biscuits around each casserole, setting the biscuits on edge. Press edges of biscuits on sides firmly to edges of biscuit on bottom. Fill casseroles with Ham Egg Filling. Fold biscuit tops over filling. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) 20 minutes.

Makes 4 individual baskets.

Ham Egg Filling

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ pound cubed cooked ham
1 cup cooked cut green beans
3 sliced hard cooked eggs
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Add flour, stirring well. Add salt. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. When sauce is medium thick, add ham, green beans, eggs, and parsley. Fill biscuit-lined casseroles with Ham Egg Filling.

Bacon-Egg Cups

Serve novel bacon-egg cups for breakfast brightness. Place bacon slices in frying-pan and cook slowly until transparent. Then line muffin pans with the slices. Place an egg in each pan, season with salt and peper and bake in a 300 degree F. oven for 15 minutes.

Keep Fell Intact

When buying a leg of lamb for your Easter dinner, ask your meat dealer to leave the fell on the roast. This thin, paperlike covering not only helps retain the shape of the leg during cooking but helps to hold in the meat juices as well.

Holiday Fruit Cake In New Adornment

Before the last of the holiday fruit cake disappears, here is a new idea to try. Place one inch cubes of fruit cake on a fork and dip into melted semi-sweet chocolate, covering all sides except the bottom. Place the dipped cubes on a cookie sheet and sprinkle with chopped pecans. Keep them in the refrigerator until chocolate hardens. These tempting tidbits make good nibbling for family and guests during an evening of conversation, cards, or TV viewing.

Tips On Making Melba Toast

Melba toast adds taste and texture contrast to soups and salads, and sads, and makes good use of leftover bread. To make flat, golden brown melba toast, arrange slices of bread on a cookie sheet and place a second cookie sheet as a cover on top of theb read to keep the slices from curling. Brown in a slow oven (300 degree F.) for one hour. At the end of thirty minutes turn the slices over, replace the top cookie sheet, and return them to the oven.

Cream Puffs Inspire Meat Dish, Appetizer

Dessert cream puffs have inspired many a new dish. In miniature form they are the basis for clever appetizers or in extra-large size filled with creamed meat they become a main course serving.

Cream puffs, contrary to popular belief, are simply made. According to Reba Staggs, home economist, the important point to remember is that they require thorough mixing. Add the unbeaten eggs, one at a time, to the flour, lard and water mixture and stir vigorously.

For hors d'oeuvre tray puffs, drop half teaspoonfuls of the batter onto a greased cooky sheet. When baked and cooled, cut with a sharp knife and fill with a tiny portion of creamed veal or a creamed ready-to-serve meat.

As for the main course, let this be the occasion to use cubes of meat left from a roast. For more color, add peas or cubed vegetables to the creamed mixture. If serving creamed veal, add slivered almonds for a wonderful flavor combination.

Cream puffs filled with whipped cream or with a custard sauce are not the only dessert you can produce with these puffs. Fill the big dessert puffs with vanilla ice cream, top with fudge or strawberry sauce. And for still more of a change, form the batter in a rectangular shape to produce eclairs. Fill with custard sauce, then lightly frost with chocolate icing.

Spring Tea Party For Chasing Winter Gloom

A spring tea party is always pleasing to winter-weary women friends who welcome an opportunity to wear their spring finery. Beforehand planning for the party eliminates last-minute rushing and lets the hostess share the enjoyment of the occasion. Dainty finger sandiches, using a variety of breads, may be prepared with several combination spreads, such as sliced green stuffed olives and softened cream cheese; mincd avacado and chopped hrimp combined with mayonnaise; or chicken, ham, or egg salad mixtures. Delicate looking, appetite appealing tea cakes may be made inthe folliwing ways. Cut baker's angel food cake into one inch squares and enrobe in confectioner's sugar icing that has been tinted with food coloring. Or spread fruit marmalade or preserves between one-half inch slices of baker's pound, sponge, chiffon or angel food cake. Cut into onei nch wide strips and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar.

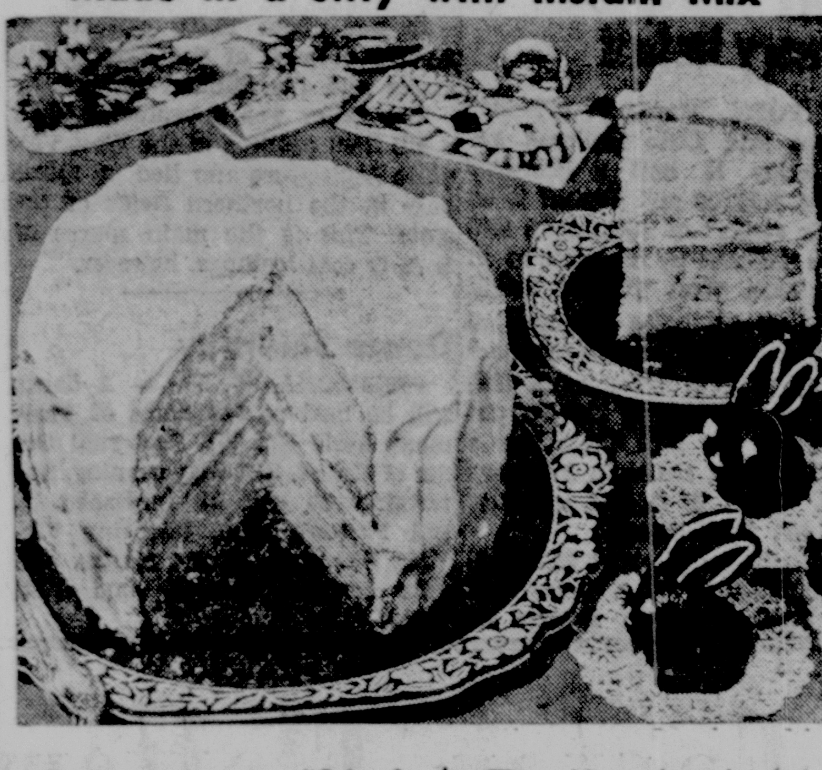
Here's a Lovely Pink Easter Cake Made in a Jiffy with Instant Mix



If the children cry "Cake for Easter!" don't deny them. Make them happy with a Fluffy Pink Cake—two dazzling white layers put together with a luscious pink frosting, with chocolate bunnies for decoration.

It's the work of but an instant to make a downy light cake with a new high-ratio version of a famous white cake mix that makes a higher, tenderer, finer, richer cake than ever before. It takes four minutes, to be exact, if you work quickly, from the time you open the package until you put the filled cake pans in the oven. Just add milk, beat—and bake.

The basic recipe for this versatile and adaptable mix gives a luscious white cake simply with the addition of milk. One package makes two generous eight-inch layers. Other basic recipes on the box tell how to make cocoa cake, yellow cake and white cake, all from the white cake mix; and new recipes appear on the box from time to time.

The white cake mix, put out by the makers of a famous cake flour, assures a light and downy texture wherever you use it, as there is a special package for high altitude baking.

FLUFFY PINK EASTER CAKE

Prepare the white cake mix as directed on the package. Frost with Fluffy Pink Frosting and garnish with chocolate candy Easter rabbits.

Fluffy Pink Frosting—Combine 1 unbeaten egg white, ¾ cup sugar, dash of salt, 3 tablespoons water, and 1 teaspoon light corn syrup in top of small double boiler. Beat 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Cook over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of electric beater) 4 minutes, or until frosting will stand in stiff peaks.

Remove from water. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla; beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread. Tint a delicate pink with red coloring.

Slick Idea For Slicing Jelly Roll

One of the simplest ways of cutting a jelly roll is with a piece of white thread. Place the center of a fifteen-inch piece of white thread under the spot where the jelly roll is to be sliced. Bring the ends of the thread togther over the top, cross them, and pull down quickly, making a clean quick cut through the roll. This eliminates the possibility of the jelly roll being pressed out of shape as sometimes happens when a dull knife is used. The thread-cutting method makes clean-cut slices that retain their original shape.

Pork, Noodle Casserole

Pork chops top noodles for a zestful casserole. First, brown the chops, then place them over noodles, moistened with tomato soup and seasoned with grated onion. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 45 minutes to one hour.

¼ cup grated onion
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine ground beef, potatoes, onions and seasoning. Shape into 6 patties. Brown on both sides in hot lard or drippings, turning frequently, allowing 10 to 15 minutes for cooking. 6 servings.

Veal Cubes On Skewers

2 pounds veal shoulder steaks
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups cornflakes, crushed
3 tablespoons lard
¼ cup hot water

Cut veal steaks into boneless 1-inch squares. Thread squares onto wooden or metal skewers. Mix mustard, salt and pepper, and butter or margarine together and rub on skewered veal. Dip in eggs, then in cornflakes. Brown on all sides in hit lard. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for about 45 minutes, or until tender. 6 servings.

Lamb Shanks—Celery-Rice Stuffing

6 lamb shanks
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ pound rice
½ cup chopped celery

Brown shanks in lard or drippings. Add water and seasoning. Cover and allow to simmer about 1½ hours or until tender. Remove meat from broth. When shanks are cool enough to handle, remove bones. Cook rice in lamb broth, adding water as necessary. Drain rice, saving broth, and add celery. Stuff boned shanks with celery-rice mixture. Place in baking dish. Add gravy made by thickening remaining lamb broth. Heat thoroughly in slow oven (300° F.). 6 servings.

Two Ways To Tempting Lamb Pies

Here are two formulas for making a lamb pie. Take your pick! For the first, start with uncooked lamb cubes. For the second, cut cubes from last night's lamb roast. Either one becomes a meat pie when the stew is given a topping, according to home economist Reba Staggs.

Long slow cooking is the secret of the first stew. Lamb cubes (lamb shoulder is a wise choice for cubing) are seasoned, then completely covered with water. The utensil is covered and the meat allowed to cook slowly on top the range or in a 300° F. oven. Vegetables are added to the meat in time to be cooked tender. Total meat cooking time is from 1½ to 2 hours.

The second type stew naturally is a quick version. Cut the leftover roast lamb into cubes, then simply reheat in a canned vegetable soup or mushroom soup. Thicken the liquid for gravy. Cooked vegetables may be added if desired.

Both types of stews become lamb pies with the addition of fluffy whipped potatoes on top. Biscuit dough or pastry may be used too. Or perhaps, you'll want to serve the stew in a biscuit ring for a clever appearance.

Variety Sandwiches For The Children's School Lun

A tempting sweet sandwich adds lunch and is a welcome change. Blended peanut butter and honey or orange marmalade on enriched white or whole wheat bread makes a delightful sweet sandwich. Other suggestions include cream cheese ith grape jelly, strawberry jam, or chopped dates.

Easter Bunny Comes in Style Pulling an Ice Cream Cart

CINDERELLA and her pumpkin coach had nothing on today's young moderns who make an Easter egg cart out of ice cream, drawn by a team of bright-eyed bunny cookies. Perfect for making the cart is the block-shaped carton of pre-packaged ice cream so readily available in your grocery or drug store. Buy either the pint or half-gallon, depending on your family's size and appetite.

To make the Easter bunny cookies, follow directions for your favorite sugar cookie recipe. Cut half the dough with a bunny cookie cutter, and remaining half with round cookie cutter. After baking, place bunnies upright on base in small mound of confectioners' sugar frosting. Place block-shaped ice cream on serving platter. Mound coconut on top of ice cream to resemble Easter nest; fill nest with jelly beans. Place chocolate mint patties on sides to resemble wheels, and put bunnies in front. For individual carts, cut each pint of ice cream into 3 or 4 blocks, use two mint patties for wheels.

Treat Family To French Toastwiches

A list of hot and tasty sandwiches is the homemaker's helper on many an occasion. To add to her repertoire, here are French Toastwiches—a serving designed to draw the undivided attention of the family at lunch or supper.

For quick work of French Toastwiches use a can of ready-to-serve meat, suggests home economist Reba Staggs. Combine the ground ready-to-serve meat with minced sweet pickle and moisten with mayonnaise. Place the sandwich spread between two slices of bread, then dip the sandwich in an egg-milk mixture the same as for French toast. Panfry on both sides in lard or fat.

If there's leftover cooked meat in your refrigerator, use it! Cooked beef, veal, pork, lamb or ham may all be appropriately used in these hot sandwiches. To the ground meat add thin slices of stuffed or ripe olive, a bit of shredded carrot or pimiento. Serve the sandwiches straight from the griddle with assorted relishes.

Storing Meat

As soon as you're home from market, unwrap fresh meat and store uncovered or, if you like, lightly topped with a sheet of waxed paper in thec oldest spot of your refrigerator. Plan to use all variety meats soon, within 48 hours. Cooked meats are properly stored closely covered and placed anywhere in the refrigerator.

Adolf Hitler's Godson Studies For Priesthood

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Had his godfather's thousand-year Reich held together, he might have been headed for quite a different career in the Nazi party elite. He is the son of Martin Bormann, Hitler's trusted lieutenant and second only to the Fuehrer himself in the last stages of the war.

Martin Bormann's life ended in a question mark in 1945. He was with Hitler in the Fuehrer bunker when Russian troops overran the city.

What happened to Bormann is a mystery. Rumors in the last five years have placed him in South America, Spain, Russia. Nobody knows for sure.

Adolf Martin Bormann, student at the Brothers of the Sacred Heart Seminary, says he doesn't know either—

"I know only what I see in the papers. I don't know if my father is alive or dead."

"After awhile, though, father made us all break away from the church," he recalls. "He wanted no Christian religion in his family. It was contrary to Nazi ideas.

"He put me in a special school near Munich. It was made up of students selected by special tests throughout Germany. It emphasized political education. It was a very bad school and morally it was terrible. There was outright perversion among some of the students. Two prime factors ran their lives: fear of punishment for misconduct and Nazi idealism."

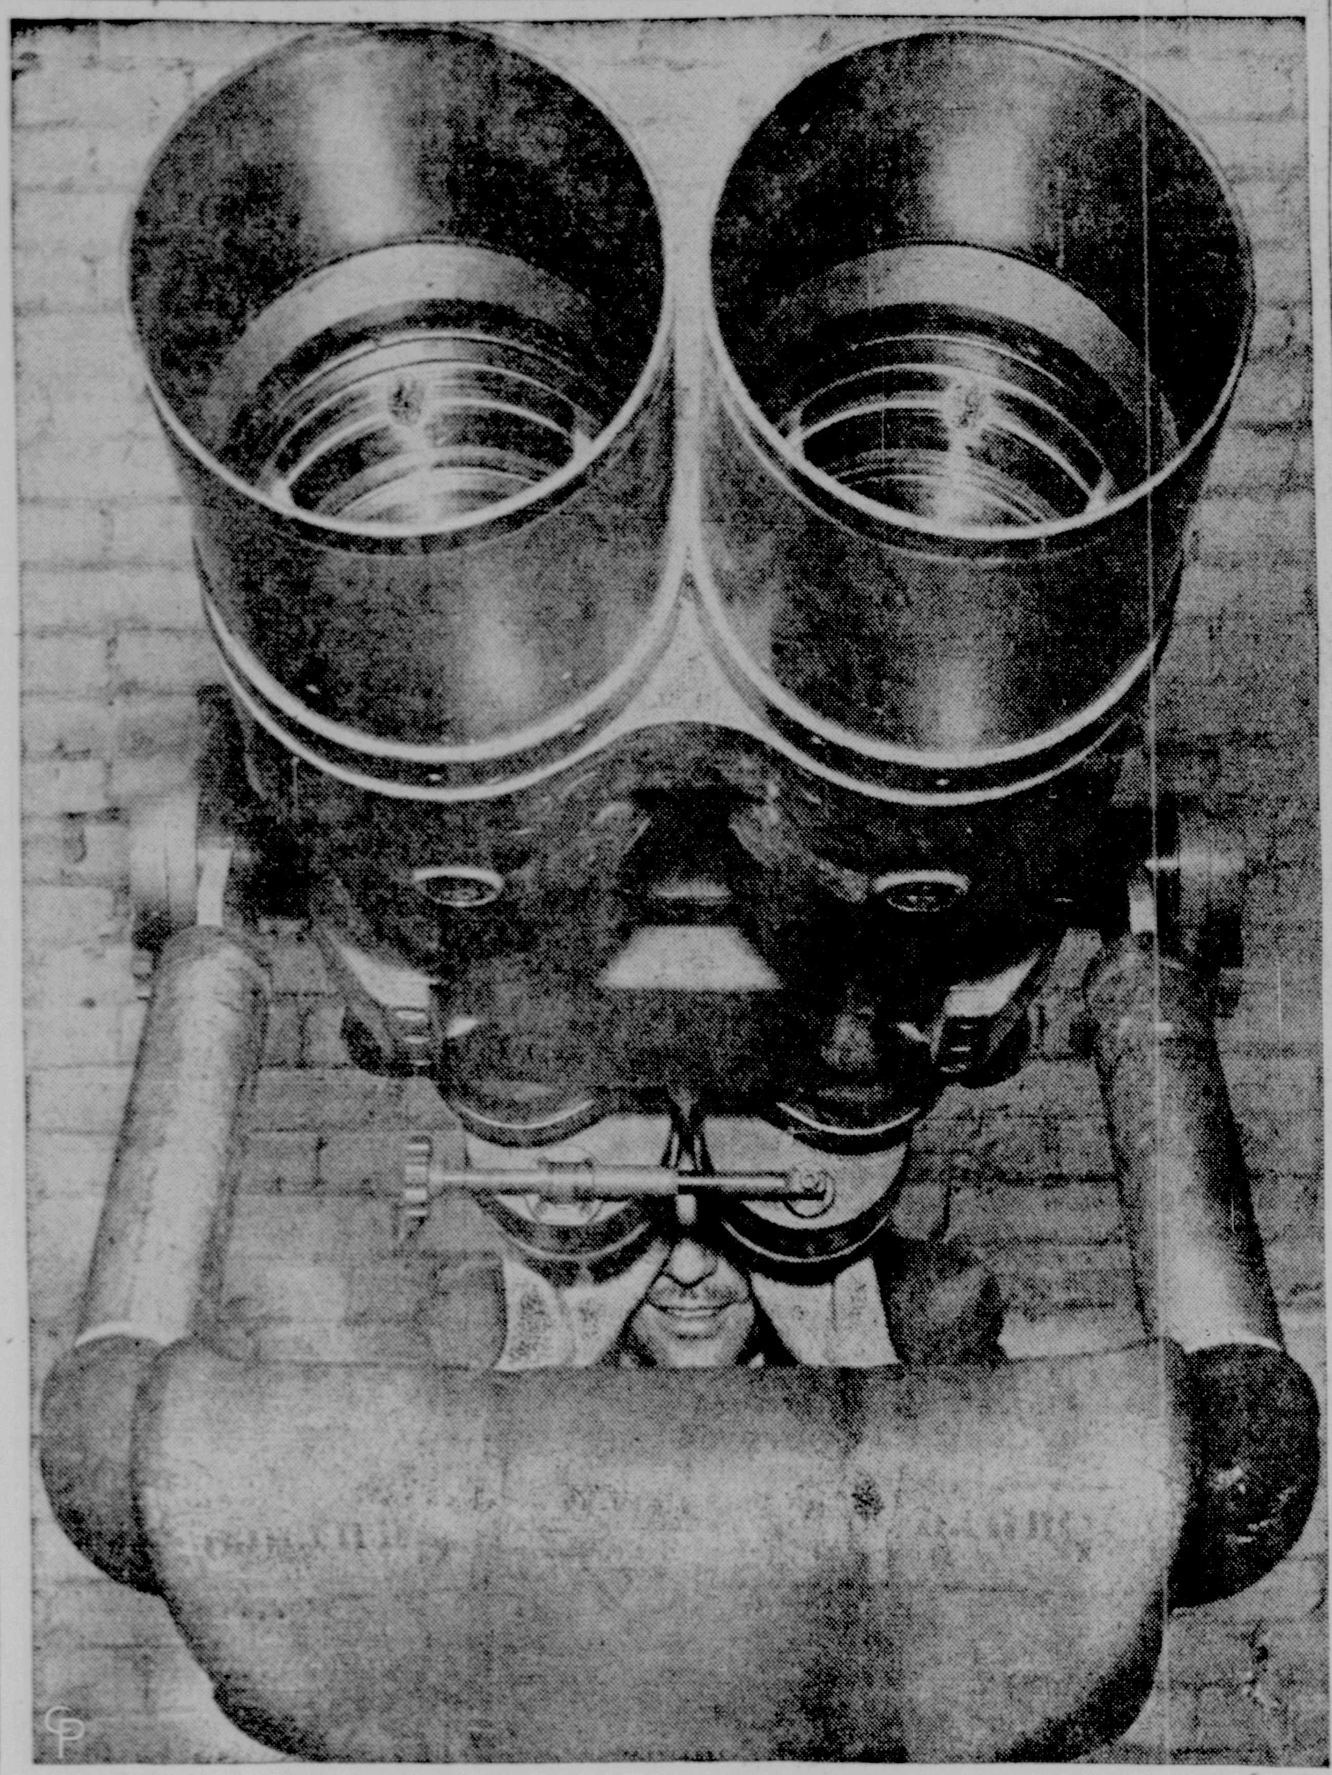
"He did not appear worried," the youth says. "We did not feel that he planned not to see us again."

"We, my seven brothers and sisters, knew him only as our father. He was a good father, but usually silent and very stern. Our only holidays with him were walking to construction projects of which he was in charge."

After the war the youth lived on an Austrian farm. There, in the home of a Catholic family, he became converted to that faith.

His three brothers and three of his sisters have become Catholics. The fourth sister is a Protestant. They live with families in the Italian Tyrol.

"When I finish my schooling, which will take six or seven years, I hope to be sent out as a missionary," Adolf says. "The Sacred Heart order has missionaries in the South Pacific and the Far East. I hope to go to one of those areas."



MADE BY THE JAPS before World War II, and the only pair remaining of 12, these binoculars at Pasadena, Cal., largest in the world, make an object one mile away appear to be only 74 feet distant. Eleven were mounted on battleships and lost when the ships were sunk by the U. S. Navy. This pair is valued at $3,000 and is equipped with three eye-pieces, 22½, 30 and 75 power. The name of a ship 20 miles at sea can be read easily through the 75-power binoculars. (International)

B. And O. Reports February Deficit

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad reported today it had a February deficit of $150,000 and blamed it on the "sick strike" of switchmen and a week's walkout by coal miners in the Northern West Virginia fields.

The B & O's gross revenues in February were about $8,000,000 more than they were in February of 1950 but the comparison is thrown out of kilter by the fact there was a full-fledged coal strike in February of 1950. The B & O had a deficit of $489,646 that month.

Wage increases of about $1,215,000 and continuation of a heavy car repair program added greatly to its expenses last month, the B & O said.

It lost about 28,000 carloads of freight because of the switchmen's strike and the miners' walkout.

The latter was a protest against a bill then pending in the West Virginia Legislature and tied up mines only in the northern fields of the state. This is the main source of B & O coal loadings, however.

Dance Saturday

PIEDMONA, W. Va. — A dance will be held at the home of Piedmont Aerie No. 707, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Saturday evening. Entertainment will be furnished by Bill Patton's Trio, featuring Virginia Hardegan at the solovox and Pete Harper, vocalist and bass player.

The program was presented before students and coaches from high schools of District IX who will compete here April 17 in the West Virginia Intercollegiate Forensic League contest. Finalists for the state contest on April 20 will be chosen at that time.

Mt. Pleasant Street Seeks Mail Service

FROSTBURG — The residents of Mount Pleasant Street extended—have petitioned the Post Office Department for extension of City Delivery Service to that area. Postmaster Byrnes reported that a survey is being made of the Mount Pleasant street section, and that a section of Midlothion Road is also included.

These sections were recommended for City Delivery Service—by Postmaster Byrnes in 1948, and survey was conducted at that time by a postal inspector.

Since that date—some additional homes have been erected in both areas—and this increase in occupancy may merit extension of the service.

Jail Inmates Live Longer, Sing Sing Warden Believes

By SAUL PETT

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—Warden Wilfred L. Denno of Sing Sing thinks people live longer in prison than they do out of prison.

"It's the regular hours," he explains.

Although he has no statistics, the warden is convinced the ordinary town of 1,800 has a higher death rate than occurs among the 1,800 reluctant tenants of this famed penitentiary.

"Now don't get me wrong," Denno says. "I'm not saying it's nice to be a prisoner. I'm not trying to attract new customers.

"But I would say that the life span of the average man in jail is longer than it is for the average person on the outside. They eat, sleep and work the same time every day. There's no dissipation, of course.

"They get good care and they take good care of themselves. The average person thinks twice about running to a doctor because of a cold or low grade fever. These fellows go quickly to the prison physician."

The public's conception of a prison pallor, the warden reports, "is a lot of bunk."

"These fellows are no paler than anyone else," he says. "They get air and sunshine and exercise. In no case, is their health impaired after they get here and in many cases it's actually improved by the regular hours and the wholesome diet.

"And don't forget. Most people on the outside worry about food, rent and clothing. These fellows don't have to. Here, if a man can forget the outside, he has no worries."

Sing Sing convicts work a five and a half day week in the prison shops. From Saturday noon to Monday morning they're free to play games, read, watch movies or do almost anything except leave.

In the summer they average about four hours recreation a day and about three a day in winter.

The prison death rate from natural causes is very low, the warden reports. Last year it was two. It averages about three a year.

The mortality rate from unnatural causes is something else. So far this year, seven peaple have been executed. Three were electrocuted last year and 11 in 1949.

The food is "wholesome but not fancy and the caloric content of every menu is checked by the prison doctor, Denno says.

Steak is served very seldom. Fried chicken shows up on Christmas, Thanksgiving and other holidays. Ordinarily, Sing Sing rotates about 14 basic menus.

At current inflated prices, it costs .46 a day to feed a prisoner. Before Korea, it only cost .41.

On what might be called a typical Sunday, the boys at Sing Sing ate this:

Breakfast — One orange; corn flakes, milk and sugar, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner (the big meal is at noon) —Roast beef and veal, brown gravy, roast potatoes, mashed turnips, apple and raisin pie, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Supper — Split pea soup, oyster crackers, vanilla pudding, bread, tea.

On what might be called a typical weekday, they had this:

Breakfast — Oatmeal, milk and sugar, French toast, oleomargarine, bread, coffee, with milk and sugar.

Dinner — Baked diced pork and beans, one spoon tomato catsup, apple sauce, cole slaw with French dressing, bread, coffee with milk and sugar.

Supper — Meat sauce, mashed potatoes, apple butter, hard roll, bread, tea.

There are no second helpings. The first helpings, the warden says, are quite ample. When the prisoners line up at the food counters, they can ask for less if they like.

Matter of fact, there are penalties for wasters. If a convict takes 10 slices of bread and eats only two, he is apt to lose some of his "good conduct time."

The warden reports there hasn't been a "bread and water" diet or anything like solitary confinement at Sing Sing for more than 20 years. The bad boys now are simply segregated in another building. They eat the same, live in the same kind of cells, but they lose their recreation privileges.

Contemned men eating their last dinner can order what they like but they won't always get it. Nothing fancy. Steaks, chops, chicken—yes. But no pheasant under glass. Or no asparagus out of season.

The ancient cities of Ur, Nippur, Kish, Babylon and Ninevah all were located in the Tigris and Euphrates valleys in what is now Iraq.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A London magazine printed a new twist on that hoary tale of the society leader who asked the C. O. of a nearby military post to send over a few young men to round out one of her dinner parties. On this particular occasion, the two chaps who turned up were presentable enough physically, but were mere corporals. The hostess angrily requested them to eat with the servants.

Next morning, she phoned the C. O. and demanded to know why he had sent such lowly personages to her party. "Lowly?" laughed the C. O. "One of them was an earl and the other a viscount." "What a ghastly mistake," she stammered. "Will you please make my apologies, and ask them to call again?"

They did. They went to the back door and took her two maids to the movies.

The young man obviously was embarrassed. He explained haltingly, "I'm supposed to bring home either a casserole or a camisole. I can't remember which." "That dilemma is easily resolved," chuckled the erudite storekeeper. "Is the chicken dead or alive?"

NEW YORK—(INS)

IT SEEMS TO me the most shocking thing said during the recent New York hearings of the Kefauver committee was a passing comment by the chairman to the effect that the cesspool the committee uncovered in the nation's biggest city was no worse, if as bad, as those exposed elsewhere.

The chairman's remarks followed those of Sen. Tobey, on the final day, Tobey having said that Izvestia and Pravda would have a field day with what had been uncovered in New York. Tobey added that one would have to probe the "hinterlands" of America to find decency and cleanliness in public life and government in general.

Rudy Halley, the Senate committee's brilliant young counsel, suggested that the colorful old gentleman from New Hampshire did not exactly mean what he said. And it was then Kefauver remarked that for all its revealed vileness, New York was cleaner per capita than a lot of other cities explored by the committee.

One can agree, therefore, with Tobey when he says, "It is now no longer a question of 'God Bless America', It is a question of 'God Save America'."

If what the committee found elsewhere is worse than it found in New York, it must be said that we are no longer a completely free people. We are the captives of crooks.

Using the sordid New York picture as a yardstick to measure politics elsewhere, and depending on the sworn testimony we heard before the Kefauver committee, it must therefore follow:

1. That U. S. cities visited by the committee during its ten months of life possess or possessed mayors who appointed to responsible positions relatives and friends of contemptible or murderous hoodlums.

2. That vital elements of police departments through the land have been vilely corrupted and no longer serve the interests of the people.

3. That ex-convicts, rich from gambling, narcotic-running, white slavery and extortion, can dictate to officials elected in good faith by the people.

4. That the most murderous elements of the cities enjoy complete immunity from arrest and prosecution if they are wealthy enough.

5. That flagrant flouting of the anti-gambling laws by establishments is condoned in high places, either openly or through refusal to act.

6. That a vast majority of anti-racket investigations are pigeonholed by top officials corrupted by the very underworld figures best calculated to be run out of business if the investigators produced criminal action.

7. That union officials dip deep into their hard-won or extorted treasuries to pay off politicos who have influence to alter city or state labor laws.

8. That potential witnesses against well-placed gangsters can be murdered, and actions against the gangsters concerned forthwith dropped for "lack of evidence."

9. That an important crook in your town can toss Uncle Sam anything he chooses on his income tax returns and not have to fear even as many repercussions as you, an honest person, will have if you make a tiny mistake on your own blanks.

10. That local unions, with the use of goons and thugs operating at the

Firemen Offer Tips On Blaze Reporting Here

Officials of the Cumberland Fire Department estimate that nine out of ten local residents reporting a blaze do not know the telephone number of the station in their section of the city.

However, it was pointed out, a private branch switchboard installed last December at Central Company No. 1 quickly handles all phone calls and saves valuable time.

The normal procedure in reporting a fire is to pick up the phone and give the operator the number of the nearest fire company. Specific directions to the scene should be given firemen to curb delays.

Heretofore, telephone operators called Central when "I want to report a fire" came over the lines. Central, in turn, had to dispatch the company in the area where the fire started. If the line to the stations was busy, as much as three minutes were lost.

Since the switchboard was installed at Central, calls go out immediately after they are received. It isn't necessary for a South End resident to telephone South End station, but the loss of time may mean the difference in saving a life or building.

With the switchboard in operation, companies are dispatched on a multiple hookup so other stations know the location of the fire and are ready to swing into action at once.

The switchboard is connected by individual circuits to each fire company and to the public telephone exchange by two trunk lines with one reserved for emergency calls only.

Installation of the switchboard was recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters' in a survey made here in July, 1948.

Firemen suggest that citizens write the phone number of the nearest station on a calendar or handy place. Those familiar with fire numbers would call 1481 for Central; 1405, South End; 1407, East Side, and 1411, West Side.

Eight More Area Draftees Called

Draft Board No. 28 will send eight men to Martinsburg, W. Va., April 9 for induction into the armed forces.

Orders were received yesterday by P. Emmett Fahey, clerk coordinator, who said the contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a. m. The inductees are:

Richard Leonard Sweitzer, Route 3, Bedford Road; Raymond Edward Allamong, 267 Williams Street; James Leon Davis, 12 Euclid Place; John Edward Dougherty, 709 Lincoln Street; Kenneth Getz Monro, 9 South Court Square, Harrisonburg, Va., formerly of Route 1, this city; David Lee Jones, 221 Fulton Street; James Joseph Boyle, 212 Polk Street, and Frederick Willard Porter, Jr., 28 Marion Street.

Fahey said Cumberland draft boards have 4,700 registrants. Frostburg Board No. 30 has 2,600.

Pageant Entrants To Meet Tonight

Entrants in the "Miss Western Maryland" pageant scheduled for May 25 at Fort Hill auditorium will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Junior Chamber of Commerce offices on the fifth floor of the Liberty Trust Company.

Jaycee officials reported yesterday the meeting has been planned to give contestants a general explanation of the pageant.

Judges for the pageant will include a representative from a talent agency in New York and a casting official of the Barter Theater.

Prizes include one-year scholarships to Catherman's Business School and Frostburg State Teachers College, new clothing, a three-day trip to New York with all expenses paid and other prizes.

Four girls have officially signed for the pageant.

Two Stolen Cars Found Wrecked

Two of three automobiles stolen from the Johnson Heights district Wednesday night were later found wrecked, State Police said yesterday.

The damaged 1939 Plymouth sedan of Vernon Portmess, 539 Columbia Avenue, was located behind Fort Hill High School.

Found wrecked on Oldtown Road near Evitt's Creek was the 1940 Chevrolet sedan of Donald Hinkle, 417 Louisiana Avenue.

Authorities said both vehicles were taken from near Fort Hill School where night classes are held. No arrests have been made.

Still missing is the 1946 Chevrolet sedan of Blaine Burgess, Flintstone. Stolen from near Memorial Hospital, the car bears Maryland tags 313-374.

Oakland Soldier Dies In Korea

Pfc. Edward L. Martin, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen U. Martin, Route 2, Oakland, was reported yesterday by the Department of Defense as killed in action in Korea.

In a letter dated February 18, Pfc. Martin told his mother he "expected to pull back for a rest with the Eighth Division." He was killed five days later.

Pfc. Martin, who was wounded in action January 13, enlisted in the Army April 1, 1948, and received training in South Carolina and at Camp Belvoir, Va., before going overseas June 31, 1949. He spent 18 months in Japan.

The young soldier was attached to the Fifth Cavalry Regiment which saw action with the First and 24th Infantry Division. He attended Oakland High School before entering the service.

Another area soldier, Pvt. William Robeson Seggie, son of Mrs. Leah R. Devault, Mt. Savage, is missing in action.

Since 1904 the death rate of tuberculosis has been cut 85 per cent.

Youth Who Wants Boa Constrictor In Collection Stirs Up Neighbors

HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—A youngster who wants to add a boa constrictor to the snake collection in his back yard had some neighbors up in arms today.

They appealed to the General Assembly's Public Health and Safety Committee to do something to stop him. Specifically, they asked for a law to make it a crime for anyone, circuses and museums excepted, to keep poisonous, dangerous or deadly snakes.

The boy, Robert Cilley, 16, of Norwich, wasn't present at the hearing, but former Lieutenant Governor Roy C. Wilcox, an old snake hunter himself, was among those who objected to the anti-snake bill.

Said Wilcox:

"I've been hunting snakes for years and keeping them. We've caught thousands of rattlesnakes and copperheads in Connecticut, kept them for awhile and then shipped them to Florida where they made serum out of them to help the boys in the war.

"We've make a contribution to the state in getting those snakes out of here."

H. J. Petrie, one of the neighbors, told the committee it was just too much when the young snake-lover announced he wanted to send for a boa constrictor from a Kansas snake farm.

"It's all right to have water snakes as a hobby," said Petrie. "But a boa constrictor, that's going too far."

First Selectman Thomas Dorsey and James Shugrue, another neighbor, agreed. Said Shugrue:

"It's ridiculous to put a boa constrictor into an area so thickly populated. Why, I've got two kids, ages three and four, and I don't want that big snake around."

George Powell, a professional snake hunter, and a side-kick of the former lieutenant governor, startled the audience by saying:

"Boa constrictors aren't dangerous. Their bite isn't poisonous. Any fairly strong man can handle one. A child four years old is perfectly safe with it."

Shugrue hit the ceiling.

"Well," he shouted, "I don't want my kids having anything to do with a boa constrictor!"

At that, Wilcox said:

"I'll tell you what. Right now, there isn't a boa constrictor in Connecticut. But if this one arrives, and it gets out of the pit, I'll be glad to capture it for you. My telephone is 5-1847 Meriden."

The hearing promptly broke up.

Discuss Subway At Council Meet

KEYSER, W. Va. — A subway may be placed near St. Cloud Street under South Mineral Street to be used by school children living in the west end of Keyser.

The proposal was discussed recently by the Mayor and City Council. The subway would be used as a safety measure for foot traffic when the new interstate bridge is opened sometime this year.

The council also discussed the failure of the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Company to repair holes left in the city streets following excavation work. The gas company has been notified that no future permits will be issued to do excavation work within the city until the present dangerous condition is altered.

The city purchased a second hand grader for use on city streets. The order was placed with the Rish Construction Company and the reconditioned grader will cost $2,400. Councilmen Richard Herndon presented copies of petitions that will be used by service veterans in meeting the citizens of Keyser in a campaign to raise $2,000 for the Veterans Memorial to be placed at the Keyser end of the new interstate bridge. The marker will contain names of those who lost their lives in World Wars I and II and in the Korean war. The petitions were authenticated at Tuesday night's meeting.

The easiest way for a lot of folks to reduce would be to live within their means.

It's about time to be thinking about those New Year resolutions that you are going to break!

Keyser Players Will Present Comedy Soon

Club Will Stage Production April 9, 10

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Players Club will present its initial production of the year on Monday and Tuesday, April 9 and 10, in Potomac State School auditorium.

The comedy, "Yes and No," by Kenneth Horne, consists of two acts and an epilogue and is being directed by Mrs. Gweldolyn Gillham, advisor of the club.

Pastor's Family

The story centers around the family of Rev. Richard Jarrow (Carl Davis, Jr.) and his wife, Emma (Peggy Jo Davis). Their youngest daughter, Sally (Patricia Hartsfield) is an aspiring pianist, who maintains an air of unsophistication. Her elder sister, Joanne, (Jo Ann Stangel) is particularly interested in dramatics.

Mrs. Webb (Martha Gainer) works for the Jarrows, but is often exasperated by the absent-mindedness of the minister. The Rev. Mr. Bagshott (Donald Kiddy) is Rev. Jarrow's assistant and is usually a serious young man. "Bags" does, however, have a sense of humor and displays it often during the play.

Complications arise when Adrian Marsh (Louise Everstine), a friend of the family who is leaving for Persia, comes to ask Joanna to marry him. From her answers comes the title for the production, "Yes and No."

Epilogue Gives Answer

Act 1 shows what might have happened if Jo had said "no." Act II relates what might have taken place if Jo had given an affirmative answer. The epilogue shows what Jo actually answered.

Assisting Mrs. Gillham on the production staff are Virginia Kemp, and Arbutus Bosley, stage managers; Betty Judy and Patricia Hulstine, business managers; Eloise Oates, publicity; Edith Awman and Mary Louise Hutter, program; John Herman, Nellie McCoy and Ruth Hodges, technical directors; and Justine Harman, Barbara Colabrese, Margaret Secrist and Mary Lou Jackson, ushers.

Pickets Resume Preston Patrols

KINGWOOD, W. Va. — (AP) — Picketing was resumed without incident in Preston county's non-union coal fields after the funeral Wednesday of slain union sympathizer Joe Arnold, 29, of Kingwood.

Some 75 carloads of miners and their families attended the funeral. State Police Cpl. F. D. Roberts said that later in the day about 30 carloads of pickets toured the area before disbanding peacefully.

Roberts also reported that two mines of the Ruthbell Coal Company, non-union pits near Kingwood, resumed production yesterday. He said they had closed January 23 after the United Mine Workers renewed its organizing drive in the section.

Arnold and two of his companions were shot Saturday in Clay county, nearly 200 miles from here. The two wounded men are expected to recover. Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson identified the trio as union sympathizers.

State Police said the shooting has been admitted by George Burnett Hudson, 57-year-old non-union mine foreman who lived in Clay county and worked near Kingwood. Hudson was quoted that the shooting occurred after the trio asked him to stop working at a non-union mine and threatened his family.

Sheriff Benson's office said about 15 carloads of pickets toured the area yesterday morning and then disbanded.

Bratton Advises Judge His Finances Are Flat

CHICAGO, March 22 (INS) Johnny Bratton, National Boxing Association welterweight champion, told a Chicago Superior Court judge today that his finances are flat, despite the fact that he holds a title.

Bratton was summoned to Judge Adolph Desort's court by his ex-wife, Cleadora, and her attorney, Euclid Taylor. Mrs. Bratton said Johnny is $2,355 in alimony arrears and support for his seven-year-old son, Dana.

Bratton said tax liens against recent purses and the expense of two broken jaws had him floored temporarily. Judge Desort gave the champion until Monday to make a $500 payment to his wife.

Starkey Chalks Up 20th Straight Win In Brooklyn Fight

NEW YORK, March 22 — Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford, W. Va., light-heavyweight boxer, notched his 20th consecutive victory since turning pro when he knocked out Vincent Smith, of New York, in the opening round of a scheduled six-round semi-final tonight at the Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn.

Ferrier To Compete In Greensboro Open

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 22 (AP)—Jim Ferrier, the broad-shouldered former Australian amateur champion who now plays golf professionally out of San Francisco, carries his hot streak into the $10,000 Greensboro Open Tournament getting under way tomorrow.

Ferrier's chief contention in the field of 160 that will swarm over the 6,630 yard, par 71 Starmount Forest Country Club course will be Mangrum and Sammy Snead, always the man to beat at Greensboro.

Wildcats Top St. John's In Garden, 59-43

Illinois Conquers Wolfpack In Eastern Semi-Final, 84 To 70

NEW YORK, March 22 (INS)—Kentucky and Illinois staged pell-mell finishes at Madison Square Garden tonight to propel themselves into basketball's NCAA eastern regional tournament finals.

Kentucky walloped St. John's 59 to 43 and Illinois toppled North Carolina State 84 to 70 before 14,214 spectators.

But both the Wildcats and the Illini were in grave peril until they blew their games open in the final five minutes.

The two winners meet Saturday night for the eastern championship with the victor to play the Western regional finalist at Minneapolis next Tuesday night.

Kentucky, beaten only twice during the season and favored in this tournament, left the floor at half time trailing St. Johns 24 to 23 in a game that was almost a carbon copy of their low-scoring regular season contest.

Kentucky won that one 43 to 37, but tonight St. John's was just a little too weary and too battered to make it that close. The Wildcats pulled away to a 34-27 advantage in the opening minutes of the second half.

Frank Ramsey, Lindville, Bill Spivey and little Bobby Watson all played major roles in the Kentucky triumph. Ramsey, with 15 points, and Watson, with 12, led the scorers. For St. John's, Ronnie McGilvray turned in the best game and one of the best of his career.

Big Bob Zawoluk, forced to play outside the keyhole area by the gigantic Spivey, nevertheless led St. John's scoring with 15 points.

North Carolina State, with three regulars ineligible and another starter lost with a dislocated shoulder in the first five minutes of play, made it a lot tougher than the final score indicated.

Illinois left the court at half time with an 11-point lead, 40 to 29, but had to come from behind to pull it out of the fire in the last five minutes. The Wolfpack discovered a yawning avenue in the middle of the Illinois defense and drove ahead of the Illini, 60 to 58, midway through the second half.

Thereafter, the advantage seesawed back and forth until, with North Carolina State leading, 66 to 65, the Illini's marvelous Don Sunderlage slipped in a one-hander from the edge of the foul circle.

Sunderlage, Fletcher and Ted Beach were the leaders of the Illinois offense with 21, 19 and 17 points, respectively. Thirteen of Fletcher's came in the crucial second half after he had electrified the spectators with a 70-foot field goal just as the intermission buzzer sounded.

AGGIES WIN, 50-46

KANSAS CITY, March 22 (AP) — Joe McKephen, a scrawny 145-pound guard, scared the living daylights out of Oklahoma A. and M. before the nation's No. two basketball team eked out a 50-46 victory over Montana State in the Western NCAA playoffs tonight.

Davis and Giosa Fight at Garden

Giosa has been substituted for lightweight champion Ike Williams, who bowed out of the fight because of an injured shoulder.

Originally, Williams had been scheduled to meet Canada's Fitzie Pruden, but Fitzie asked to be excused because the fight falls on Good Friday. Davis was substituted for Pruden.

Giants To Carry Eight Twirlers On Squad Of 23

Leo Doesn't Want Too Many Extras Around

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Leo Durocher thinks one of the reasons for the low quality of major league baseball is the large quantity of manpower.

The loquacious leader of the New York Giants created a bit of a stir today when he said he planned to carry only 23 men including eight pitchers instead of the usual 10 or 11. The May 25 limit permits a club to carry 25 men.

"What's the use of having fellows on the club just to sit around on the bench?" he asked. "The good team is the one where everybody plays ball and knows what to do. You get more out of a compact group with everybody working than from a bunch with extras hanging around, coming and going. With 25 men on a club, some are bound to sit around doing nothing. That breeds discontentment.

"Take your pitching staff, for instance. Who needs more than eight pitchers, provided they are good pitchers? The only time anyone else gets any chance is in a 9-1 game.

"We went with four starting pitchers and two extras almost all the way after July 20 last summer," Leo pointed out. "Eight pitchers at the most are all a club needs."

Durocher admitted it will be tough to pick out eight pitchers out of his 15 but anticipated little trouble weeding out the other 15 players.

The fiery skipper figured the club would consist of six outfielders, seven infielders, and two catchers besides his mound corps.

Good Humor Man

Even If Marrero Doesn't Win Game Nats Should Keep Him For Laughs

Portly Cuban Has Way Of Relaxing Players

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP) — There's a suspicion that even if Conrado (Connie) Marrero didn't win a game for the Washington Nats, they'd keep him around for laughs.

The portly Cuban righthander has really caught on with his teammates. He has instilled spirit lacking in the club for years.

But Manager Bucky Harris calls him a smart pitcher too.

"And the year of experience he picked up last season should benefit him," the team boss said. "He keeps the team in a good humor and his humor is never misplaced."

Marrero is an accomplished mimic who can imitate expertly the actions of Harris with variations depending on whether the Nats won or lost.

The 158-pound, 5-7 Marrero who says he'll be only 34 next May 1, is learning English adequately. Adequately to him is just enough to get by. At least he's better off than last year when he'd look at somebody's else's plate in the dining room and say:

"Same sing, please."

Connie has a way of relaxing the club. Last season in a tight spot he struck out Ted Williams, returned to the bench wide-eyed and rubbing his thumb and forefinger together. He said to Harris:

"Me get raise, huh?"

When club secretary Eddie Eynon gaveh im a costly cigar after a winning effort, Marrero beamed and said:

"Me win alla time now."

He couldn't fulfill that prediction, winning six and losing 10 last year—his first in the majors after three years with Havana of the Florida-International League.

He never won less than 20 games a season with Havana.

WHEELING, W. Va., March 22—Wheeling's Blues put on a 33-point scoring spree in the final quarter tonight to come from behind and defeat Erie's Admirals in the opener the All-American Basketball League of the best-of-five games series for championship. The score was 75-65.

Stress Of National Emergency Is Reason For Suspending Sport

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — In a completely unexpected move, Georgetown University today dropped intercollegiate football. Fifteen other schools have done so in the stress of the national emergency.

The decision was so quietly done that the school's athletic director, Jack Hagerty, was taken by surprise.

The announcement, citing difficulties raised by "the uncertainty of the times,' came from the Very Rev. Hunter F. Guthrie, S. J., president of the university. He made public a letter to the moderator of athletics, Rev. Cornelius A. Herlihy.

Georgetown, one of the nations oldest football colleges, was the third major independent school to drop the sport since the Korean war began. The other two are St. Mary's of California and Duquesne.

The Georgetown Hoyas had a 10-game schedule arranged. Opponents left with open dates due to the decision are Lafayette, Wake Forest, Bucknell, Boston College, Rutgers, Richmond, Fordham, Holy Cross, George Washington and Maryland.

Head Coach Bob Margarita, a former pro player with the Chicago Bears, will head up the intramural program if he chooses to remain. The future of his assistants — Jack Prendergast, Bill Battles and Leo McGlynn — seemed uncertain but it was indicated they, too, might be retained under the new set-up.

The other 13 schools who have dropped football during the national emergency are: Hartwick (NY); High Point (NC); Mt. St. Mary's (Md); Corpus Christi U. (Tex); Portland (Ore); Atlantic Christian (NC); Detroit Tech (Mich); East Texas Baptist; Catholic U. (DC); Washington (Md); Niagara (NY); Tusculum (Tenn); and Milligan (Tenn).

Laurel Opens Spring Racing Season Today

Ten Vie In Feature At Maryland Miler

Stiff competition for Magnet is contained in nine other entries for the $7,500 prize.

The Good Friday opening is the earliest in Maryland racing history and starts 55 days of the sport at the state's three major tracks. Laurel will run for 24 days, Bowie for 12 and Pimlico for 19.

The picturesque Laurel track between Baltimore and Washington is under new management. The Maryland Jockey Club, owner of Pimlico, sold it to Morris Schapiro, Baltimore scrap company owner.

The highlight of the Laurel session will be the Chesapeake Stakes which was taken over from Havre de Grace where racing was abandoned this year. The Chesapeake on April 14 is the state's major warm-up for the Kentucky Derby and subsequent 3-year-old classics.

The caliber of the field facing Magnet is indicated in the weights assigned for the six-furlong race by Racing Secretary Charles McLennan. He put only 110 on last year's Capitol winner while Bedford Stable's call over will have to carry 122.

Maine Chance Farm's Admirals Pride is weighted next to call over with 114 pounds. Admirals Pride tied the Hialeah track record of 1:09 3/5 for six furlongs during his Florida campaign.

The other Capitol entries are Carolyn K Stable's Wiffenpoof 114, Dion K. Kerr, Jr.'s Flying Weather 113, W. Y. Goldsborough's Binky B 112, Valenti Stable's Lilly Valenti 112, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Suleiman 110, Cedar Farm's Halter 109 and Sam Aldenson's Manchac 109.

NATS EDGE RED SOX

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Starter Sid Hudson and Gene Bearden held the Boston Red Sox to seven hits today as the Washington Senators gained a 6-5 decision before 2,487 fans.

Boston pitcher Ellis Kinder was brilliant in his first game action of the spring training season but by the time he got into the contest, the Nats had landed on Mel Parnell for a five-run fifth inning. Washington combined five hits, an error and two walks in the splurge, adding a run off Kinder in the eighth. Score:

Washington (A) ...... 000 050 010—6 9 3

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the tenth of a series of articles on the 1951 prospects of the major league baseball teams.

By S. D. ROCKWELL
Central Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Casey Stengel denies he used a ouija board as manager of the New York Yankees during their last two championship seasons, but he frankly admits he would like to have one now. "Maybe it'll tell me what I'm supposed to do without Whitey Ford, Bobby Brown and Tommy Henrich," he says.

The Boston Red Sox have strengthened themselves with the addition of Pitchers Ray Scarborough and Bill Wight and the Indians claim that they will be stronger, what with the added experience and one thing and another, but where have the Yankees improved?

"Well, now," ol' Casey says. "I don't think it's as bad as that. We've still got a fella named DiMaggio and one by the name of Rizzuto and a guy called Berra and one called Mize. Is that bad?"

However, Casey wonders how much mileage he'll get out of Joe DiMaggio, who has just passed his 36th birthday, and out of Johnny Mize, who has passed his 37th, and out of Joe Page, the once great fireman who was of little use to the club in 1950 because of injuries.

• — • — •

IN A WORD, the Yankees are uncertain. They are terribly thin in outfield strength and they haven't much in the way of infield reserves. They are strong behind the plate with Yogi Berra, but they have a glaring lack of pitching depth.

"I'd like a couple more pitchers," Stengel says, "because I think we'll be able to use them. But show me the club that wouldn't be able to use a few more pitchers."

After you've named Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne you have some difficulty finding another dependable Yankee starter. Fred Sanford is a distinct possibility and so is Bob Porterfield. But after that you're stumped.

NEW YORK YANKEES
Finish in '50: First
Last pennant: 1950
Leading pitcher:
Vic Raschi (21-8)
Leading hitter:
Phil Rizzuto (.324)
(Averages are for 1950)

The Yankees have six outfielders on their roster and only four—DiMaggio, Hank Bauer, Gene Woodling and Cliff Mapes—have been found to be tried and true. For that matter, Mapes batted only .247 last year and Woodling's .283 mark lacked luster.

The other two outfielders are Jackie Jensen, the bonus beauty from the campus of the University of California who has had only one year of minor league seasoning, and Hank Workman, a University of Southern California graduate who batted a mere .267 at Kansas City.

And then the $64 question is: How many games can DiMaggio play this year? Stengel says he is certain to play more than 100 and DiMaggio himself says he will play as many as he did last year (139) but close observers are shaking their heads in wonder.

• — • — •

IN THE MIDDLE of the infield the Yankees are strong — perhaps stronger than any club in the league. Phil Rizzuto, the AL's most valuable player of 1950, a .324 hitter, is a frisky 32 and Gerry Coleman, slick second baseman, is rapidly becoming a master.

However, at first base and at third base the Yankees pose grave doubts.

If nothing else, they have more first basemen than any other club—the aging Mize, a sensational surprise last year with his 25 homers in little more than half the season; a National league castoff in Johnny Hopp, who is 35, and a .234 hitter in Joe Collins.

Billy Johnson seems destined to carry the burden alone at third base, which he shared last year with Bobby Brown. Stengel switched them against rival pitchers, but now Dr. Brown is frozen to his internship in San Francisco. If he leaves that job the Army will grab him.

Berra, who has probably not yet reached his peak at 26, gives Stengel little cause for concern. To the contrary, the Yankee pilot expects Yogi to improve on his .322 mark and his 28 homers. Stengel says Berra is just now learning how to play this game. But if reserve catchers are needed the Yankees have Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera.

• — • — •

RASCHI, Lopat, Reynolds and Byrne won 70 of the Yankees' 98 victories last year and there is little doubt that they may do as well again. Lopat, who won 18, and Byrne, who won 15, will have to repeat their top performances, however, to keep the Yankees in the running. Raschi posted 21 and Reynolds 16.

"Joe Page has looked pretty well this spring," Casey says, "and it's just as well. We may need him an awful lot this year."

At that, Page is probably more likely to return to a semblance of his 1949 form, a year in which he gathered many votes for the most valuable award, than Tom Ferrick is to win eight games again in relief roles. In any event, one of the two will have to prove they have not lost that magic relief touch.

Whitey Ford, the southpaw gamester who came from virtually nowhere to win nine in a row for the Yankees in the last half of the 1950 season and pitch them right into the World Series, is in the Army now and that is the hardest blow of all.

"I don't see how we'll be able to replace him," Stengel moans.

• — • — •

THE YANKEES have some brilliant young talent assigned to their top minor league clubs and it's not all pitching. They have some flashy infielders, some slugging outfielders and a few promising catchers, all of whom Stengel gave the once-over at the prep school here in Phoenix before the regulars arrived.

Perhaps the best of the lot is switch-hitting Mickey Mantle, 19-year-old phenom who batted .383 at Joplin last season. Mantle came to camp as a shortstop, but he was soon turned into an outfielder. Tommy Henrich, now a coach, has taken Mantle under his wing.

Gil McDougald, a second baseman at Beaumont last year who was voted the most valuable player in the Texas league, has been converted into a third baseman. A line-drive hitter with an odd stance at the plate, he is being groomed as the successor of Johnson.

Jim Brideweser, a shortstop from the campus of the University of Southern California, and Jerry Snyder, a 21-year-old second baseman with four years of professional experience behind him already, closely watch Rizzuto and Coleman in the hope that they may someday step in.

• — • — •

THERE IS little likelihood that Berra will be replaced in the immediate future, but the Yankees have two outstanding prospects in Clint Courtney, a bespectacled catcher who prepped at Beaumont last year, and young Gus Triandos, a powerfully built youth who has a wealth of long-ball promise.

Stengel is especially high on Tom Morgan, a 17-game winner at Binghamton last year; Ernie Nevel, a 21-game winner for Beaumont, and Bob Wiesler, a left-handed fireballer who was something of a sensation at Joplin.

"They're all fine looking kids," Casey said, "but we don't yet know whether they're ready for the big leagues. If you ask me if any of them are ready to step in and take the place of Whitey Ford, the answer is no."

There is a growing suspicion around the Yankee camp that Tommy Henrich, pinch hitter deluxe last season, will return to an active status before the season is over. His gimpy knee, which caused him to join the coaching staff, has pained him less this spring than it did last.

"It's up to him whether or not he wants to play," Casey said. "It would be foolish of me to say that we can use him. You know darned well we can!"

Racing Suspended At Lincoln Downs Because Of Snow

LINCOLN, R. I., March 22 (AP)—The afternoon racing program at Lincoln Downs was suspended after the second race today because of the snow.

About 3500 spectators were in the stands to watch what was to have been an eight-race program. After the first race, jockeys complained that the driving snow had blinded them most of the time.

The track management announced the cancellation immediately after the second race was run.

The daily double was won by Mrs. William Hinphy's Indian Barney and Walter Wilkerson's Bambi Lynne. It paid $33 to each of 345 ticket holders. Indian Barney won the first race and Bambi Lynne the second.

Japhap Pays $81.70 To Win Fourth Race At Gulfstream Park

HALLANDALE, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Why horse players go batty down here was again illustrated today when T. D. Buhl's Japhap won the fourth race of the afternoon at Gulfstream Park, paying $81.70, $32.40 and $16.50 across the board.

Japhap had been beaten a total of 82 lengths in his last four starts this winter, but he had the speed this time and came on to whip Bold Knot by a neck, running seven furlongs in 1:25 4/5.

He also was a "gift" for Apprentice Jimmy Picou, who came out of a long slump on the gelded son of Alsab. It was Picou's first winner of the meeting. The Prophet was third, while nine other platers completed the field.

J. J. Nolans Roseada, $5.10 choice, was all out to take the third, a dash of three furlongs for maiden 2-year-olds. Ridden by Logan Batcheller, she outgamed Busy Indian by a half-length, while I'm Sandy got third. The time was brisk, .33 flat.

Longshot players got off on the right foot when Mon Torch, ridden by Anthony Tavares, romped off with the opener, paying $33.10 straight.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

Don O'Connor

HOLLYWOOD, March 22 (INS)—Donald O'Connor's first job since he and Universal-International kissed each other goodbye on an exclusive contract is a honey. Don goes to MGM to team up with Gene Kelly in "Singin In The Rain" which also has that cute Debbie Reynolds in the lineup.

I can tell Don a little secret: Gene Kelly plugged so hard with his bosses to get O'Connor for his co-star that he oughta get 10 per cent. Gene has been a fan of Don's ever since the "Francis" comedies—and what's more, he thinks Don a heck of a dancer.

They'll play a couple of vaudeville hoofers who crash Hollywood. Gene also co-directs with Stan Donen. Arthur Freed, who produces, wrote all the music—some lineup of talent if you ask me.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHO IS IN THE LEAD?

WHETHER a particular contract gets made or not can depend often on who has the lead at some important stage of the play, or perhaps at several different stages. It may mean the difference between the lead coming up to guarded honors or going through them, and hence can influence several tricks. On some deals, you see a bunch of fine players fighting to get rid of the high cards which would cause them to win certain tricks. They are seeking exits as frantically as a panicked audience in a burning theater.

Having bullied himself into keeping out of the bidding, West led his club 4, which the J won over the 9. Realizing the danger of being in the lead and hoping East could get in to lead a club at some stage, West had a mean assignment. When the diamond 4 was led, he played low, hoping South might finesse the 10 to a possible J But the Q won that and the 3 to the K forced West in with the A. Striving to unblock, he led the heart Q, which the K won. The diamond J and 10 were scored then, West tossing away the heart J and 6 to unblock for a possible 10 in the East The spade J was finessed, and West was in again with the Q. Now his safe return was the spade 9 to the A and South was beaten, having to drop one trick in hearts and two in clubs.

South had thought of taking a second heart after his first one, then putting West in with the J. But West would have put that card on the second heart top, building the 10 for East, who could have returned a club to beat the contract. After West shed two hearts on the diamonds, South could have scored two spade tops and put West in with the J to the Q, compelling a lead to the club K for South's game trick.

But if West had tossed one club and the heart J on the diamonds to retain a small heart, that try by South would have been thwarted. The heart 6 could have put East in with the 10 after West won with the spade Q, and a club return would have put the blocks to the declarer. His sole chance for the contract developed when West discarded two hearts on the diamonds, but he foiled himself when he tried the spade finesse instead of making West win the third spade, which would have left him only clubs to return.

Mirror Of Your Mind

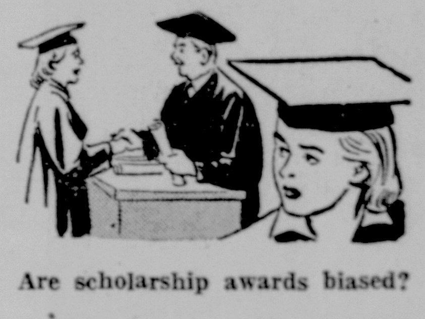
By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Are most great men "realistic"?

Answer: Usually not in the same sense as ordinary mortals. The main difference is in the great man's attitude toward what the rest of us would "realistically" see as obstacles to the achievement of our goals, but which the great man manages to ignore or surmount—as Beethoven, for instance, did his deafness. But confidence based on mere wishful thinking will not make a man great, and in so far as their unique natural gifts make possible for them what is impossible for most of us, great men have their own special kind of "realism."

Can matter triumph over mind?

Answer: Apparently, in some cases. On the theory that when obesity is the result of neurotic over-eating, what the person really craves is an emotionally reassuring sense of fullness, chemists have developed a harmless substance known as "mucilose" which will fill a person's stomach without giving him calories which he does not need. It is said that after having fooled his sense in this way, a stout person will "leave food on his plate." Dr. A. J. Jonas reports that with his patients, this method of treatment produced weight reductions of an average of 2.5% per month.



Are scholarship awards biased?

Answer: They would seem to be, say Drs. Irving Lorge and Rose Kushner of Teachers College, New York. The apparent bias does not involve racial or religious backgrounds, but the subjects which the givers of awards seem to think most important. The fact that more boys than girls receive scholarships does not mean that the boys are brighter, but that they more often specialize in science and mathematics, whereas girls are more apt to choose the "humanities."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

A Jury Of 20,000,000 Persons

THE KEFAUVER Committee hearings in New York were sponsored by "Time" magazine over a 19-city television network (and were broadcast unsponsored over a good many other stations) to an audience estimated at 20,000,000 persons.

I bring up the size of the audience because it is probably the most controversial point raised by the televised hearings on a number of counts. The fact that millions of persons were viewing the proceedings sharply modified the answers and the behavior of witnesses. Ambassador O'Dwyer at one point in his testimony protested that he wanted the record on a particular matter made very clear because so many people were watching. The implication was plain that he wouldn't have cared so much if the cameras weren't on him.

The question of invasion of privacy was brought up several times by James Carroll, of St. Louis, who wouldn't testify before the cameras, and by Frank Costello, who wouldn't allow his face to be shown. On strictly legal grounds, it's hard to justify the question of privacy. Public hearings have been held in this country since earliest times and in the nation's infancy, were held in a meeting-house where the whole community could crowd in and watch. In a city of 7,500,000, that's no longer possible, but television has taken us a long ways toward making it so.

On the grounds of strict logic, it's also hard to understand why O'Dwyer shouldn't be interested in keeping the record straight whether 20,000,000 onlookers were watching or not. But—let's face it—the audience does make a difference and a very large one. The difference is one of emotion. A great deal of the testimony and the "revelations" were old stuff which had been heard by many grand juries and had been printed many times in newspapers and magazines. But the fact that they were being restated before so great an audience has charged them with emotion, not all of it rational.

The Kefauver Committee is the number one topic of discussion in New York and, for all I know, in large parts of the rest of the country, too. Suddenly, everyone is an expert on organized crime, a problem that has been with us quite a while now, and what to do about it. All sorts of sweeping, ill-advised and certainly hasty suggestions are being made on how to cope with the problem and are being made by so many people at once that, just possibly, some of them might be pursued.

Some of the reactions have been decidedly curious. Even Senator Kefauver noted with some alarm that large segments of the populace showed a tendency to sympathize with the witnesses, no matter how shady their past. Similarly, Senator Tobey, God's Angry Man, and Rudolph Halley, the coldly relentless inquisitor, were not universally popular with the masses and were decidely unpopular with many people.

In fact, the one person who appears to have won universal acclaim after a stint before the cameras was Virginia Hill, which suggests that thi sisn't so Puritan a country after all.

To be quite honest about it, we have been conditioned by the movies, by the theater, by books, to dislike the prosecutor who is trying to send poor Barbara Stanwyck to jail when we all know she's just shielding her idiot brother. The feminine audience especially has a tendency to confuse some of these hoodlums, the well-dressed and successful ones in particular, with Humphrey Bogart and to romanticize them accordingly. In the suburbs, the well-heeled matrons have picked Senator Kefauver as their matinee idol, a sort of Laurence Olivier with a briefcase.

Television, in snort, has contributed not only to popular enlightenment but, more importantly, to public maturity. But we've still some distance to go before we can view such a hearing with anything like the cool skepticism and judicial impartiality it deserves. Television is a wonderfully potent instrument for arousing the populace and in this case, it's arousing it against organized crime, a fairly non-controversial thing. Next time, though, the question might not be anything so open and shut as our opinions on criminals; it could conceivably be a question such as foreign policy. Then, we'll have to judge the proceedings, not on the physical attractions or personal problems of the witnesses, but, of all things, on what they have to say.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

ODYMF. D URJ AZ TQQS QC FQYMF
RYJ FQYYWGF UWNW—FURSWFHWRNW.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: O FAIREST FLOWER, NO SOONER BLOWN BUT BLASTED—MILTON.

I TOLD MRS. FAIRWELL, THE KIND LADY WHO RUNS THIS HOME, ALL ABOUT YOU-THAT YOU WERE A HOMELESS ORPHAN—
AN' WHAT DID SHE SAY?
AND I TOLD HER HOW YOU SAVED THE GREAT, BIG SHIP AN' THE LIVES OF ALL THE SAILORS—AND WHEN THEY GAVE YOU A LOT OF MONEY, YOU GAVE IT TO THE POOR PEOPLE—
AN' WHAT DID SHE SAY??
SHE SAID SHE THOUGHT YOU WERE A NICE, KIND, BRAVE LITTLE GIRL—TOMORROW SHE HAS INVITED YOU TO HAVE TEA WITH HER—
"HAVE TEA"? WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?

THE PHOTO of T/Sgt. James McCone of Glendive, Mont., shows that it takes a lot of wire to run a modern war. McCone is trying to locate and re-establish a severed communication circuit somewhere in this maze on the Hoengsong front in Korea. Each unit must lay wire as it advances in order to maintain contact with all other units in the area. Probably some of this wire was laid months ago and abandoned during United Nations withdrawals. (International Soundphoto)

a part of the Japanese empire?

G. W. Keeton, dean of the faculty of law in the University of London, says of this:

> ". . . it is an attitude which is quite inconsistent with that adopted in respect of Korea, which was also Japanese in 1943, but is now treated as an independent state. Moreover, if Formosa was to be regarded as still formally Japanese territory, then administration of it pending the peace treaty is ultimately the responsibility of the Allied powers, whose agent for defence is General MacArthur. Hence it would follow that any attack on it would be an attack upon the Allied military administration, and as such, a matter of immediate concern to this country as much as to the United States. Yet Great Britain has committed herself to the position that she is not primarily concerned with a Communist attack upon Formosa!"

Both Communist and Nationalist China reject the British position. Both regard Formosa as Chinese territory. The official American view is that Formosa is Chinese territory. The British were premature in their recognition of Soviet China and that got them all tangled up in difficulties.

direction of known murderers, can defy the protestations of honest leaders and put out of business any reputable individual or firm they choose.

"What can we do about this situation?" Kefauver asked aloud, in respect to the New York crime front. He recommended a permanent U. S. crime commission, endowed with penal powers, so, in all fairness, did Bill O'Dwyer. But the chances are that we'll contribute to Communist Yugoslavia and Fascist Spain more money, more quickly, than this country now desperately needs to raise its own moral standard of living.

The volume of business held up rather well for a pre-holiday session, coming to 1,290,000 shares as against 1,310,000 shares yesterday.

Both the stock exchange and the curb will be closed tomorrow for Good Friday. They will resume business as usual with the two-hour session Saturday.

WATER VITAL RESOURCE IN PEACE OR WAR; WE NOW USE 200 BILLION GALLONS DAILY!

By H. D. CRAWFORD
Central Press Correspondent

A WATER "BANK"—Water remains on this Nebraska hillside during the winter, freezing and thawing and soaking into the soil. There is virtually no run-off because the field is farmed on the contour.

WASHINGTON—Water is more essential than any other natural resource for the perpetuation of life on the earth. Some civilizations of the past have declined to extinction because they could not get enough water to prevent their once-fertile land from becoming desert. And a major problem facing our highly industrialized, scientific culture today is how to supply enough water to meet our increasing demands.

Water use in the United States has increased 35 billion gallons daily in the last decade, according to Oscar L. Chapman, secretary of the Interior. In 1940, Americans used 165 billion gallons a day, but in 1950 their daily consumption had climbed to 200 billion gallons.

Not only is water essential to our daily diet and necessary for producing all our food, but American industry—so vital to our strength and power as a nation—uses 30 billion gallons of water every day. Among the largest industrial users of water are industries essential to our national defense.

• • •

DID YOU know that the production of a ton of steel requires 65,000 gallons of water? Or that 77,000 gallons of water are needed to produce 100 barrels of oil? Or that a ton of smokeless powder requires 50,000 gallons of water? Or that it takes 100,000 gallons of water to produce a tank? Or that a ton of synthetic rubber requires 600,000 gallons of water?

In a democracy such as ours it is essential that citizens be kept fully informed on news developments, and great quantities of water are required in the manufacture of the newsprint on which this newspaper is printed.

Many American communities face water shortages. This is not necessarily because there is less water, but because demands for available water have increased. Other communities have apparently reached the limit of their expansion because no further water supplies are in sight.

• • •

NOT ONLY have crops failed or been of inferior quality in some areas, but other areas find it virtually impossible to increase their industrial production because of limited water supplies.

"There is every reason to believe that the rearmament program will increase the drain of water supplies and dangerous shortages in some areas may be looked for unless steps are taken promptly to avert them," asserted Mr. Chapman.

"If our nation is to remain secure, we can no longer delay the bold steps needed to cope with the looming water crisis. To wait until our wells run dry could spell disaster in the present day emergency."

The President's Water Resources Policy Commission recently issued a 445-page report summarizing the nation's water situation and recommending measures designed to assure a continued supply to meet the needs of a growing population and increasing industrial demands. This commission will soon release two additional reports, one entitled Ten Rivers in America's Future, and the other, Water Resources Law.

• • •

THIS MOMENTOUS study of our water resources brings out the amazing facts that not much thinking was done about conserving water supplies and utilizing river basins until the first decade of the Twentieth Century, and that not much was actually done about them until the last two decades. Most of the work still lies ahead.

Serious as the water crisis is, the commission's recommendations are encouraging. They challenge the ingenuity and resourcefulness of conservation-minded citizens. They indicate a new frontier for reforming our wasteful practices and strengthening the future of the nation.

"We need much greater knowledge, determination and foresight than our fathers needed in order to fulfill the promise of American life," asserted the seven-man commission. "That promise is as great for us as it was for them. The wise development and conservation of our key resource, water, is essential to further economic progress."

• • •

MULTIPLE-USE development of river valleys is under way in many parts of the nation. Federal, state, local and private interest co-operation is greater than ever before. Some of the most significant water developments in the nation's history lie ahead.

These involve conservation and full utilization of water resources. These include flood control, conservation of water on the soil, increased production of hydroelectric power, improved recreation facilities, deepened inland waterways for transportation, preservation of fish and wild life, construction of dams to create bodies of water for irrigating millions of acres now too dry to produce crops, and reforestation to help hold and control the supply of water.

Momentous water developments will require great expenditures of public money, but their economic returns should far exceed their cost.

They challenge the individual citizen to take a new interest in supporting local water conservation, in cleaning up polluted streams, and in demanding greater efficiency in utilizing this precious resource, water, in its vital, life-giving cycle from raindrops to mighty oceans.

Beall Urges Defense Area Created Here

Cites Availability Of Factory Sites

Rep. J. Glenn Beall introduced legislation yesterday that would call upon the defense mobilization director to look into the advisability of establishing defense plants in Cumberland or any part of Allegany County.

Beall said there are some 5,000 unemployed workers in the county. He said 90 per cent of them own their homes.

He said the Potomac and the North Branch of the Potomac River provide the county with ample water for all purposes. Cumberland, he said, is only about 150 miles from Washington and near the Atlantic Seaboard.

His resolution added that many "ideal factory sites" are available in Allegany County close to the Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland railroads.

Gives Brief Speech

On Wednesday, prior to introducing the legislation, Rep. Beall made a brief talk before the House of Representatives, calling attention to Allegany County as a site for defense industries.

In his opening remarks, Rep. Beall quoted an article which appeared in the Cumberland Evening Times March 19 in a syndicated column written by Peter Edson. Edson wrote:

> Plant location. There is today no area in which a new defense plant can be put to draw on surplus labor. Every new site selected in the future will have to be determined by a shift of labor from nonessential industry, as well as by availability of power, transportation, raw material, and housing, Projections: So far there have been no tables prepared on how many men will be needed for defense production, when and where. Projecting the employment and draft curves to show total manpower requirements is a first job of Government agencies operating under D. Flemming's directives.

Rep. Beall continued:

"If the Department of Defense is considering areas where there is surplus unemployment, I would like to call their attention to the present situation in Cumberland and Allegany County, Md., where there are approximately 5,000 unemployed persons at this time. In this total there are skilled, semiskilled and unskilled workers such as machinists, carpenters, chemists and chemical laboratory technicians.

Many Own Their Homes

"When these people apply to the Unemployment Compensation Division they are advised to go to other areas to seek employment. This, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, is not good either for the community or for the worker himself because 90 per cent of these unemployed own their homes and naturally when they leave the local community their homes will be unoccupied and they will create a housing problem in industrial areas.

"Cumberland and Allegany County are ideally situated for the establishment of a defense plant. Not only do we have ample labor but we are located on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Maryland Railroads with an adequate water supply from the Potomac River and the North Branch of the Potomac River and many ideal factory sites are available.

"I think it would be well for the Department of Defense and the Real Estate Divisions of the Army and Navy to look into the availability of this community which is approximately 150 miles from the Nation's Capital and close to the Atlantic Seaboard."

Army To Investigate

Beall said last night that he made informal contacts last week with two officials of the Real Estate Division of the Department of the Army, pointing out the possibilities of Allegany County as the location of defense plants.

He said the officers promised they would investigate the area as soon as possible, adding they were interested in the picture, due to location, availability of land and the splendid water supplies which will result from the operation of the Savage River Dam.

Uniform Civil Service Bill Is Introduced

All Employes Would Have Appeal Rights

A uniform Civil Service System for employes of the City of Cumberland is provided in Senate Bill 358, which was introduced recently by Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

After repealing Senate Bills 409, covering Police and Firemen, and Senate Bill 177, which set up a Merit System for other city employes, the bill chiefly provides:

The right to appeal in cases of suspension, demotion and discharge for all employes. Present legislation provides such protection only for police and firemen.

Sets up a standard probationary period of one year for all city employes and specifies that during that period they shall have no right to appeal.

The Civil Service Board, following examinations, may certify to the Mayor and Council three names only. Present legislation calls for certifying 10 in the police and fire departments and five names in other departments.

Specifies that applicants for lieutenants and captains posts in the fire and police departments must have five or more years experience, with 10 or more years needed for applicants seeking assistant chief and chief ratings.

In the event of a suspension, demotion or discharge sustained by the Commission, the employe may appeal the decision to the Circuit Court of Allegany County within 30 days.

Civil Service Commission officials said last night that a number of amendments, minor in nature have been forwarded to Senator Kimble for inclusion in the bill.

Volunteers Of America Plan Easter Party

Major Ruth Hartman, commander, said games will be played and refreshments served.

Training School Director Will Visit Allegany County

The 50-year old man who is credited with changing the Maryland Training School For Boys from a prison for young offenders to an actual home for juvenile delinquents will visit Allegany county the week of April 9 to discuss the institution with school officials and members of various service clubs.

He is Elbert L. Fletcher, who has been superintendent of the school at Lock Raven, north of Baltimore, since 1945.

Arrange Visit

Fletcher's visit to Allegany county has been arranged by Robert W. Jones, public school personnel counselor for the Georges Creek region of the county, and Paul Footen, a teacher at Barton High School.

The school superintendent will make his first county appearance at a meeting of the Frostburg Rotary Club at 6 p. m. Monday, April 9. He will speak to the Cumberland Rotary Club at noon Tuesday, April 10, and will meet with the county high school principals that afternoon.

Heavy Assignment

Wednesday, April 11, will provide Fletcher his heaviest speaking assignments. He will be at Barton High School that morning, at the Tri-Towns Rotary Club at noon and at the Lonaconing Rotary Club that evening. He will wind up his speaking engagements at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at noon Thursday April 12.

Many changes have been made in the Maryland Training School For Boys since Fletcher took charge in 1945. He has abolished corporal punishment and has substituted deprivation of privileges to punish offenders. Iron bars were removed from cells, persuasion and kindness took the place of force and the drab cottages were brightened by paint,

Today's Sermonette

But all this is the work of God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ, and gave us the ministry of reconciliation . . .

II Corinthians 5:18

By REV. NORMAN O. SCRIBNER

Today's sermonette was prepared for Good Friday by Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church. The sermonettes are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Good Friday—Two Worlds In Conflict

Rev. Scribner

There upon the cross two worlds meet in conflict. The cross itself discloses the sin, stupidity, blindness, and cruelty of men. The man on the cross reveals the patient long-suffering of God that to the end, matched the deliberate sin of men with saving power.

Why did men crucify Jesus? They crucified him because they read in his words and conduct the superficiality of their own way of life. They heard in the accents of his voice of truth, the death knell of their own secure and favored way. Should they forsake their world for His and admit that they were wrong? Not by any wild stretch of the imagination could this be done. Thus, in order to make their special privileges and perogatives all the more secure, they would demand the death of This One whose world was so diametrically opposed to their own. No one knew this better than Jesus did. Hence it was with a clear mind and a heart overflowing with compassion and saving grace that He matched His world against theirs. All that He asked was that He might love them to the end: that was why He came out from the Father.

On this Good Friday in the year 1951, does the conflict still exist? Yes, as strong as ever! Still there is sin, stupidity, blindness, and the constant jockeying of men and nations for favored places, still the old claim to self-righteousness and pride of position, for privilege without responsibility. As ever Christ is crucified afresh and put to an open shame. How do we do it? By refusing to believe that His way is practicable, and by making a comfortable, convenient, interpretation of His words and deeds, when following Him becomes difficult. And when we do, we identify ourselves, in spirit, and practice with those who demanded His life.

How does the cross save a person? Well, the cross doesn't save anybody, but the Man on the cross can save everybody. A cross means bearing the burdens of others, burdens which you must volunteer to assume, because God's love shed abroad in your heart constrains you to make them your own. If you really want to know the cross and its meaning, then take this Man on the cross in all sincerity. "Love your enemies" without any facile, convenient, castigating, interpretations of that command, and see where you wind up. Lose your life that you might find it. Die that you might live.

"Bless them which persecute you and revile you and say all manner of evil against you falsely" because you take Christ seriously. . .and you will begin to know the saving power of the cross and the Man upon it. One month of real Christ-centered cross bearing by the peoples of this earth would so transform all of our thought, politically, economically, militarily and otherwise, that we would look back upon our now accepted lives as barbarous and unbelievable. Still the two worlds in conflict. While this conflict lasts there can be no peace. But before Him ultimately the captains and the kings must depart. God's "ancient sacrifice" is yet the humble and the contrite heart, and it is also the believing and the responsive heart. Here alone is to be found our salvation.

Good Friday is "Good" because "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." The example of Jesus discloses the innermost secret of God, His patient love that seeks us out in spite of Our sin and waywardness, so that He might in the spirit of His gracious Son freely give of Himself. It is a love that will not let us go, nor will that love, if we continue to refuse it, let us off. Which of these two worlds commands your life?

Flood Project Employs Many County Men

The Cumberland Flood Control Project now underway throughout various sectors of the city, and the Savage River Dam project nearing completion are employing many of the residents of Allegany County and helping alleviate the unemployment problem in the area.

In a letter to Rep. J. Glenn Beall, Col. Alan J. McCutchen, district engineer of the U. S. Army Engineer Corps, said that about 83 per cent of those employed by George and Lynch on flood control are men from Allegany County. The present number of employes working with the contractor is 122, with 101 of this number of Allegany County, and the remaining ratio are from Garrett County, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Forty-three percent of the workers on the Savage River Dam project are residents of Allegany County. A total of 26 men are now employed on the project.

McCutchen added that the ratio of local to outside labor is approximately that which will prevail in future contracts. The reason given for outside labor is that the organization of large firms capable of performing work under Federal Specification must include their key personel such as office engineers, foreman and clerical help.

McCutchen said when specialized help is not obtained from local labor markets it must be recruited from elsewhere in order to meet construction schedules.

Water Rights Bill Presented By Rep. Beall

Provides Access To River Along Parkway

A bill clarifying the right of the Department of the Interior to give water rights along the route of the proposed C. and O. Canal Parkway was introduced yesterday by Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

Rep. Beall said existing legislation actually gives the department the right to grant access to the Potomac River for industrial purposes.

Makes Powers Specific

The legislation, he added, will make the powers specific since opposition has developed on that point.

Beall then revealed he will meet with the Industrial Committee of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce Monday in an effort to win its support of the parkway plan. Hagerstown has offered bitter opposition to a bill to enable the State Roads Commission to acquire land to grant, trade or transfer to the Federal government in regard to the canal project.

Declaring Beall's bill premitting the survey and acquisition of land by the Federal government for the parkway had hindered the growth of industry in Washington County, Hagerstown's Chamber of Commerce said the proposed parkway would cut off industry's access to water and would be detrimental to wild life and fish.

Opposition Misunderstands

"Opposition is coming from groups who misunderstand or misinterpret the plan," Beall said, adding "it will aid and develop wild life and fishing along the route and industry will be able to gain access to any water from the canal or the Potomac River simply by asking the Department of Interior to grant permission for use of the water."

Beall originally sponsored a bill in 1947 which enabled the Department of Interior to conduct a survey of the 184 miles of land between the nation's capital and Cumberland for the purpose of determining the best possible use for the land. Congress appropriated $40,000 for the survey and the parkway plan was proposed. Another bill introduced by Beall and passed by Congress enabled the Federal government to buy, trade, or grant land from states, individuals or industry to further the project.

Pfeiffer Hearing Set For Tuesday Morning

Officer George Pfeiffer of the city police department will receive a hearing Tuesday morning in Trial Magistrate's Court on a warrant issued by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew charging him with assault.

The charge is the result of a scuffle that occured when Pfeiffer was arresting Herman Brant, Ridgeley, W. Va. on a bus in South Cumberland, January 30.

According to a statement by Officer Pfeiffer, he approached Brant, who was standing on the corner of Virginia and Laing Avenues, and asked him to straighten his disarrayed clothing. After Brant boarded the bus, Pfeiffer said the Ridgeley man directed an obscene remark at him.

Pfeiffer said it was necessary to strike Brant with his mace while making the arrest.

City Workers Irate About Pay Partiality

Firemen, Police Only Beneficiaries

City Employes who were disregarded when the Allegany County Delegation voted to seek a pay increase for police and firemen were bitterly outspoken against the move yesterday.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, reported that House Bills 357 for the firemen and 359 for the police, will be amended to provide a $12-a-month across the board salary boost for members of the two departments.

See also said no other municipal workers were given raises because they did not present a bill covering the legislation.

Statement Branded

When contacted yesterday a group of the city's employes branded See's statement as false and reported a petition seeking similar pay raises for all employes had been sent to both See and Senator Robert B. Kimble.

One employe called the unexpected move "cheap politics" and stated the petition was sent to the delegation March 12 and receipt of same was acknowledged by See. The petition asked all municipal employes be considered for the increase instead of just two departments, it was revealed.

Another worker, smiling wryly, commented "if the tax rate is going to be increased for a pay raise then no favoritism should be shown."

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson, when asked what such a pay raise for the police and fire departments would mean as far as the tax rate was concerned, replied, "that amounts to $144 per year per man for 100 men in the two departments or $14,400 a year increase. That will require about a 2½ cents hike in the tax rate."

Pressure Blamed

The city workers all were of the opinion that outside pressure had been brought to bear on the delegation and admitted that there was no organization among the other employes to fight for the raise as there was in the two departments granted the increase.

"The council here knows what is needed and are handicapped trying to raise needed revenues to operate the city now without having this additional burden placed upon them," one worker said wondering why two departments were singled out for an increase.

Whitworth Opposes

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., last night reported he was still opposed to the police and fire increases, saying it is unfair to take the action above the objections of the Mayor and Council.

He said any such boost should be an "over the board" increase for all departments.

He also objected to the raise on the grounds that the legislation gives the Mayor and Council no means of additional revenue to pay the increases.

See said the police and firemen alone were given increases since they were the only groups which presented bills.

He added that the Delegation did not give additional taxing authority, believing the City can work out the problem satisfactorily.

He added that the Delegation

Most offices of the Court House will be open Monday, but Register of Wills A. Charles Stewart plans to keep his office closed Monday as well as today. Superintendent of Schools Charles L. Kopp said the Board of Education building will be closed today and Monday.

Maryland Day will mark the 317th anniversary of the date in 1634 when Leonard Calvert, brother of the first Lord Baltimore, landed on St. Clement's, now Blackiston's Island, with 200 colonists.

See To Oppose Transferring Of Barton Students

Will Fight Bill To Consolidate

Delegate Charles M. See said last night that he will lead a fight on the floor of the House in support of a bill which would prohibit the Board of Education from requiring Barton students to attend school in any other community.

Consolidation Favored

Barton students could be sent to a consolidated school in Lonaconing if the House of Delegates accepts a vote of its Education Committee.

The committee stamped an unfavorable report yesterday on a bill by three Allegany Delegates to block the transfer of Barton students. The County Board of Education had proposed consolidation.

Delegates Reed, See and Driscoll, Allegany Republicans, sponsored the bill. It was rejected by an 8-7 committee roll call.

The committee held for possible amendments another Allegany school bill. Introduced by Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) and passed by the Senate, the measure would require at least two women and two minority party representatives on the county board of education.

Bills Introduced

Two new bills were introduced by members of the Allegany County Delegation yesterday. They are:

HB711, sponsored by the Delegation, to change the requirements for the appointment of the Allegany County road engineer.

Delegate See said the bill would allow the county to hire a practical engineer to supervise the county road construction and maintenance.

He said the Delegation felt that much of the actual construction is carried out under federal supervision, making it necessary only to have an engineer with practical experience.

Delegate Fred B. Driscoll introduced HB706, to repeal, as obsolete, a section of the Allegany County local laws referring to advertisement of elections.

House Approves

House Bill 447, providing for a county wide referendum on Daylight Savings Time, passed the House yesterday and was sent to the Senate.

Passed on its third reading was House Bill 256, by Driscoll, which refers to the pay of election officials. It provides that each election official will receive a flat $22 at a sitting.

First Baptist Church Will Join Evangelistic Crusade

Beginning with the morning Easter service, at 11 o'clock Sunday, First Baptist church of Cumberland will join with most of the 18,000 Southern Baptist churches east of the Mississippi River in a Simultaneous Evangelistic Crusade, according to Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor.

Pastor Linger stated the evangelist for these special services will be Rev. Sam W. Scantlan, superintendent of Baptist Rural and City Missions, Oklahoma City Okla. He said Rev. Mr. Scantlan will also be the director of the Simultaneous Crusade in the churches of the Western Baptist District Association, comprising churches in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Evangelist Scantlan served as the director of one of the associational crusades when the Southern Baptists west of the Mississippi conducted such services at Easter time last year. Rev. Mr. Scantlan is one of the outstanding evangelists and leaders of Southern Baptist work.

These revival services, which will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock, will continue through Sunday, April 8. The hour of the week day morning services will be announced later.

In addition to his preaching ministry in First Baptist church, Rev. Scantlan will meet with Baptist leaders for a luncheon each Monday and Friday at noon during the crusade. He is also scheduled as the speaker for the Cumberland Rotary Club meeting Tuesday at Central Y.M.C.A.

REV. SAM W. SCANTLAN

Pastor Linger said the public is cordially invited to the services of the First Baptist Church, as well as the similar services being held at eight of the other Baptist churches of the area during the same period.

Work Begins On Flood Job Clean-Up

Bulldozer, Police At Drowning Scene

Work was started yesterday at the coffer dam in North Cumberland, just off Furnace Street, to eliminate the pool of water where Ronald Keith Knippenberg, age six years, drowned Tuesday evening.

An auxiliary policeman was on duty all day and last night to prevent children from playing in the dangerous area. Elsewhere throughout the city, on all parts of the flood control project, a "clean-up" campaign appeared to be underway as debris was moved, more neatness created and barricades were erected at excavations and water holes.

A bulldozer was moved to the Furnace Street site along with a truck load of tile drain pipe and reinforcing steel. It was evident an effort was being made to remove the death trap and to eliminate other hazards which seemed to exist.

In the meantime two probes were continuing. One inaugurated by Mayor Thomas S. Post was reported making progress and the other by the Corps of Engineers was getting well started. It was also learned safety inspectors, probably from an insurance company, were in the city.

Funeral Rites Today

The disaster, which has aroused the entire community, took the life of Ronald Keith Knippenberg, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Knippenberg, when he fell into a pool of water at the Furnace and Valley Street coffer dam. He drowned in about four feet of cold, muddy water, despite efforts of a playmate and two men to save him.

Funeral rites for the child will be held today at 2 p.m. at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wills, 530 Riehl Avenue.

Rev. Norman Scribner, pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church will officiate with interment in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Prodded by the tragic drowning the Allegany County Board of Commissioners will study the problem posed by a reservoir located above the county farm in the Piedmont Avenue section of the North End.

Commissioner James Orr brought up the matter at yesterday's session of the board and said that something should be done to eliminate any possible danger to youths in the North End section. The reservoir, which is about 20 feet long and 15 feet wide is 12 feet deep and is used during warm weather by some youths as swimming place.

May Be Drained

The county has had water rights to the reservoir for many years but the property is believed owned by heirs of the Dilfer farm property in that section. The commissioners said they believe the reservoir should be drained by blowing out one end with dynamite or other explosives.

Ownership of the reservoir is not quite clear and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, said he would investigate.

Last year the reservoir was requested by Charles A. and Paul C. Roeder for use as a park development. Getty said the county did enter into a tentative agreement to lease the reservoir rights, but yesterday it was termed null and void.

The county had the right to enter upon and maintain the reservoir, the water of which was used years ago at the county home, Sylvan Retreat and the county farm, but vandalism by youths has posed a problem for the county. Locks were torn from the gate in a fence around the reservoir and a wooden covering over the pool was torn off and used as firewood by boys using the pool for swimming.

City To Mark Good Friday

Many offices in the city will close today for the Easter weekend. Sessions of the Orphans Court and County Commissioners were held yesterday instead of today and all offices at the court house will be closed today. Offices at City Hall will close at noon.

The Cumberland Free Public Library will close today. The Library's South End Branch is closed until the end of the spring vacation for schools April 2.

Holy Cross Episcopal Church on Virginia Avenue will say a litany at 10 a. m. today and a litany and address is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. today.

Music will feature the Good Friday services at St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

A special Easter program will be held tonight at 7:45 p. m. at the Salvation Army Citadel, Major Elmer W. Wall said last night.

Sacred musical numbers will be featured and several short talks given. Major Wall will also give a brief talk at the unveiling of a picture of "Christ at the Hearts Door" by Sallamn.

At the South Cumberland Outpost on Virginia Avenue Major Wall said a special service on the Seven Last Words of Christ will be given at 7:45 p. m. today.

A program of sacred music will be presented at Pinto Mennonite Church by the Youth Fellowship directed by Mrs. Harold Ours today at 7:30 p. m.
